Margaret Mather and company put in their last nights at the California, at popular prices, in their elaborate production of "Romeo and Juliet," which holds the stage until their last appearances on Saturday night, with the young tragedienne in her famed role of Juliet.

"The Private Secretary" will be produced for Sunday night's bill with J. N. Long in his original character.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California next week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. The announcement is sufficient.

Box office now open.

Orpheum Opera House.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. This piece is written by Fritz Lafontaine, and had a good record at the Tivoli last year, where it ran four weeks. The action is lively. The second act takes place in a photograph gallery, the third in a drug store and the fourth in the home of an actress. The comedy element prevails, though there is some taking musical numbers and concerted pieces that are well rendered. It has only this week allotted to it.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, will be next week's attraction at the Orpheum.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The romantic and interesting drama of "Monte Cristo" forms this week's bill at Morosco's. This is a great play and its principal parts are entrusted in good hands—Darrell Vinton as Dantes, James Carden as Mons. Noitier, E. J. Holden as Fernand, G. W. Reynolds as Caderouse and Miss May Nannary as Mercedes.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the most successful of all American plays—will be given at the Orpheum next week, with R. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom; Darrell Vinton as Gus Harris; E. J. Holden as Legree; Walter Adrian as St. Clair; G. W. Reynolds as Marks; Miss May Nannary as Eliza, and Irene Dudley as Eva. The play will be produced in its entire six acts.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; La Drew, the female impersonator; V. A. Stanley in acrobatic songs and dances, and the clever and versatile Langs are the new features at the Wigwam this week.

Besides, Dryden & Mitchell, Lillie Hensley, Bob and Lulu Thies, the Morrellis, Harry Moore, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Miss Elsie Adair, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians and vocalists; Ella La Rue, the cornetist, and Laura Huget, vocalist, are the new things for this week, with the new piece of "Good Time for Nothing" with all the company in the cast.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Lena Hoffman, cantatrice; and Will Zanders, comedian.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Stella Clair, Nettie Berben and the versatile Nestell and others.

A strong feature of the bill this week is Ned Nestell's successful nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauties; or, American Man-of-Warsmen Abroad," in 1 act and 7 scenes. It is produced with tacking ships, fine scenery and

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first part.

The comical farce-comedy of "Thompson's Dead," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new pepie next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

This popular house of the north-end presents the following new cards this week: Carl Reiter, the phenomenal Boy Illusionists; West & Fowler, German sketch artists, and Miss M. Letcher, change artiste.

The bill opens with the act of "Euchre," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Fox's "Mixtures" and "Living Pictures." All have the fun element in them.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Miss Letcher, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

Carl Reiter adds an interesting feature to the olio in his feats of sleight-of-hand. They are done quickly, artisticly and cleverly.

Pete Smith and Lotta Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company next week.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company. Billy Akarman takes the stage this week and makes his reappearance.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Mary Gould, Jas. Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franke make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and Franke & Morrison are two versatile teams.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Pion Pion," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

"SHENANDOAH" A GREAT SUCCESS.

Bronson Howard's new military play of "Shenandoah," produced at the Star Theatre, New York, last week, is pronounced by the press to be a decided success. The N. Y. Truth says: "Bronson Howard has solved the problem of creating a drama based upon the military exploits of the country, free from bluster, spread-eagleism and excessive gunpowder. The plot is a complication of love affairs, the threads of the story that string the battle scenes together and make the battle incidents necessities."

The spectacular scene of the play is where the Butternuts charge the Union lines and drive them back across the stage. There is a moment's pause, when hurrahs and cries of "Sheridan!" are heard, as the General dashes on in front of his panic-stricken troops. A wild rush and tumultuous conflict follows, and the Union line surges back in the tide of victory. The scene is described as one of strongest effect, and remarkable in its dissimilarity to ordinary stage spectacles.

The artistic construction of "Shenandoah," in its intricacies of plot and counterplot and good characterizations, are favorably commented on by all the critics. It must bear the clever stamp of Howard's other plays. The Herald pronounces it to be "greater than 'The Henrietta.'" The Times declares that "the popular success of 'Shenandoah' is as distinct and indisputable as that of 'The Henrietta.'" The Morning Journal says "it will take rank with 'The Banker's Daughter' and his 'Henrietta.'" Evidently Bronson Howard is not written out, and we have another successful play from his pen.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Primrose & West wired Harry Mann that their newly organized minstrel company made a big success on their opening night, and that they "are all right."

Chiarini, the circus king, who has routed South America, Australia, Japan, China, Sumatra, the Indies and the Orient everywhere, since his last visit here, ten years ago, will be back here in November. He is now en voyage from Japan to the Sandwich Islands, where he will show for two weeks, en route for this city.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum Monday week.

A Milwaukee dime museum broke the record one day last week—a local holiday. It opened at 7 o'clock in the morning, and its performers gave thirty-eight shows before they went to bed at 2 o'clock the next morning.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre on Monday. His business is booming under Fox's management.

The only American in Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles is Gus Williams, who has been starring it as a German comedian for some ten years, and is a feature even among Herrmann's luminaries.

Lily Versatile Akarman takes the stage management of the Eureka this week.

"The Spanish Beauties," in its second week at the Cremorne, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Carroll Johnson has acquitted himself very creditably in white face in a leading Irish character in "The Fairies' Well," a play we had at the Bush last Winter. The New York Truth says: "Mr. Carroll Johnson is young, good-looking and clever. He plays the Irishman of the American stage very well indeed, which is a very different thing from a real Irishman. He has a good baritone voice, and sings a good song in an untrained style and clear enunciation, but pitches the key a tone too high, evidently under the impression that he is that rarest of beings, a tenor. There is the making of a good actor in this young man, if he will only get out of the rut of conventional Irish comedy."

It is an old joke about "coming over in two ships," but that is what Wilson Barrett's company and his stage appointments are doing. The latter comprise the settings of his eight plays he will produce in this country. It is the largest shipment of theatrical scenery, etc., ever made across the Atlantic. The total amount of scenery, properties and gas and mechanical apparatus to be transported will weigh about 310 tons. This is exclusive of the fifty large baskets of costumes, which will weigh about 10,000 pounds. Mr. Barrett has contracted with the Cunard Company for the transportation. Half of his stage equipments are now in transit on the steamer Cephalonia. The balance will follow on the Scythia on the 26th inst. It will require a big train of cars to move the Barrett company and scenery from city to city. A part of his company will sail Sept. 25th on another steamer for New York, and Mr. Barrett and the rest will form the fourth division, leaving on Oct. 2nd. Big as this shipment from England, in a theatrical way, is it will form no comparison in extent to the transportation of the Barnum & Bailey Big Show—circus, hippodrome and entire menagerie—across the Atlantic to England in the coming Fall.

The next regular season at the Boston Museum will be its fiftieth. No other theatre in the world has presented a more continuous line of successes and prosperity. Next to their Cradle of Liberty the Museum is the thing they swear by in Boston.

Among the melodramas out in the cold world, out on the road, this season will be: "The Stowaway," "After Dark," "A Royal Pass," "Drifting Apart," "A Hoop of Gold," "Without Crime," "His Natural Life," "In the Ranks," "Lights and Shadows," "Mankind," "The Fugitive," "The White Slave," "Time Will Tell," "One of the Finest," "The Streets of New York" and "The Great Metropolis."

Some Eastern scribe says: "Edwin Booth has not given up smoking, as has been reported. He was observed recently at a small railway station on the Connecticut shore of Long Island Sound dressed in gray and puffing a black, strong cigar with the air of an enthusiast. His face was pale, his eyes haggard and he walked like an old man. One shoulder was at least two inches above the other. Those who saw him were astonished at his feeble appearance." What was he made up for?

"Clover" is gradually approaching the conclusion of its remarkably successful career at Palmer's Theatre, New York. On October 5th the last performance of the summer season of the McCaull Opera Company will be given at that house. On Oct. 7th "Clover" will be given in the Quaker City.

Jessop and Teal's new local play, "The Great Metropolis," at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York, has got into good form, and is evidently booked for a long and successful run. The house is crowded to the doors at every performance and the remarkable shipwreck scene with the life-saving corps at work and its other spectacular effects are heartily applauded. As a pictorial production "The Great Metropolis" is the most elaborate that has been seen on the New York stage in years.

"Featherbrain," the rattling three-act comedy which made a run of sixty nights at the Madison Square Theatre, N. Y., opened its season at the Star Theatre, Buffalo, with great success. It is a farce comedy adapted from the French by the late James Alberry, who was also the author of the "Two Roses," the comedy that first made Henry Irving famous in London. One of the peculiar features of "Featherbrain" is a spiral staircase that starts below the stage and ends up in the top of the theatre.

Kate Castleton began her season at Trenton, N. J., Sept. 12th. She will only appear in her success, "A Paper Doll."

Dunlop's N. Y. News says: "Nellie McHenry will produce her new play when she reaches San Francisco in October."

When Augustin Daly takes his company to Europe next year he will fill engagements in London, Paris and Berlin.

Adelaide Moore is actively preparing for her starring tour in "The Love Story," which begins in the West on Oct. 1st.

The Joseph Jefferson-Florence Co. are rehearsing the old comedies in one of Mr. Jefferson's barns at Buzzard's Bay, Mass. They will not remain barnstormers all the season.

Henry E. Dixey has begun rehearsals on "The Seven Ages," his new piece.

Col. J. Armoy Knox and Ed Atwell tried their new comedy, "A Stuffed Dog," on the Elizabethans, in the land of mosquitos, and made only a fair impression. The last act don't wag well. The "Dog" will have to have a new tail.

When New York was about the size of San Francisco, and had only four theatres, the Park, Mitchell's Olympic, Chatham and old Bowery Theatres, three graceful young women, the Vallee Sisters, used to dance a pas de trio between acts at the Bowery. They confined themselves almost exclusively to Spanish dances, and were the only dancers on the stage except Julia Turnbull at the Park. One of the sisters married well in marrying Ben De Bar, a fine actor, a popular man, who held a long time afterwards the position of leading manager of St. Louis. The little paragraph we copy below winds up the story of her life:

The widow of Ben De Bar, formerly of St. Louis, has been admitted to the Forrest Home at Homesbury, Pa. She was in her day a popular danseuse, and afterwards a good actress. Her maiden name was Henrietta Vallee, and she is a native of Philadelphia.

Female stars are getting very scarce. The withdrawal of three made-to-order stars—for lack of better—this season, Mrs. James Brown Potter, Mrs. James G. Blaine, Jr., and Mrs. Helen Dauvray (baseball) Ward, for alleged sickness or other reasons, but in truth, most probably, for the conclusions their managers arrived at that they would not pay as stars, has left us short-handed in feminine luminaries. We have only that triumvirate of talent, youth and beauty, Fanny Davenport, Clara Morris and Maggie Mitchell, for our dramatic stage divinities. Lydia Thompson and Mrs. Langtry, the oleaginous satellites, have gone back on us. Margaret Mather we have had. Rose Coghlan is not a paying star, and even Modjeska has not paid lately and has consented to join Booth as a stock star in his company—where she will be overshadowed completely by his fame. What shall we do for female stars?

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy, two popular Eastern comedy stars, playing under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, Manager of the New York Union Square Theatre, are in their farewell week at the Bush in the farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." The fun centers around Thos. E. Murray as Col. Gilhooley, a prosperous and pretentious Irishman who claims to have come from an aristocratic lineage, and Mark Murphy as Jerry McGinness, a well-to-do New York alderman, and their doings; assisted to a noted degree by Chas. W. Young, who plays the part of an English dude, and serves as a foil for the two leading comedians.

The qualities of eccentricity, humor and fun come into action in the doings and events of "Our Irish Visitors," and songs, dances and specialty features are sandwiched in between the incidents in the second and third acts with good effect.

John F. Carroll plays a German part acceptably, and sings a baseball song with good style and action. Miss Ada Melrose is a petite and piquant soubrette, good in songs, and a quick and graceful dancer. Miss Helena Coe is particularly noticeable for her fine stage presence and lady-like acting, and her companion character in the piece, personated by Miss Lotta Thornton, is of the same order of stage attractiveness. Both ladies have talent, and contribute taking musical numbers to the play. Miss Addie Boose, besides rendering a good character part, adds a fine cornet solo in the last act, artistically played and with full volume of sound. Murray & Murphy sing a number of good songs, and Mr. Young catches on also with his dude's topical song.

"Our Irish Visitors" has been well introduced and bids fair to be well welcomed for its two weeks' stay.

See cast in programme announcement.

—c—

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush on Monday week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. His business is so phenomenally good that he draws full houses everywhere. His announce programme appears adjacent.

Herrmann will present his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's programme, for the first time in California.

Box sheet now open.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," is in his last week here, with Ethel Brandon, reappearing as stock star, and E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support; including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company.

"Kit" has stood the test of years, and young Chanfrau gives a characterization of the leading role that follows very closely that of his father's. The play is one of standard excellence with action and humor to commend it.

E. J. Buckley is excellent as the gambler villain, Gus Hastings; Ethel Brandon is thoroughly good in her dual roles; Stockwell just revels in the Judge, and Scott Cooper keeps well in line with him as his companion toper, the Major; Jas. M. Ward's tough gambler part is very effective; Leo Cooper makes a good characterization of Stubbs; Geo. H. Wood is A 1 in the blackface part of Julius Cæsar, and Carrie Clarke Ward, Miss Nellie Buckley and Fanny Young all do notedly good work. All the Alcazar company are evidently playing on their metal, and the result is appreciated by their audiences.

Business has been good, and "Kit" will draw for its second week.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance next week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, Stockwell and the Alcazar Company, in his new play, "The Runaway Wife."

Box sheet now open.

New California Theatre.

Margaret Mather and company put in their last nights at the California, at popular prices, in their elaborate production of "Romeo and Juliet," which holds the stage until their last appearances on Saturday night, with the young tragedienne in her famed role of Juliet.

"The Private Secretary" will be produced for Sunday night's bill with J. N. Long in his original character.

—o—

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California next week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. The ar-

Orpheum Opera House.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. This piece is written by Fritz Lafontaine, and had a good record at the Tivoli last year, where it ran four weeks. The action is lively. The second act takes place in a photograph gallery, the third in a drug store and the fourth in the home of an actress. The comedy element prevails, though there is some taking musical numbers and concerted pieces that are well rendered. It has only this week allotted to it.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, will be next week's attraction at the Orpheum.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The romantic and interesting drama of "Monte Cristo" forms this week's bill at Morosco's. This is a great play and its principal parts are entrusted in good hands—Darrell Vinton as Dantes, James Carden as Mons. Noirtier, E. J. Holden as Fernand, G. W. Reynolds as Caderouse and Miss May Nannary as Mercedes.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the most successful of all American plays—will be given at the Orpheum next week, with R. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom; Darrell Vinton as Gus Harris; E. J. Holden as Legree; Walter Adrian as St. Clair; G. W. Reynolds as Marks; Miss May Nannary as Eliza, and Irene Dudley as Eva. The play will be produced in its entire six acts.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; and the clever and versatile Langs, were the leading new features at the Wigwam this week.

Besides, a dozen specialty artists, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

There appears almost a new company at the Wigwam next week. The new faces are: Senor Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Ellwood, specialist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion; Armstrong & Marren, refined Irish team, and the three Coles, trapeze artists.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians and vocalists; Ella La Rue, the cornetist, and Laura Hugot, vocalist, are the new things for this week, with the new piece of "Good Time for Nothing" with all the company in the cast.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lottie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Lena Hoffman, cantatrice; and Will Zanders, comedian.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Stella Clair, Nettie Berhen and the versatile Nestell and others.

A strong feature of the bill this week is Ned Nestell's successful nautical comedy of "The Spanish Beauties; or, American Man-of

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first part.

The comical farce-comedy of "Thompson's Dead," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new pepie next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

This popular house of the north-end presents the following new cards this week: Carl Reiter, the phenomenal Boy Illusionists; West & Fowler, German sketch artists, and Miss M. Letcher, change artiste.

The bill opens with the act of "Euchre," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Fox's "Mixtures" and "Living Pictures." All have the fun element in them.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Miss Letcher, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

Carl Reiter adds an interesting feature to the olio in his feats of sleight-of-hand. They are done quickly, artisticly and cleverly.

Pete Smith and Lotta Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company next week.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company. Billy Akerman takes the stage this week and makes his reappearance.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Mary Gould, Jas. Post, Billy Akerman and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and Franks & Morrison are two versatile teams.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Pion Pion," new songs and dances and all the original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger

Clara Morris begins her season Sept. 30th at the Grand Opera House, N. Y.

Mr. W. J. Marshall, manager for Zoe Clayton, of Mazeppa fame, is in town. Miss Clayton has been playing Mazeppa in Europe and lately in Spain, her native country, with success. After playing a farewell season on the Pacific Coast it is her intention to proceed to Australia.

EVENING EDITION

SATURDAY.....SEPTEMBER 21, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Dockstader-Thatcher minstrel combination is off. They could not agree as to which name should go first. Thatcher was willing to call the comb. Thatcher & Docker Minstrels as a compromise, but Mr. D. would not consent. So Thatcher has signed with the Howard Athenæum Company for the season.

Primrose & West signed Harry Mann and their newly organized minstrel company made a big success on their opening night, and that they "are all right."

Ciarini, the circus king, who has toured South America, Australia, Japan, China, Sumatra, the Indies and the Orient everywhere, since his last visit here, ten years ago, will be back here in November. He is now en voyage from Japan to the Sandwich Islands, where he will show for two weeks, en route for this city.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum Monday week.

A Milwaukee dime museum broke the record one day last week—a local holiday. It opened at 7 o'clock in the morning and the performers gave thirty-eight shows before they went to bed at 2 o'clock the next morning.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, go to Bottle Meier's Theatre on Monday. His business is booming under Fox's management.

The only American in Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles is Gus Williams, who has been starring it as a German comedian for some ten years, and is a feature even among Herrmann's luminaries.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eureka.

"The Spanish Beauties," in its second week at the Cremorne, is an elaborate production, with tacking ships and other mechanical effects, and new scenery. The play is full of adventure. Goldie & Gilbert were specially engaged for it.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves feet at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a comfortable audience patronage.

The "Little Lord Fauntleroy" tour under Mr. Hayman's direction begins at Seattle on Monday.

Olsson and Teale's new local play, "The Great Metropolis," at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York, has got into good form, and is evidently booked for a long and successful run. The house is crowded to the doors at every performance and the remarkable shipwreck scene with the life-saving corps at work and its other spectacular effects are heartily applauded. As a pictorial production "The Great Metropolis" is the most elaborate that has been seen on the New York stage in years.

"Featherbrain," the rattling three-act comedy which made a run of sixty nights at the Madison Square Theatre, N. Y., opened its season at the Star Theatre, Buffalo, with great success. It is a farce comedy adapted from the French by the late James Alberry, who was also the author of the "Two Roses," the comedy that first made Henry Irving famous in London. One of the peculiar features of "Featherbrain" is a spiral staircase that starts below the stage and ends up in the top of the theatre.

The Joseph Jefferson-Florence Co. are rehearsing the old comedies in one of Mr. Jefferson's barns at Buzzard's Bay, Mass. They will not remain barnstormers all the season.

Col. J. Armoy Knox and Ed Atwell tried their new comedy, "A Stuffed Dog," on the Elizabethans, in the land of mosquitos, and made only a fair impression. The last act don't wag well. The "Dog" will have to have a new tail.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager John Maguire formally announces the opening of his season at the Grand Opera House on October 12 h in a programme space ad. in our columns. He is keeping his opening attraction secret. He leaves New York on Tuesday for this city. When he gets here we will learn all about it, if we do not find it out before.

Miss Nellie McHenry and company are reveling in "Green Room Fun" this season.

Dion Boucicault is writing an Irish drama in which Bobby Gaylor will star next season, under the management of W. A. Brady.

Kate Castleton's company: Harry C. Clarke, Richard Gorman, James B. Radcliffe, William Jerome, Lizzie Conway, Grace Ottillie, Mabel Potter, Belle Muni, May Montford, Ada Freeman; Arthur C. Pell, musical director; Harry Paillips, manager.

The Wood-St. John English company for their third American tour is composed of George M. Wood, Marguerite St. John, W. F. White, Alexander Calvert, Walter J. Brooke, Walter Woodall, P. A. Nannary, Virginia Holland, Carrie Louise Stone and Adelaide Van Brunt. Advance agent, Fred Schwartz.

Margaret Mather's dates: Sacramento, 24-25; San Jose, 27-28, Oakland, 30 and Oct. 1.

Murray & Murphy's dates: Oakland, 23-24; Santa Cruz, 25; San Jose, 26; Sacramento, 28; Fresno, 29; Los Angeles and San Diego the week following.

Russell's "City Directory" plays in Portland next week.

"The Stowaway" Co. play in Los Angeles next week.

The Grismer-Davies Co. play in Stockton next week.

Sophie Eyre with her new play, "The Witch," is one of the bookings for an early date for the Grand Opera House in this city under the Maguire management.

Carroll Johnson has acquitted himself very creditably in white face in a leading Irish character in "The Fairies' Well," a play we had at the Bush last Winter. The New York Truth says: "Mr. Carroll Johnson is young, good-looking and clever. He plays the Irishman of the American stage very well indeed, which is a very different thing from a real Irishman. He has a good baritone voice, and sings a good song in an untrained style and clear enunciation, but pitches the key a tone too high, evidently under the impression that he is that rarest of beings, a tenor. There is the making of a good actor in this young man, if he will only get out of the rut of conventional Irish comedy.",

It is an old joke about "coming over in two ships," but that is what Wilson Barrett's company and his stage appointments are doing. The latter comprise the settings of his eight plays he will produce in this country. It is the largest shipment of theatrical scenery, etc., ever made across the Atlantic. The total amount of scenery, properties and gas and mechanical apparatus to be transported will weigh about 310 tons. This is exclusive of the fifty large baskets of costumes, which will weigh about 10,000 pounds. Mr. Barrett has contracted with the Cunard Company for the transportation. Half of his stage equipments are now in transit on the steamer Cephalonia. The balance will follow on the Scythia on the 26th inst. It will require a big train of cars to move the Barrett company and scenery from city to city. A part of his company will sail Sept. 25th on another steamer for New York, and Mr. Barrett and the rest will form the fourth division, leaving on Oct. 2nd. Big as this shipment from England, in a theatrical way, is it will form no comparison in extent to the transportation of the Barnum & Bailey Big Show—circus, hippodrome and entire menagerie—across the Atlantic to England in the coming Fall.

The next regular season at the Boston Museum will be its fiftieth. No other theatre in the world has presented a more continuous line of successes and prosperity. Next to their Cradle of Liberty the Museum is the thing they swear by in Boston.

Among the melodramas out in the cold world, out on the road, this season will be: "The Stowaway," "After Dark," "A Royal Pass," "Drifting Apart," "A Hoop of Gold," "Without Crime," "His Natural Life," "In the Ranks," "Lights and Shadows," "Mankind," "The Fugitive," "The White Slave," "Time Will Tell," "One of the Finest," "The Streets of New York" and "The Great Metropolis."

Some Eastern scribe says: "Edwin Booth has not given up smoking, as has been reported. He was observed recently at a small railway station on the Connecticut shore of Long Island Sound dressed in gray and puffing a black, strong cigar with the air of an enthusiast. His face was pale, his eyes haggard and he walked like an old man. One shoulder was at least two inches above the other. Those who saw him were astonished at his feeble appearance." What was he made up for?

"Clover" is gradually approaching the conclusion of its remarkably successful career at Palmer's Theatre, New York. On October 5th the last performance of the summer season of the McCaull Opera Company will be given at that house. On Oct. 7th "Clover" will be given in the Quaker City.

Adelaide Moore is actively preparing for her starring tour in "The Love Story," which begins in the West on Oct. 1st.

Kate Castleton began her season at Trenton, N. J., Sept. 12th. She will only appear in her success, "A Paper Doll."

Herrmann's Vaudeville Company, pronounced to be the best seen in New York for years, comes to the Bush this Fall.

ENOCH, CYRUS, JERRY AND BEN.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben
Were babies together, four fat little men,
Four bald headed babies, who bumped themselves blue,
And sprawled, grabbed and tumbled, as all babies do;
Full of laughter and tears, full of sorrow and glee,
And big, bouncing bunglers, as all babies be,
All in the same valley lived these little men,
Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben
Were fast little chums—till they grew to be men,
Eight bare little feet on the same errands flew
Through meadows besprinkled with daisies and dew;
They were aimless as butterflies, thoughtless and free
As the summer-mad bobolink, drunken with glee,
A wonderful time were those careless days then
For Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben
Grew from babies to boys, and from boys into men
Too restless to stay in the circumscribed bound
Of the green hills that circled their valley around,
To the north and the south and the east and the west
Each departed alone on a separate quest;
Ah! they'll ne'er be the same to each other again,
Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben,
Though companions in youth, were strangers as men;
Enoch grew rich and haughty and proud,
While Cyrus worked on with the toil-driven crowd;
In the councils of State Jerry held a proud place,
But poor Ben, he sounded the depths of disgrace.
Ah! diverse were the lives of these boys from the glen,
Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben,
Who can read the strong fates that encompassed these men:
The fate that raised one to the summit of fame,
The fate that dragged one to the darkness of shame!
Ah silence is best; neither glory nor blame
Will I grant to the honored or dishonored name.
We are all like these boys who grew to be men,
Like Enoch, or Cyrus, or Jerry, or Ben.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Murray & Murphy make their last appearance on Sunday night in their farcical comedy of "Our Irish Visitors." They have played an evenly fair engagement, and will finish an interior season before going East. These clever comedians will have a new piece next season.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush next week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann presents his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's programme, for the first time in California. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience, and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration. He also introduces his expose of spiritual phenomena, including slate-writing, table-tipping, cabinet and dark seances etc., including materializations, and his wonders of magic.

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusory art, as in contrast they appear as mere bunglers. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals is irresistable—in fact, his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted for him by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Jules Goodman.

Alcazar Theatre.

Henry Chanfrau makes his last appearance here on Sunday night, in the American play of "Kit, the Arkansaw Traveler," with Ethel Brandon, E. J. Buckley, L. R. Stockwell and a very strong cast in support, including James M. Ward, Carrie Clarke Ward, Geo. H. Wood and the regular Alcazar Company. "Kit" has been admirably played, and has recorded a good two-weeks business.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance next week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, Stockwell and the Alcazar Company, in his new play, "The Runaway Wife," a romance of love and passion woven into a strong drama.

New California Theatre.

Margaret Mather puts in a last appearance at the California to-night in her elaborate production of "Romeo and Juliet."

"The Private Secretary" will be produced for Sunday night's bill with J. N. Long in his original character. It is a good comedy and made its mark as an entertaining performance when produced at the Baldwin two years ago.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California next week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are infinitely amusing.

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret.

Mr. Maguire has been in New York on business appertaining to the Grand and his Northern theatres, and will leave for this city on Tuesday. Mr. Jay Rial will accompany him, and will take residence in San Francisco as the local manager of the Grand. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease. Doubtless the management will show their cards in due time.

J. H. McCabe has been authorized to engage

Orpheum Opera House.

The four-act musical comedy of "Business is Business" has been this week's attraction at the Orpheum. This piece is written by Fritz Lafontaine, and had a good record at the Tivoli last year, where it ran four weeks. The action is lively. The second act takes place in a photograph gallery, the third in a drug store and the fourth in the home of an actress. The comedy element prevails, though there is some taking musical numbers and concerted pieces that are well rendered. It has only this week allotted to it.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, will be next week's attraction at the Orpheum.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

The romantic and interesting drama of "Monte Cristo" formed this week's bill at Morosco's. This is a great play and its principal parts are entrusted in good hands—Darrell Vinton as Dantes, James Carden as Mons. Noltier, E. J. Holden as Fernand, G. W. Reynolds as Caderousse and Miss May Nannary as Mercedes.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the most successful of all American plays—will be given at the Orpheum next week, with R. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom; Darrell Vinton as Gus Harris; E. J. Holden as Legree; Walter Adrian as St. Clair; G. W. Reynolds as Marks; Miss May Nannary as Eliza, and Irene Dudley as Eva. The play will be produced in its entire six acts.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; and the clever and versatile Langs, were the leading new features at the Wigwam this week.

Besides, a dozen specialty artists, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

There appears almost a new company at the Wigwam next week. The new faces are: Senor Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Ellwood, specialist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion; Armstrong & Marren, refined Irish team, and the three Coles, trapeze artists.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians and vocalists; Ella La Rue, the cornetist, and Laura Huget, vocalist, were the new things for this week, with the new piece of "Good Time for Nothing" with all the company in the cast.

Taylor Jahmes, banjo artist; George Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Ballinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

New this week: Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Gilbert & Goldie, comedians; Lena Hoffman, cantatrice; and Will Zanders, comedian.

This makes a strong specialty company with the additions of Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Hayes & Marion, Stella Clair, Nettie Berben and the versatile Nestell and others.

A strong feature of the bill this week was Ned Nestell's successful nautical comedy of

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, vocalist and dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first-part.

The comical farce-comedy of "Thompson's Dead," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive. The various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one, especially so in musical features, glees, duets and concerted pieces. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new pepie next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

This popular house of the north-end presented the following new cards this week: Carl Reiter, the phenomenal Boy Illusionists; West & Fowler, German sketch artists, and Miss M. Letcher, change artiste.

The bill opens with the act of "Euchre," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Fox's "Mixtures" and "Living Pictures." All have the fun element in them.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Miss Letcher, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

Carl Reiter adds an interesting feature to the olio in his feats of sleight-of-hand. They are done quickly, artistically and cleverly.

Pete Smith and Lotta Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company next week.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company. Billy Akarman takes the stage this week and makes his reappearance.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Mary Gould, Jas. Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and Franks & Morrison are two versatile teams.

In the comedy afterpiece, "Plon Plon," new songs and dances and all the original business

Season Twenty Weeks. Stock Company for City and Road

A SEASONABLE RHYME.

The oyster down in his bed of ooze,
Awoke one morn' from his summer snooze,
Opened his shell and said with a yawn,
"I fear that our season of safety is gone,
My pleasant dreams were disturbed by the jar
That always is caused by the letter R,
And I know by the keel of that old sloop
That some of us will shortly be in the soup."

Mr. W. J. Marshall, manager for Zoe Clayton, of Mazeppa fame, is in town. Miss Clayton has been playing Mazeppa in Europe and lately in Spain, her native country, with success. After playing a farewell season on the Pacific Coast it is her intention to proceed to Australia.

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY.....SEPTEMBER 23, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Dockstader-Thatcher minstrel combination is off. They could not agree as to which name should go first. Thatcher was willing to call the comb. Thatchstader & Docker Minstrels as a compromise, but Mr. D. would not consent. So Thatcher has signed with the Howard Athenæum Company for the season.

Primrose & West wired Harry Mann that their newly organized minstrel company made a big success on their opening night, and that they 'are all right."

Chiarini, the circus king, who has routed South America, Australia, Japan, China, Sumatra, the Indies and the Orient everywhere, since his last visit here, ten years ago, will be back here in November. He is now en voyage from Japan to the Sandwich Islands, where he will show for two weeks, en route for this city.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum Monday next.

A Milwaukee dime museum broke the record one day last week—a local holiday. It opened at 7 o'clock in the morning, and its performers gave thirty-eight shows before they went to bed at 2 o'clock the next morning.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

The only American in Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles is Gus Williams, who has been starring it as a German comedian for some ten years, and is a feature even among Herrmann's luminaries.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eureka.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

Some Eastern scribe says: "Edwin Booth has not given up smoking, as has been reported. He was observed recently at a small railway station on the Connecticut shore of Long Island Sound dressed in gray and puffing a black, strong cigar with the air of an enthusiast. His face was pale, his eyes haggard and he walked like an old man. One shoulder was at least two inches above the other. Those who saw him were astonished at his feeble appearance." What was he made up for?

"Clover" is gradually approaching the conclusion of its remarkably successful career at Palmer's Theatre, New York. On October 5th the last performance of the summer season of the McCaull Opera Company will be given at that house. On Oct. 7th "Clover" will be given in the Quaker City.

"Featherbrain," the rattling three-act comedy which made a run of sixty nights at the Madison Square Theatre, N. Y., opened its season at the Star Theatre, Buffalo, with great success. It is a farce comedy adapted from the French by the late James Albery, who was also the author of the "Two Roses," the comedy that first made Henry Irving famous in London. One of the peculiar features of "Featherbrain" is a spiral staircase that starts below the stage and ends up in the top of the theatre.

The Joseph Jefferson-Florence Co. are rehearsing the old comedies in one of Mr. Jefferson's barns at Buzzard's Bay, Mass. They will not remain in the storm-area all the season.

Col. J. Armoy Knox and Ed Atwell tried their new comedy, 'A Stuffed Dog," on the Elizabethans, in the land of mosquitos, and made only a fair impression. The last act don't wag well. The "Dog" will have to have a new tail.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

When Herrmann was at the Bush the last time he announced his great card, his Cremation act, for his last week, but he did not get it ready for production here. No one showed more interest to see it than a certain ex-Senator, that makes his headquarters near by. When he learned it was not to be produced, his ejaculation, "Damnation, no cremation!" as he went out of the theatre, became a by-word among the anti-theologians on Bush street. The Senator will not be disappointed this week. The act is a perfect success now, and is on Herrmann's first week's programme. Herrmann is no "foufou" after all.

The Baldwin reopens this week with Fanny Davenport in 'La Tosca," supported by Melbourne McDowell and a good stock company made up of local talent.

"A Brass Monkey" introduces three pretty girls in deep mourning hilariously singing a comic ditty of their grief.

Jas. O. Barrows, who commenced his stage career and made a hit as deputy station man in "Around the World" in his one tag query, "Don't you think so, Bill," plays an Irish servant in "Shenandoah" in a way to win the notice of the New York critics among the more important characters of the play.

Manager John Maguire formally announces the opening of his season at the Grand Opera House on October 12th in a programme space ad. in our columns. He is keeping his opening attraction secret. He leaves New York on Tuesday for this city. When he gets here we will learn all about it, if we do not find it out before.

Miss Nellie McHenry and company are reveling in "Green Room Fun" this season.

Dion Boucicault is writing an Irish drama in which Bobby Gaylor will star next season, under the management of W. A. Brady.

Kate Castleton's company: Harry C. Clarke, Richard Gorman, James B. Radcliffe, William Jerome, Lizzie Conway, Grace Ottillie, Mabel Potter, Belle Muni, May Montford, Ada Freeman; Arthur C. Pell, musical director; Harry Phillips, manager.

The Wood-St. John English company for their third American tour is composed of George M. Wood, Marguerite St. John, W. F. White, Alexander Calvert, Walter J. Brooke, Walter Woodall, P. A. Nannary, Virginia Holland, Carrie Louise Stone and Adelaide Van Brunt. Advance agent, Fred Schwartz.

Margaret Mather's dates: Sacramento, 24-25; San Jose, 27-28, Oakland, 30 and Oct. 1.

Murray & Murphy's dates: Oakland, 23-24; Santa Cruz, 25; San Jose, 26; Sacramento, 28; Fresno, 29; Los Angeles and San Diego the week following.

The Griesmer-Davies Co. play in Stockton this week.

Sophie Eyre with her new play, "The Witch," is one of the bookings for an early date for the Grand Opera House in this city under the Maguire management.

Carroll Johnson has acquitted himself very creditably in white face in a leading Irish character in "The Fairies' Well," a play we had at the Bush last Winter. The New York Truth says: "Mr. Carroll Johnson is young, good-looking and clever. He plays the Irishman of the American stage very well indeed, which is a very different thing from a real Irishman. He has a good baritone voice, and sings a good song in an untrained style and clear enunciation, but pitches the key a tone too high, evidently under the impression that he is that rarest of beings, a tenor. There is the making of a good actor in this young man, if he will only get out of the rut of conventional Irish comedy."

"The Stowaway" Co. play in Los Angeles this week.

It is an old joke about "coming over in two ships," but that is what Wilson Barrett's company and his stage appointments are doing. The latter comprise the settings of his eight plays he will produce in this country. It is the largest shipment of theatrical scenery, etc., ever made across the Atlantic. The total amount of scenery, properties and gas and mechanical apparatus to be transported will weigh about 310 tons. This is exclusive of the fifty large baskets of costumes, which will weigh about 10,000 pounds. Mr. Barrett has contracted with the Cunard Company for the transportation. Half of his stage equipments are now in transit on the steamer Cephalonia. The balance will follow on the Scythia on the 26th inst. It will require a big train of cars to move the Barrett company and scenery from city to city. A part of his company will sail Sept. 25th on another steamer for New York, and Mr. Barrett and the rest will form the fourth division, leaving on Oct. 2nd. Big as this shipment from England, in a theatrical way, is it will form no comparison in extent to the transportation of the Barnum & Bailey Big Show—circus, hippodrome and entire menagerie—across the Atlantic to England in the coming Fall.

The next regular season at the Boston Museum will be its fiftieth. No other theatre in the world has presented a more continuous line of successes and prosperity. Next to their Cradle of Liberty the Museum is the thing they swear by in Boston.

Jesson and Teal's new local play, "The Great Metropolis," at Pastor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York, has got into good form, and is conveniently booked for a long and successful run. The house is crowded to the doors at every performance and the remarkable shipwreck scene with the life-saving corps at work and its other spectacular effects are heartily ap-

ENOCH, CYRUS, JERRY AND BEN.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben
Were babies together, four fat little men,
Four bald-headed babies, who bumped themselves blue,
And sprawled, grabbed and tumbled, as all babies do;
Full of laughter and tears, full of sorrow and glee,
And big, bouncing bunglers, as all babies be,
All in the same valley lived these little men,
Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben
Were fast little chums—till they grew to be men,
Eight bare little feet on the same errands flew
Through meadows besprinkled with daisies and dew;
They were aimless as butterflies, thoughtless and free
As the summer mad bobolink, drunken with glee.
A wonderful time were those careless days then
For Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben
Grew from babies to boys, and from boys into men
Too restless to stay in the circumscribed bound
Of the green hills that circled their valley around.
To the north and the south and the east and the west
Each departed alone on a separate quest,
Although never be the same to each other again,
Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben
Though companions in youth, were strangers as men;
Enoch grew rich and haughty and proud,
While Cyrus worked on with the toil driven crowd;
In the councils of State Jerry held a proud place,
But poor Ben, he sounded the depths of disgrace
All diverse were the lives of these boys from the glen,
Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben.

Enoch and Cyrus and Jerry and Ben,
Who can read the strong fates that encompassed these men:
The fate that raised one to the summit of fame,
The fate that dragged one to the dark seas of shame!

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann opens his season at the Bush this week. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann presents his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's programme, for the first time in California. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration. He also introduces his expose of spiritual phenomena, including slate-writing, table-tipping, cabinet and dark seances, materializations, and his wonders of magic.

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusory art, as in contrast they appear as mere bunglers. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals is irresistable—in fact, his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted for him by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Jules Goodman.

His engagement is limited to two weeks.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance this week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, Stockwell and the Alcazar Company, in his new play, "The Runaway Wife," a romance of love and passion woven into a strong drama.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California this week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are infinitely amusing.

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret.

Mr. Maguire has been in New York on business appertaining to the Grand and his Northern theatres, and will leave for this city on Tuesday. Mr. Jay Rial will accompany him, and will take residence in San Francisco as the local manager of the Grand. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease. Doubtless the management will show their cards in due time.

J. H. McCabe has been authorized to engage a stock company for city and road in connection with the opening of the Grand for a season of twenty weeks. This is the first active move made here. See announcement.

Orpheum Theatre.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. The first act shows drummers' pastimes. The second act brings on a lively fire scene. The third a sensational prison scene, and the fourth shows the drummer pitted against one of the toughest hotels on the road.

Managers Walter & Co. have specially engaged Miss Kate Daglish and Geo. H. Wood for the production of "A Drummer's Life."

The play is limited to this week only.

N. D. Robert's Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

The Battle of Vicksburg.

The grand panorama of the Battle of Vicksburg at the Panorama Building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, is one that no American should fail to see. It gives a grand view of the battle with the conflict at its height on the land and the bombardment from the river with the correct positions of the engaging forces and the proper placement of the ironclads in the bombardment. It is a great painting, and excels the Battle of Waterloo in graphic power and vivid reality. Destruction reigns on every side. The burning buildings, the bursting shells, the desperate charges, the hand-to-hand conflicts, and the dying and wounded, all depict with startling realism one of the hottest conflicts in history.

Open from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the most successful of all American plays—will be given at the Morosco's this week, with R. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom; Darrell Vinton as Gus Harris; E. J. Holden as Legree; Walter Adrian as St. Clair; G. W. Reynolds as Marks; Miss May Nannary as Eliza, and Irene Dudley as Eva. The play will be produced in its entire six acts.

See cast in Morosco's programme space in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There appears almost a new company at the Wigwam this week. The new faces are: Senor Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Ellwood, specialist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion; Armstrong & Marren, refined Irish team, and the three Coles, trapeze artists.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; and the clever and versatile Lange, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thier, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artist, are new features this week, with Dryden & Mitchell's piece of "Pat's War Horse."

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "A Terrible Night;" the Thies, the taking sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

In "A Terrible Night" the Phoites do a deal of clever trick pantomime work, and produce some fine mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, the Highland lassie dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first part.

The comical farce-comedy of "A Terrible Night," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre,

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

This popular house of the north-end present the following new cards this week: Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company, and no two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Fox's act of "Misfits," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are West & Fowler's German sketch, Smith & Ellis' musical sketch, "Be Pleasant," and Smith's funny act, "Confusion."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and Franks & Morrison are two versatile teams.

In the comedy act, "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and much original business.

EVENING EDITION

TUESDAY.....SEPTEMBER 24, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

LEAVITT ON HIS RIGHTS.

One of Manager M. B. Leavitt's strongest characteristics is the legal punishment he inflicts on parties designedly breaking contracts made to play at his theatres. In almost all cases of to-fer-on dates the evening party has dishonored his contract for the purpose of bettering himself; if getting a little larger percentage in receipts elsewhere at some other theatres, and generally, with other managers, with impunity. But Manager Leavitt has a reputation of a penalty of consequential damages for to-fer-ons incorporated in his contracts, that has held good so far, and damages have been awarded him in every case. Apropos of this, a dispatch from Chicago of the 23 says:

Manager M. B. Leavitt, the theatrical manager, took out an attachment in the Circuit Court against the Wm. A Thompson Opera Company to garnishee the receipts of Haylin's Theatre for the present week. The attachment is for $1500 and was secured on a judgment against Thompson in favor of Leavitt, rendered by a California court for failure to carry out a contract."

Mr. Thompson's company will probably sing without salaries this week.

We had noticed that young Kit Chanfrau when at the Alcazar, last week, had a thin and haggard look about him, and that his deep-toned voice sounded particularly hollow, like a man suffering an inward misery; but we did not know that the managerial Nemesis was after him. It appears that he is, however, as the following item clipped from the Examiner will show:

"Henry T. Chanfrau has sued M. B. Leavitt on account of a misunderstanding about a theatrical contract. Mr. Chanfrau says his agent made an unauthorized agreement with Mr. Leavitt with regard to playing in the Bush Street Theatre, and that Mr. Leavitt has caused him much trouble on account of it. Chanfrau wishes to prevent a recurrence of this unpleasantness, and sues to have the contract declared void, to have it surrendered for cancellation, and to compel Mr. Leavitt to pay him $20 000 damages."

Mr. Chanfrau does not want to be burnt up by the legal Leavitt fire, and like backwoodsman Kit would do when it gets too hot to bear, he is starting a little back fire to try and save himself.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Dockstader-Tuatcher minstrel combination is off. They could not agree as to which name should go first. Tuatcher was willing to call the comb. Tuatcher-Dockstader & Docker Minstrels as a compromise, but Mr. D. would not consent. So Tuatcher has signed with the Howard Athenæum Company for the season.

Primrose & West wired Harry Mann that their newly organized minstrel company made a big success on their opening night, and that they "are all right."

Chiarini, the circus king, who has routed South America, Australia, Japan, China, Sumatra, the Indies and the Orient everywhere, since his last visit here, ten years ago, will be back here in November. He is now on voyage from Japan to the Sandwich Islands, where he will show for two weeks, en route for this city.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, at the Pavilion, opens at the Olympia Monday next.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the Novelties at Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. Her business is boxing quarter Fox's mustache.

Billy Versatile Akerman has the stage management of the Eureka.

Coes, Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a [illegible] vaudeville pro-

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The London Figaro was the journal that published a statement of Mary Anderson's mentally mazed condition when Marcus Mayer and Abbey had all the press at work recounting her perfect recovery to health and blooming her prospective season in England and this country for the present year. In physical health Mary Anderson is all right. It is the delicate machinery of the brain that is out of order. Her disease is mental listlessness, and her physicians forbid all taxing of the brain. Entrest and perfect exemption from all excitement is her only hope of recovery.

A late London Figaro says: "Miss Mary Anderson is not likely to be seen for many a long day on any stage in the British Isles, at least not for any continued period, as, in addition to the rest she has already enjoyed, eighteen months more relaxation is the medical advice. The earliest date mentioned for her reappearance is the close of the next year, and then the locale will be New York and not London." As Tom Keene has recovered and is playing his dates this season, let us hope that the young girl who was the pride of our stage may be equally fortunate.

Mr. Sid C. France, the Eastern melodrama tic star, is in town supervising the production of his melodrama of "Marked for Life," in which he commences his engagement at Morosco's next week. Mr. Mr. France is a popular, vigorous melodramatic actor, and has several sensational pieces of his own, which he will produce in succession at Morosco's. He is engaged especially for, and comes to this coast to play this engagement with Morosco & Byrne, and will wake up things lively for their popular East side of town house.

M. B. Leavitt's great spectacular burlesque, "The Spider and the Fly" had its stage baptism at Trenton, N. J., and dispatches say it was a splendid success. Its humor is as delicate as a spider's web, its conceits humorous and mirthful, its appointments elegant and rich, and its music charming. It has every promise of a bright future before it, and of becoming a big money-winner for Manager Leavitt.

Dion Boucicault states that "Fifty-one of his pupils have secured engagements on the stage for this season." [Will that old man never stop doing wrong?]

When Herrmann was at the Bush the last time he announced his great card, his Cremation act, for his last week, but he did not get it ready for production here. No one showed more interest to see it than a certain ex-Senator, that makes his headquarters near by. When he learned it was not to be produced, his ejaculation, 'Damnation no cremation!' as he went out of the theatre, became a by word among the anti-theologians on Bush street. The Senator will not be disappointed this week. The act is a perfect success now, and is on Herrmann's first week's programme. Herrmann is no 'fonfon' after all.

The Baldwin reopens this week with Fanny Davenport in 'La Tosca,' supported by Melbourne McDowell and a good stock company made up of local talent.

"A Brass Monkey" introduces three pretty girls in deep mourning hilariously singing a comic ditty of their grief.

Jas. O. Barrows, who debuted at our Grand and made a hit as deputy station man in "Around the World" in his one tag query, "Don't you think so, Bill," plays an Irish servant in "Shenandoah" in a way to win the notice of the New York critics among the more important characters of the play.

Manager John Maguire formally announces the opening of his season at the Grand Opera House on October 12 h in a programme space ad. in our columns. He is keeping his opening attraction secret. He will be due here the latter part of the week. When he gets here we will learn all about it, if we do not find it out before.

Miss Nellie McHenry and company are reveling in "Green Room Fun" this season.

Dion Boucicault is writing an Irish drama in which Bobby Gaylor will star next season, under the management of W. A. Brady.

Kate Castleton's company: Harry C. Clarke, Richard Gorman, James B. Radcliffe, William Jerome, Lizzie Conway, Grace Ostillie, Mabel Potter, Belle Muni, May Montford, Ada Freeman; Arthur C. Pell, musical director; Harry Phillips, manager.

Charley Drew is the Jonah of "The Brass Monkey." Charley was drilled in Mikado to make the punishment fit the crime. He does it at the California this week.

The Wood-St. John English company for their third American tour is composed of George M. Wood, Marguerite St. John, W. F. Watts, Alexander Calvert, Walter J. Brook, Walter Woodall, P. A. Nannery, Virginia Howard, Carrie Louise Stone and Adelaide Van Buren. Advance agent, Fred Schwartz.

Margaret Mather's dates: Sacramento, 24 25; San Jose, 27 28. Oakland, 30 and Oct. 1.

Murray & Murphy's dates: Oakland, 23 24; Santa Cruz, 25; San Jose, 26; Sacramento, 28; Fresno 29. Los Angeles and San Diego the week following.

Sophie Eyre with her new play, "The Witch," is one of the two kinds for an early date for the Grand Opera House in this city under the Maguire management.

The next regular season at the Boston Museum will be its fiftieth. No other theatre in the world has presented a more [illegible]

Some Eastern scribe says: "Edwin Booth has not given up smoking, as has been reported. He was observed recently at a small railway station on the Connecticut shore of Long Island Sound dressed in gray and puffing a black, strong cigar with the air of an enthusiast. His face was pale, his eyes haggard and he walked like an old man. One shoulder was at least two inches above the other. Those who saw him were astonished at his feeble appearance." What was he made up for?

"Featherbrair," the rattling three-act comedy which made a run of sixty nights at the Madison Square Theatre, N. Y., opened its season at the Star Theatre, Buffalo, with great success. It is a farce comedy adapted from the French by the late James Alberry, who was also the author of the "Two Roses," the comedy that first made Henry Irving famous in London. One of the peculiar features of "Featherbrair," is a spiral staircase that starts below the stage and ends up in the top of the theatre.

Col. J. Armoy Knox and Ed Atwells tried their hand at comedy, 'A Stuffed Dog,' on the Elizabethan, to the need of no quintos, and made only a fair impression. The last act don't wag well. The "Dog" will have to have a new tail.

Jessop and Teal's new local play, "The Great Metropolis," at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York, has got into good form, and is evidently booked for a long and successful run. The house is crowded to the doors at every performance and the remarkable shipwreck scene with the life-saving corps at work and its other spectacular effects are heartily applauded. As a pictorial production "The Great Metropolis" is the most elaborate that has been seen on the New York

Notice to Stage Managers.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all avenues of the Bush and was wrapt in attention on his feats greeted his opening night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann presents his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's proper name, for the first time in California. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the scene of transmutation. He also introduces his exposé of spiritual phenomena, including slate writing, table tipping, cabinet and dark seances—all so cleverly done by the aid of mechanical and electric appliances, and the assistance of stage hands in the dark seances as to be a marvelous simulation of the real phenomena.

His latest, "The Child of the Air" is another new illusion. The Call describes it as "an extremely agreeable deception, where a female figure in a costume scantier than the most fastidious bathing dress goes through a series of evolutions in the air with no firmer standing place than had Ariel when that sprite did gently the sporting of the magician Prospero on the deserted isle. She dances, marches in the sunbeam, etc., etc., through a loop, and does many other extremely more or less practicable. All of these evolutions are made against a dark background, with the lights turned down, and to slow music." Surely here is almost a new programme of occult effects.

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusionary art, as he himself only prefers to more bungle. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals is irresistible. In fact, his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside assistance. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted in Boston by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Louis Guimaud.

His engagement is limited to two weeks only.

Herrmann's week's success of prestidigitation next week in unveiling his mysterious "Black Art," and his new illusion known as "The Resurrection of Mr Crowley."

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, pops in upon us this week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, and the Alcazar Company, in the new play "The Runaway Wife," a romance of love and passion woven into a strong domestic drama; the joint work of H. G. Mandel and Bunnell.

The play appeals to the minds and hearts of all classes. It deals with familiar subjects in a perfectly natural yet interesting and romantic manner. It has a well-conceived plot, plenty of dramatic action, with many telling situations. In short, it is a story of to-day well written, and worked out in a manner that holds the attention of the audience. There is an entertaining story running through the play, and the plot develops naturally from the first act until the climax in the last.

Mr Rankin plays the emotional part of Arthur Eastman with more depths and shades than we had given credit of producing. Miss Mabel Bert has perfected into a very fine actress, and gives to the heroine womanly grace and feeling as well as strong mental power. E. J. Buckley dashes out finely as the Hon. Talbot Vane. Leo Cooper, Richard Foster Nellie Buckley, Carrie Clarke Ward have congenial parts, and "play them well."

Next week Mr. Rankin will give us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Cadreaux, in "The Canuck," a character that is new to the stage.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California this week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays palatable. Drew does not get the flavor of Josh exactly; it is too dry and lacks unction. Murphy is better in Dodge Work.

Flora Walsh is very clever and Mrs. Walsh very pronounced in their respective parts. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron) —in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

The theatre was crowded to overflowing.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic theatrical reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret.

Mr. Maguire has been in New York on business appertaining to the Grand and his Northern theatres, and will leave for this city on Tuesday. Mr. Jay Rial will accompany him, and will take residence in San Francisco as the local manager of the Grand. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease. Doubtless the management will show their cards in due time.

J. H. McCabe has been authorized to engage a stock company for city and road in connection with the opening of the Grand for a season of twenty weeks. This is the first active move made here. See announcement.

Orpheum Theatre.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. The first act shows drummers' pastimes. The second act brings on a hotel's fire scene. The third a sensational prison scene, and the fourth shows the drummer pitted against one of the toughest hotels on the road.

Managers Walter & Co. have specially engaged Miss Kate Daglish and Geo. H. Wood for the production of "A Drummer's Life."

The play is limited to this week only.

N. D. Robert's Great Humpty-Dumpty Company from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum next Monday night.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a result of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 24 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie M Neil and A. B. Knell, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the most successful of all American plays—will be given at the Morosco's this week, with R. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom; Darrell Vinton as Gus Harris; E. J. Holden as Legree; Walter Adrian as St. Clair; G. W. Reynolds as Marks, Miss May Newbury as Eliza, and Irene Dudley as Eva. The play is produced in its entirety.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens Monday night in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There appears almost a new company at the Wigwam this week. The new faces are: Senor Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; La Drew, specialist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion; Armstrong & Marren, refined Irish team, and the three Coles, trapeze artists.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; and the clever and versatile Lange, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

artist, are new features this week, with Dryden & Mitchell's piece of "Pat's War Horse."

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallibann's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "A Terrible Night;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

In "A Terrible Night" the Phoites do a deal of clever trick pantomime work, and produce some fine mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Norvell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, the Highland lassie dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first-part.

The comical farce-comedy of "A Terrible Night," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meters Theatre.

This popular house of the north-end present the following new cards this week: Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company, and no two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Fox's act of "Misfits," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are West & Fowler's German sketch, Smith & Ellis' musical sketch, "Be Pleasant," and Smith's funny act, "Confusion."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company this week.

A CHILD STOLEN FOR A PLAY.

There was almost as much of a sensation caused by the mysterious abduction of little Annie Redmond in Chicago, about a year ago, as the stealing of Charley Ross created in Philadelphia. As may be recollected, and the tidings were received of little Annie her father worried himself into insanity.

In February last Annie Redmond was recovered, and Mrs. Gurley was charged with her abduction. She was recently tried, found guilty, and sentenced to five years' imprisonment. After her conviction she made a confession.

Mrs. Gurley's story is that her husband, Harvey Gurley, his friend, Dick Ryan, Mrs. Parsons and Annie Allen were connected with a man named McGee, of Toledo, in forming a theatrical company of which they were to become members. McGee wrote them that it was necessary they should procure a forget-me-not girl, who must be learned to sing and dance, to play a child stolen by gypsies in the piece. $100 was to be allowed for the child's services.

Ryan planned the abduction of the Redmond child, and Annie Allen enticed her away with candy as she came out to play on the morning she was missing. A little distance down the street she was placed into a carriage Gurley had waiting, and was driven to the home of Mrs. Parsons. Two days afterwards little Annie was taken to Mrs. Gurley's home to live. Here they tried to instruct the little one in her business, but with such poor success that she was punished severely at times for not learning.

Mrs. Gurley avers that she did not know the child was stolen until one day in November when she took it out on a walk to Mrs. Parsons. As she was going into the Parsons' house a man stopped and said, "That is Annie Redmond." Mrs. Parsons hurried the child in the house declaring it was her son's little daughter, and shut the door. A moment after she turned on Mrs. Gurley in a terrible rage and ordered her to go off home with the girl.

"I was so scared and flustered," says Mrs. Gurley, "at what I had heard, and the thought that I had been keeping the lost child that all the papers were talking about frightened me so that I hardly know what to do. When Gurley heard that I had taken the child out to Mrs. Parsons' and a man had recognized it as the Redmond child he gave me a terrible beating and used me so roughly that I could not get out of bed for three days. Dick Ryan came to the house and then both threatened me if I said a word about the child. They said they would kill me."

The theatrical season was postponed until a later date. The child became a Nemesis to them all, until she was discovered in February. Mrs. Gurley states that she has been intimidated by threats, even during the trial, from divulging the truth about the abduction.

They must be very hard up for children performers in Chicago. We have such an overplus of them here that we could spare them several hundred of them and not feel their loss.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum Monday next.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and partner favorites with the Northern Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. Business is booming under Fox's management.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eureka.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Faust, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

After October 5th the Battle of Vicksburg is to give way to the Battle of Gettysburg at the Panorama building on Eddy street.

N. D. Roberts arrived to-day to pave the way for his coming Eastern Humpty-Dumpty Company at the Orpheum next week.

A delegation of Chinese actors, and merchants, and the manager of the Chinese Theatre, attended the Herrman matinee at the Bush to-day.

Charley Hoyt and Stockwell were talking together very confidentially in the lobby parlor of the California Theatre during the matinee to-day. Who was the Texas Steer?

"Hands Across the Sea," a Henry Pettit English melodrama, which has been produced in Philadelphia and Boston, had its first New York production last week at the Standard Theatre, where it is booked for a run of three weeks. The play contains neither innovations nor startling sensations. The story is placid and tells of an English farmer who does a wonderful amount of brave deeds, the opportunities to do so failing around him as plentiful as the leaves in Vallambrosa. Financial as well as other troubles accumulate upon him, and he is finally relieved by Hands Across the Sea, which, in this instance, means rich resources in Australia. It is in five acts, and every act ends with an acceptable episode. The scenes are laid in England, Paris, on board an Australian steamship and in Australia. The cast is an exceedingly strong one, and includes Edna Carey, Percy Haswell, Lizzie Scanlan (a sister of W. J. Scanlan), Gustavus Levick, W. J. Ferguson and John C. Buckstone (formerly a member of the stock company at Wallack's Theatre. From what the Eastern critics say it can be calculated good for a fair run.

Lawrence Barrett's company for this season numbers forty-seven people.

The English comedian, Mr. J. L. Toole, has become an object of sympathy. He has had the misfortune to lose, in somewhat close succession, his son, his daughter, his wife, and the only surviving blood relation—his brother Mr. Frank T. Toole. It is not often that any one is subject to so long a series of domestic afflictions as that which Mr. Toole is fated to mourn.

During a recent performance of "Aida," at the Grand Opera, Paris, the sons of the Khedive of Egypt, who were present, frantically applauded the Egyptian scenes, and asked to be allowed to join in the ballet. After Act III. they were taken into the green-room.

On the first night of the only dramatic piece that Miss Braddon has ever written, a scene was introduced in which a child was kidnapped from its mother, and, at the end, when all were made happy, the restoration of the child was taken for granted, and nothing was said about her. It was the fault of the novelist and passed unnoticed as the curtain unrolled in silence, when a "gallery god" leaned over the balcony and solemnly inquired, "What about the kid?" The departing audience burst into laughter, and the piece was damned.

"Our Flat" follows E. H. Sothern at the New York Lyceum Theatre, with H. B. Conway, an English actor, in the leading part. Mr. Conway supported the gifted Adelaide Neilson in her last season in San Francisco, and was with her in Paris at the time of her mysterious death—which was alleged to have been caused by her drinking a glass of milk in a small restaurant. We believe that Mr. Conway has not acted but little since Miss Neilson's death.

Mr. Sid C. France, the Eastern melodramatic star, is in town supervising the production of his melodrama of "Marked for Life," in which he commences his engagement at Morosco's next week. Mr. Mr. France is a popular, vigorous melodramatic actor, and has several sensational pieces of his own, which he will produce in succession at Morosco's. He is engaged especially for, and comes to this coast to play this engagement with Morosco & Byrne, and will wake up things lively for their popular East side of town house.

The Baldwin reopens this week with Fanny Davenport in 'La Tosca," supported by Melbourne McDowell and a good stock company made up of local talent.

Manager John Maguire formally announces the opening of his season at the Grand Opera House on October 12 h in a programme space ad. in our columns. He is keeping his opening attraction secret. He will be due here the latter part of the week. When he gets here we will learn all about it, if we do not find it out before.

The London Figaro was the journal that published a statement of Mary Anderson's mentally mazed condition when Marcus Mayer and Abbey had all the press at work recounting her perfect recovery to health and booming her prospective season in England and this country for the present year. In physical health Mary Anderson is all right. It is the delicate machinery of the brain that is out of order. Her disease is mental listlessness, and her physicians forbid all taxing of the brain. Entire rest and perfect exemption from all excitement is her only hope of recovery.

A late London Figaro says: "Miss Mary Anderson is not likely to be seen for many a long day on any stage in the British Isles, at least not for any continued period, as, in addition to the rest she has already enjoyed, eighteen months more relaxation is the medical advice. The earliest date mentioned for her reappearance is the close of the next year, and then the locale will be New York and not London." As Tom Keene has recovered and is playing his dates this season, let us hope that the young girl who was the pride of our stage may be equally fortunate.

"LIAR" LIFTED HIM INTO FAME.

Mrs. Madge Kendal, in her theatrical sketches, says: "I have often been asked whether actors who play minor parts conspicuously well, spring suddenly into more prominent positions. The question reminds me of an incident which occurred in a play by Arthur Sketchley, the well-known author of the 'Mrs. Brown' series. He had written a three-act drama called 'Blanche,' which my husband and I were playing at the Alexandra Theatre, Liverpool. The plot was taken from an old French drama, and consisted of a woman being falsely accused of poisoning her husband. It was very hard work, I remember, for three acts for every one in the play. In the last scene, when the villain steps forward and denounces the heroine with the words, 'You poisoned your husband; I saw you put the poison in the glass at such and such a time,' a black manservant comes forward and says, 'Liar!' This was the only occasion for genuine applause through out the play, but so great was the success of the minor actor that he immediately jumped into a most prominent position in the provinces and became a leading-man."

The managers of "Shenandoah" and of the New York Star Theatre are both kicking themselves because they have only five weeks time at the Star.

Charley Drew is the Jonah of "The Brass Monkey." Charley was drilled in Mikado to make the punishment fit the crime. He does it at the California this week.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann opens his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush and was wrapt in silent awe at his feats greeted his opening night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann presents his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's programme, for the first time in California. It is accredited one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transmutation. He also introduces his expose of spiritual phenomena, including slate writing, table tipping, cabinet and dark seances—all so cleverly done by the aid of mechanical and electric appliances, and the assistance of stage hands in the dark seance as to be a marvelous similation of the real phenomena.

"Le Phenomene, the Child of the Air" is another new illusion. The Call describes it as "an entirely an agreeable deception, where a female figure, in a costume scantier than the most fashionable bathing dress goes through a series of evolutions in mid air with no firmer standing place than had Ariel when that sprite did gently the spiriting of the magician Prospero on the enchanted isle. She dances, marches, turns, summersaults, squirms through a hoop, and cuts many other capers more or less gracefully. All of these evolutions are made against a dark background, with the lights turned down, and to slow music." Surely here is almost a new programme of occult effects.

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusory art, as in contrast they appear as mere bunglers. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchafed to ordinary mortals is irresistible. In fact, his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted for him by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Jules Goldmark.

His engagement is limited to two weeks only.

Herrmann will give a change of programme next week including his mysterious "Black Art," and his new illusion known as "The Resurrection of Mr Crowley."

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin, Sorcery manager of the California, puts in appearance this week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, and the Alcazar Company, in his new play "The Runaway Wife," a romance of love and passion woven into a strong domestic drama; the joint work of F. G. Maeder and himself.

The play appeals to the mind and hearts of all classes. It deals with familiar subjects in a perfectly natural yet interesting and realistic manner. It has a well conceived plot, plenty of dramatic action, with many telling situations. In short, it is a story of to-day well written, and worked out in a manner that holds the attention of the audience. There is an interesting story running through the play, and the plot develops naturally from the first act to the climax in the last.

Mr. Rankin plays the principal part of Arthur Lestrom with great talent and studies that we had given credit for producing. Miss Mabel Bert has perfected into a very fine actress, and owes to the heroine womanly grace and feeling as well as strong mental power. E. J. Buckley dashes out finely as the Hon. Isaac Vane. Leo Cooper, Richard Foote, Nellie Buckley, Carrie Clarke Ward have congenial parts, and play them well."

Next week Mr. Rankin will give us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Cadreaux in "The Canuck," a character that is new to the stage.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California this week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather overdone into an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays palatable. Drew does not get the flavor of Josiah exactly; it is too dry and lacks unction. Murphy is better in Dodge Work.

Flora Walsh is very clever and Mrs. Walsh very pronounced in their respective parts. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

The theatre was crowded to overflowing.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

Mr John Maguire the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five years lease of the Grand announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 5th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic professional reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret.

Mr. Maguire has been in New York on business appertaining to the Grand and his Northern theatres, and will leave for this city on Tuesday. Mr Jay Rial will accompany him and will take residence in San Francisco as the local manager of the Grand. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease. Doubtless the management will show their cards in due time.

J. H. McCabe has been authorized to engage a stock company for city and road in connection with the opening of the Grand for a season of twenty weeks. This is the first active move made here. See announcement.

Orpheum Theatre.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life" with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. The first act shows drummers' pastimes. The second act brings on a lively fire scene. The third a sensational prison scene, and the fourth shows the drummer pitted against one of the toughest hotels on the road.

Managers Walter & Co. have specially engaged Miss Kate Daglish and Geo. H. Wood for the production of "A Drummer's Life."

The play is limited to this week only.

N. D. Roberts' Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum next Monday night.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion - Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," the most successful of all American plays—will be given at the Morosco's this week, with R. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom; Darrell Vinton as Gus Harris; E. J. Holden as Legree; Walter Adrian as St. Clair; G. W. Reynolds as Marks; Miss May Nannary as Eliza and Irene Dudley as Eva. The play is produced in its entire six acts.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens Monday night in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is the rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There appears almost a new company at the Wigwam this week. The new faces are: Senor Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; La Drew specialist, Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion; Armstrong & Marren, refined Irish team, and the three Coles, trapeze artists.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; and the clever and versatile Lange, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

artist, are new features this week, with Dryden & Mitchell's piece of "Pat's War Horse."

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie La Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "A Terrible Night;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

In "A Terrible Night" the Phoites do a deal of clever trick pantomime work, and produce some fine mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, the Highland lassie dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first part.

The comical farce-comedy of "A Terrible Night," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meiers Theatre.

This popular house of the north-end presents the following new cards this week: Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company, and no two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Fox's act of "Misfits," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are West & Fowler's German sketch, Smith & Ellis' musical sketch, "Be Pleasant," and Smith's funny act, "Obfusion."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions,

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

WANTED—Lady performers for Bottle Meier's theatre.

Prof. J. Richard Miller is an English magician, just come over. At a hotel parlor reception a police sergeant was present, and at the professor's request placed on his wrists a pair of city handcuffs of the regulation order. The audience was assured by inspection that the cuffing was legitimately tightly done. The professor walked slowly away about twenty feet, turned suddenly, and with right hand extended bearing the liberated handcuffs he returned them to the police sergeant. He offers $100 to any person who will produce a pair of handcuffs, "used in the English-speaking world on criminals," that he cannot instantly loosen from his wrists. The professor opens at Dockstader's, New York, this week. There was a lady medium some ten years ago in this city that could do the same thing.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum Monday next.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eurekas.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

"LIAR!" LIFTED HIM INTO FAME.

Mrs. Madge Kendal, in her theatrical sketches, says: "I have often been asked whether actors who play minor parts conspicuously well, spring suddenly into more prominent positions. The question reminds me of an incident which occurred in a play by Arthur Sketchley, the well-known author of the 'Mrs. Brown' series. He had written a three-act drama called 'Blanche,' which my husband and I were playing at the Alexandra Theatre, Liverpool. The plot was taken from an old French drama, and consisted of a woman being falsely accused of poisoning her husband. It was very hard work, I remember, for three acts for every one in the play. In the last scene, when the villain steps forward and denounces the heroine with the words, 'You poisoned your husband; I saw you put the poison in the glass at such and such a time,' a black man-servant comes forward and says, 'Liar!' This was the only occasion for genuine applause throughout the play, but so great was the success of the minor actor that he immediately jumped into a most prominent position in the provinces and became a leading man."

A delegation of Chinese actors, and merchants, and the manager of the Chinese Theatre, attended the matinee at the Bush yesterday.

The managers of "Shenandoah" and of the New York Star Theatre are both kicking themselves because they have only five weeks time at the Star.

On the first night of the only dramatic piece that Miss Braddon has ever written, a scene was introduced in which a child was exhibited to the audience, and, as the end, when all were much happy, the restoration of the child was taken for granted, and nothing was said about her. It was the fault of the novelist and passed unnoticed on the curtain unrolled in silence, when a "gallant" leaned over the balcony and solemnly inquired, "What about the kid?" The astounding audience burst into laughter, and the piece was damned.

"Our Flat" follows E. H. Sothern at the New York Lyceum Theatre, with P. S. Conway, an English actor, in the leading part. Mr. Conway supported the gifted Adelaide Neilson in her last season in San Francisco, and was with her in Paris at the time of her mysterious death—which was

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Leo Cooper's "Sir Lancelot Traverse, in very good form," in "The Runaway Wife," is a character of the best form. It is a model impersonation of a gentlemanly English fop.

Booth and Barrett are playing their $20,000 certainty engagement at the big pavilion, or big something, at Louisville this week. Next week they separate. Booth and Modjeska open their season in Pittsburg Sept. 30th, and appear in New York at the Broadway Theatre, October 14th, for an extended engagement.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Tigress," a society play of European life.

Patti Rosa, who has a new play, "Margery Daw," by the author of "The Stowaway," follows "The Brass Monkey" at the California. There are no burglars in "Margery Daw."

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes to the Baldwin after Fanny Davenport, and Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson later on.

Salsbury's Troubadours follow McKee Rankin at the Alcazar on October 14th.

Chas. Bassett, Annie Firmin, Geo. H. Wood and Kate Daglish are doing good work this week in "A Drummer's Life."

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7th. The play will be "'49;" a very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco manager in the business here, young as he is.

One of Herrmann's most puzzling acts is that in which he lifts Mrs. Herrmann some feet from the stage and leaves her in mid-air unsupported, as far as the spectators are able to discern. In that condition she walks back and fourth in the air, dances, whirls through hoops and jumps a skipping rope, thus demonstrating apparently that neither wires from above nor rods from the sides are used. The question is, how is she supported?

Old Dick Hooley, the Chicago manager, has a one-third interest in "Shenandoah."

William J. Florence looks like a British nobleman of the ideal fashion since his return from London. He might be taken as an actual realization of Ouida's description of a handsome and amiable swell, whose only anxiety is displayed in the task of killing time. Mr. Florence's genial and still handsome face is now surmounted by a crop of flowing hair which is almost perfectly white; but he is more youthful in looks than he was two years ago, and much of this is doubtless due to the fact that he is no longer a manager of a theatrical company, with all the anxiety and responsibility that such a position entails. His future is booked out with mathematical certainty as the companion of one of the ablest comedians in America, and such a thing as anxiety no longer figures in Mr. Florence's dreams. He and Joseph Jefferson will take the place in the comedy world that Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett held in the realm of tragedy last season.—[N. Y. Sun.

"The Great Metropolis" continues to fill Proctor's Twenty-third St. Theatre, New York, at every performance.

The final performance of 'Clover" at Palmer's Theatre takes place Saturday evening, October 5th. It ran through all the hot New York Summer.

Ira Paine, who was one of the earliest to achieve fame as shootists, died recently. He began his professional life as a vocalist, and was one of the most tuneful church tenors in Boston, and worth a small fortune annually to the conventicle that employed him. He and Myron W. Whitney were great chums in those days, and made a great team in the choir gallery when they let their voices loose as leaders of the quartette. Lately he has been living in London and had grown very fleshy. His wife was a performer at the Empire Theatre, London. If Paine had not discovered that he had a genius for shooting, he would undoubtedly have become an ornament of our lyric stage.

"The Corsican Brothers," in which Robert Mantell will be seen for the first time in New York at the Fourteenth St. Theatre this season, has not been presented in that city since it was played at Booth's Theatre with Chas. R. Thorne, Jr., as Louis and Fechanet as Francois.

Margaret Mather's dates: San Jose, 27-28, Oakland, 30 and Oct. 1

Murray & Murphy at San Jose, 26; Sacramento, 28; Fresno, 29; Los Angeles and San Diego the week following.

Sophie Eyre with her new play, "The Witch," is one of the bookings for an early date for the Grand Opera House in the city, under the Morosco management.

The New York Truth says: "The people who profess to have the inside track say that Augustin Daly will not, after all, produce 'As You Like It' this season, and that Miss Rehan's admirers must wait at least another year before she dons the doublet and hose, with its appurtenances in the shape of a gallant battle-axe, etc., of the banished Duke's daughter. The reason is that 'Cymbeline' will be the play. Miss Rehan being 'mashed' on Imogen. We all know what fine acting and beautiful appointments can do for a play. Mr. Daly has shown us that time and again in our city, and Mr. Irving has in London. But in my range of disappointment will be for to at the news. Ada Rehan gives one the idea of Beatrice in that she was born to laugh even though, as that lady says, 'her mother cried.' Sunshine we expect from her, and sunshine we get even in the weakest of the plays that are enshrined in the Daly Temple; but now—alas, woe, and alack! Still, Ada Rehan as Imogen is better than no Ada Rehan at all."

N. D. Roberts arrived Wednesday to pave the way for his coming Eastern Humpty Dumpty Company at the Orpheum next week.

Charley Hoyt and Stockwell were talking together very confidentially in the lobby parlor of the California Theatre during the matinee to-day. Who was the Texas Steer?

During a recent performance of "Aida," at the Grand Opera, Paris, the ladies of the heorie of Egypt, who were present, frantically applauded the Egyptian scenes, and asked to be allowed to join in the ballet. After Act III. they were taken into the greenroom.

Mr. Sid C. France, the Eastern melodramatic star, is in town superintending the production of his melodrama of "Marked for Life," in which he commences his engagement at Morosco's next week. Mr. France is a popular, vigorous melodramatic actor, and has several sensational pieces of his own, which he will produce in succession at Morosco's. He is engaged especially for, and comes to this coast to play this engagement with Morosco & Byrne, and will wake up things lively for their popular East side of town house.

The Baldwin reopens this week with Fanny Davenport in "La Tosca," supported by Melbourne McDowell and a good stock company made up of local talent.

Manager John Maguire formally announces the opening of his season at the Grand Opera House on October 12th in a programme space ad. in our columns. He is keeping his opening attraction secret. He will be due here the latter part of the week. When he gets here we will learn all about it, if we do not find it out before.

"A Brass Monkey" introduces three pretty girls in deep mourning hilariously singing a comic ditty of their grief.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The great magicians, Herrmann opens his second week at the Bush Street. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush and was wrapt in attention of his feats greeted his opening night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann presents his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's programme, for the first time in California. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience, and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration. He also introduces his expose of spiritual phenomena, including slate-writing, table-tipping, cabinet and dark seances—all so cleverly done by the aid of mechanical and electric appliances, and the assistance of stage hands in the dark seance as to be a marvelous simulation of the real phenomena.

His "Florine, the Child of the Air" is another new illusion. The Call describes it as "an entirely an agreeable deception, where a female figure, in a costume scantier than the most fashionable bathing dress, goes through a series of evolutions in mid-air with no firmer standing place than had Ariel when that sprite did gently the spiriting of the magician Prospero on the enchanted isle. She dances, marches, turns, summersaults, squirms through a hoop, and cuts many other capers, more or less gracefully. All of these evolutions are made against a dark background, with the lights turned down, and to slow music." Surely, here is almost a new programme of occult effects.

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusory art, as in contrast they appear as mere bungling. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals is irresistable—in fact, his least elaborate tricks are the hardest difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted for him by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Jules Goodman.

His engagement is limited to two weeks only. Herrmann will give a change of programme next week including his mysterious "Black Art" and his new illusion known as "The Resurrection of Mr. Crowley."

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance this week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, and the Alcazar Company, in his new play, "The Runaway Wife," a romance of love and passion woven into a strong domestic drama; the joint work of F. G. Maeder and himself.

The play appeals to the minds and hearts of all classes. It deals with familiar subjects in a perfectly natural yet interesting and romantic manner. It has a well-conceived plot, plenty of dramatic action, with many telling situations. In short, it is a story of to day well written, and worked out in a manner that holds the attention of the audience. There is an entertaining story running through the play, and the plot develops naturally from the first act until the climax in the last.

Mr. Rankin plays the emotional part of Arthur Eastman with truer lights and shades than we had given credit of producing. Miss Mabel Bert has perfected into a very fine actress, and gives to the heroine womanly grace and feeling as well as strong mental power. E. J. Buckley dashes out finely as the Hon. Talbot Vane. Leo Cooper, Richard Foote, Nellie Buckley, Carrie Clarke Ward have congenial parts, and "play them well."

Next week Mr. Rankin will give us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Gideaux, in "The Octoroon," a character that is new to the stage.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California [illegible] "A Brass element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays passable. Drew does not get the flavor of Jewish exactly; it is too dry and lacks unction. Murphy is better in Dodge Worse.

Flora Walsh is very clever and Mrs. Walsh very pronounced in their respective parts. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Worse (Tom Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Razz-e-Dazzle" song. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

The theatre was crowded to overflowing.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction a secret.

Mr. Maguire has been in New York on business appertaining to the Grand and his Northern theatres, and will leave for this city on Tuesday. Mr. Jay Rial will accompany him, and will take residence in San Francisco as the local manager of the Grand. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease. Doubtless the management will show their cards in due time.

J. H. McCabe has been authorized to engage a stock company for city and road in connection with the opening of the Grand for a season of twenty weeks. This is the first active move made here. See announcement.

Orpheum Theatre.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, will be the this week's attraction at the Orpheum. The first act shows drummers' pastimes. The second act brings on a lively fire scene. The third a sensational prison scene, and the fourth shows the drummer pitted against one of the toughest hotels on the road.

Managers Walter & Co. have specially engaged Miss Kate Daglish and Geo. H. Wood for the production of "A Drummer's Life."

The play is limited to this week only.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum next week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during the season.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the most successful of all American plays—will be given at the Morosco's this week, with E. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom; Darrell Vinton as Gus Harris; E. J. Holden as Legree; Walter Adrian as St. Clair; G. W. Reynolds as Marks; Miss May Nannary as Eliza, and Irene Dudley as Eva. The play is produced in its entire six acts.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens Monday night in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There appears almost a new company at the Wigwam this week. The new faces are: Senor Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; La Drew, specialist; Miss Nellie Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion; Armstrong & Warren, refined Irish team, and the three Coles, trapeze artists.

GREAT HUMPTY-DUMPTY COMP'Y

Bella Union Theatre.

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thiers, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artist, are new features this week, with Dryden & Mitchell's piece of "Pat's War Horse."

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Geo. Drew, comedian; May Deacon, Jessie Forrester, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "A Terrible Night;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

In "A Terrible Night" the Phoites do a deal of clever trick pantomime work, and produce some fine mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, the Highland lassie dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first-part.

The comical farce-comedy of "A Terrible Night." is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

This popular house of the north-end present the following new cards this week: Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company, and no two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Fox's act of "Misfits," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are West & Fowler's German sketch, Smith

EVENING EDITION

FRIDAY..... SEPTEMBER 27, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Blanche Marsden is seriously ill.

Rose Osborne is supporting Creston Clarke in leads.

They have had twelve months' theatrical building boom in Philadelphia, and now they begin to ask, "Will Philadelphia be able to support all her theatres—nearly a score?"

Herrmann's Transatlantiques played the week in Cincinnati to over $7 000 in frightfully hot weather. On Sunday night, 15th, at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, the take was $1500.

The mother of Mr. Bernard Dyllyn died recently in Victoria, B. C. Mr. Dyllyn had just commenced his season's engagement East, and was quite prostrated at the news.

The Eastern papers make note that Samuel Cox, the manager of the "Little Puck" Co., recently broke his arm in endeavoring to get his engagement ring off his finger. That's nothing. We have known men to break their necks because they could not relieve themselves of the binding engagement ring.

The foundation stone of the enormous entertainment structure to be erected on the site of the Madison Square Garden, N. Y., was laid on the 17th inst., and efforts will be made to have the building under roof by New Year's Day.

Recently a New York paper published a cablegram from London which stated that "people acquainted with her say that it has been obvious for some time that Mrs. Potter could not return to the stage until next Spring at the earliest.

Charles Schroeder, a San Franciscan, will take Charles Mathews' place on the staff of Abbey, Schoeffel and Grau.

The New York Sun avows that "It is said that some of the most beautiful girls in New York are to be found at the dramatic agencies," and that beauty thereabouts "is so prevalent as to be actually at a discount." We must look upon this as a Sunflower of speech. If they have such a stock of pretty girls on hand at the New York agencies, why don't the agents back some of them with some manager coming to this coast, and let us see them?

Harry Shirley, well-known in musical and dramatic circles in the United States, died at San Diego on the 22nd of consumption.

Preparations are being made for the production of 'Mr. Barnes of New York" the 'next" at the California Theatre.

Fanny Davenport is well supported, by local talent mostly, in "La Tosca." The Call commends John W. Thompson for the force, purpose and character coloring of his impersonation, and Miss Kathryne Heron for her clever boy impersonation of Gemarino.

The New York Truth says: "The people who profess to have the inside track say that Augustin Daly will not, after all, produce 'As You Like It' this season, and that Miss Rehan's admirers must wait at least another year before she dons the doublet and hose, with its appurtenances in the shape of a gallant battle-axe, etc., of the banished Duke's daughter. The reason is that 'Cymbeline' will be the play, Miss Rehan being 'mashed' on Imogen. We all know what fine acting and beautiful appointments can do for a play. Mr. Daly has shown us that time and again in our city, and Mr. Irving has in London. But many a pang of disappointment will be felt at the news. Ada Rehan gives one the idea of Beatrice in that she was born to laugh even though, as that lady says, 'her mother cried.' Sunshine we expect from her, and sunshine we get even in the weakest of the plays that are enshrined in the Daly Temple; but now—alas, woe, and alack! Still, Ada Rehan as Imogen is better than no Ada Rehan at all."

The managers of "Shenandoah" and of the New York Star Theatre are both kicking themselves because they have only five weeks time at the Star.

"Our Flat" follows E. H. Sothern at the New York Lyceum Theatre, with H. B. Conway, an English actor, in the leading part. Mr. Conway supported the gifted Adelaide Neilson in her last season in San Francisco, and was with her in Paris at the time of her mysterious death—which was alleged to have been caused by her drinking a glass of milk in a small restaurant. We believe that Mr. Conway has not acted but little since Miss Neilson's death.

Charles Gilday, husband of Fannie Beane and a well-known specialty comedian, died at sea aboard the steamer State of Nebraska on the 19th inst., and was buried at sea.

On November 11th the whole town will ring with P. S. Gilmore's grand reproduction of his great Boston Peace Jubilee of 1869, given with his band of sixty-three musicians, his anvil corps on his ten steel anvils, his own artillery battery of six field pieces, his half a hundred solo voices and the five hundred trained chorus voices of our Handel and Haydn Society—all thundering the notes of jubilee. It will be given in the Mechanics' Pavilion on the 11th and for the three succeeding nights, if it does not raise the roof off of the Pavilion on the first night.

Booth and Modjeska commence their New York season Oct. 14th at the Broadway in "Richelieu."

Maud Harrison and Marie Greenwall came over the green wall of the Atlantic's waves, very seasick, and are glad to be "hum" again from Lun'on, don'cher know.

The New York Mercury says that Daniel Bandmann, Marcus Daly and John Maguire (the lessee of the Grand Opera House) have formed a combination to supply Montana with Shakespearean performances, to begin at Anaconda December 9th.

Bob Hilliard, of New York fame, who was here with Nat Goodwin in "Turned Up," is the typical Mr. B. in the Chicago production of "Mr. Barnes of New York."

Edward Harrigan opens in "Old Lavender" at the Columbia Theatre, Chicago, next week.

Frank Mayo played a fine engagement at Leavitt's New Windsor Theatre, Chicago, last week.

Charles Arnold, little May Hannon and the St. Bernard dog, "Nord," are pictured as the successes of "Hans, the Boatman," in the Chicago papers.

Staunch Mme. Cottrelly has had a severe attack of nervous prostration. She was confined to her bed for a week.

Some writer decries the alleged degeneracy of the stage in an Eastern paper, and though admitting that Edwin Forrest, in his old age, was so much greater than any other actor he had ever seen, that there is absolutely no one to compare with him in most of the great parts he played, he asserts, very truly, that plays now are better staged and are broader in application, and that actors are better paid than in the 'legitimate" days of old.

Mr. Sid C. France, the Eastern melodramatic star, is in town supervising the production of his melodrama of "Marked for Life," in which he commences his engagement at Morosco's next week. Mr. Mr. France is a popular, vigorous melodramatic actor, and has several sensational pieces of his own, which he will produce in succession at Morosco's. He is is engaged especially for, and comes to this coast to play this engagement with Morosco & Byrne, and will wake up things lively for their popular East side of town house.

The Grismer-Davies Co. play in Stockton this week.

Leo Cooper's "Sir Lancelot Traverse, in very good form," in "The Runaway Wife," is a character of the best form. It is a model impersonation of a gentlemanly English fop.

Booth and Barrett are playing their $20,000 certainty engagement at the big pavilion, or big something, at Louisville this week. Next week they separate, Booth and Modjeska open their season in Pittsburg Sept. 30th, and appear in New York at the Broadway Theatre, October 14th, for an extended engagement.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phoebe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Tigress," a society play of European life.

Patti Rosa, who has a new play, "Margery Daw," by the author of "The Stowaway," follows 'The Brass Monkey" at the California. There are no burglars in "Margery Daw."

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes to the Baldwin after Fanny Davenport, and Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson later on.

Salsbury's Troubadours follow McKee Rankin at the Alcazar on October 14th.

Lawrence Barrett's company for this season numbers forty-seven people.

Chas. Bassett, Annie Firmin, Geo. H. Wood and Kate Daglish are doing good work this week in "A Drummer's Life."

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7th. The play will be "'49;" a very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco manager in the business here, young as he is.

One of Herrmann's most puzzling acts is that in which he lifts Mrs. Herrmann some feet from the stage and leaves her in mid-air unsupported, as far as the spectators are able to discern. In that condition she walks back and fourth in the air, dances, whirls through hoops and jumps a skipping rope, thus demonstrating apparently that neither wires from above nor rods from the sides are used. The question is, how is she supported?

Old Dick Hooley, the Chicago manager, has a one-third interest in "Shenandoah."

"The Great Metropolis" continues to fill Proctor's Twenty-third St. Theatre, New York, at every performance.

"The Corsican Brothers," in which Robert Mantell will be seen for the first time in New York at the Fourteenth St. Theatre this season, has not been presented in that city since it was played at Booth's Theatre with Chas. R. Thorne, Jr., as Louis and Fabian dei Franchi.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opens his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush and was wrapt in attention of his feats greeted his opening night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann presents his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's programme, for the first time in California. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience, and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration. He also introduces his expose of spiritual phenomena, including slate-writing, table-tipping, cabinet and dark seances—all so cleverly done by the aid of mechanical and electric appliances, and the assistance of stage hands in the dark seance as to be a marvelous simulation of the real phenomena.

His "Florine, the Child of the Air," is another new illusion. The Call describes it as "an entirely an agreeable deception, where a female figure, in a costume scantier than the most fashionable bathing dress, goes through a series of evolutions in mid-air with no firmer standing place than had Ariel when that sprite did gently the spiriting of the magician Prospero on the enchanted isle. She dances, executes turns, summersaults, equirms through a hoop, and cuts many other capers, more or less gracefully. All of these evolutions are made against a dark background, with the lights turned down, and to slow music." Surely, here is almost a new programme of occult effects.

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusory art, as in contrast they appear as mere bunglers. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals is irresistable—in fact, his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted for him by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Jules Goodman.

His engagement is limited to two weeks only.

Herrmann will give a change of programme next week, including his mysterious "Black Art" and his new illusion known as "The Resurrection of Mr. Crowley."

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, puts in appearance this week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, and the Alcazar Company, in his new play, "The Runaway Wife," a romance of love and passion woven into a strong domestic drama; the joint work of F. G. Maeder and himself.

The play appeals to the minds and hearts of all classes. It deals with familiar subjects in a perfectly natural yet interesting and romantic manner. It has a well-conceived plot, plenty of dramatic action, with many telling situations. In short, it is a story of to day well written, and worked out in a manner that holds the attention of the audience. There is an entertaining story running through the play, and the plot develops naturally from the first act until the climax in the last.

Mr. Rankin plays the emotional part of Arthur Eastman with nicer lights and shades than we had given credit of producing. Miss Mabel Bert has perfected into a very fine actress, and gives to the heroine womanly grace and feeling as well as strong mental power. E. J. Buckley dashes out finely as the Hon. Talbot Vane. Leo Cooper, Richard Foote, N. J. Buckley, Carrie Clarke Ward have congenial parts, and play them well."

Next week Mr. Rankin will give us one of his strong character parts as Jean Cadeaux in "The Outlaw," a character that is new to the stage.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opens at the California this week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satire in fact. The auction business, journalistic politics and even the musical element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays laughable. Drew does not get the fly-rod of John Sothern exactly, it is too dry and lacks unction. Murphy is better in Dodge Work.

Flora Walsh is very clever and Mrs. Walsh very pronounced in their respective parts. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

The theatre was crowded to overflowing.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret.

Mr. Maguire has been in New York on business appertaining to the Grand and his Northern theatres, and will leave for this city on Tuesday. Mr. Jay Rial will accompany him, and will take residence in San Francisco as the local manager of the Grand. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease. Doubtless the management will show their cards in due time.

J. H. McCabe has been authorized to engage a stock company for city and road in connection with the opening of the Grand for a season of twenty weeks. This is the first active move made here. See announcement.

Orpheum Theatre.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, will be this week's attraction at the Orpheum. The first act shows drummers' pastimes. The second act brings on a lively fire scene. The third a sensational prison scene, and the fourth shows the drummer pitted against one of the toughest hotels on the road.

Managers Walter & Co. have specially engaged Miss Kate Daglish and Geo. H. Wood for the production of "A Drummer's Life."

The play is limited to this week only.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum next week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the most successful of all American plays—will be given at the Morosco's this week, with B. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom; Darrell Vinton as Gus Harris; E. J. Holden as Legree; Walter Adrian as St. Clair; G. W. Reynolds as Marks; Miss May Nannary as Eliza, and Irene Dudley as Eva. The play is produced in its entire six acts.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens Monday night in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There appears almost a new company at the Wigwam this week. The new faces are: Senor Delmonte the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; La Drew, specialist; Miss [illegible] Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion; Armstrong & Warren, refined Irish team, and the three Coles, trapeze artists.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; and the clever and versatile Lange, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "A Terrible Night;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

In "A Terrible Night" the Phoites do a deal of clever trick pantomime work, and produce some fine mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, the Highland lassie dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first part.

The comical farce-comedy of "A Terrible Night," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new pople next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

This popular house of the north-end present the following new cards this week: Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company, and no two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Fox's act of "Misfits," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are West & Fowler's German sketch, Smith & Ellis' musical sketch, "Be Pleasant," and Smith's funny act, "Confusion."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Dan Morris Sullivan's company played in Vallejo, Benicia and Martinez this week. Devote next week to Stockton. Thence go Northward through the Sacramento Valley for an extended tour in the Northwest and Eastward over the Northern road.

Elleford and Brophy and company are taking a short rest in this city after their long interior season. They open in Eureka on the 7th and play the towns on Humboldt Bay.

The Elks hold a social Sunday night at quarters in the Alcazar building, with Geo. H. Wood in the chair. Plenty of entertainment and a good time may be looked forward to.

Jane Hading, the French tragedienne, was the original heroine of Lecoq's "La Jolie Persane" ("The Oolah") and was the most popular soprano in Paris.

Tony Hart, Edward Harrigan's former partner, has of late had a relapse of paresis and is once more the inmate of an asylum.

Manager Geo. A. Henderson, of the Opera House, Richmond, Va., is anxiously sought for by his moneyless company. George disappeared suddenly and it is hinted that he could not resist the attractions of Horace Greeley's enterprising "West."

Kate Forsyth is coming back from Europe.

William Terriss, the English actor, and Miss Jessie Millward, a popular actress who made a success in "Called Back" and other pieces in New York several seasons ago, have returned on another professional visit. They appear in "Roger La Honte" at Niblo's Garden, Oct. 7th, under Augustin Daly's management. There are several versions of "Roger La Honte" already being played. One is by Paul Potter and is called "The Spider's Web," another is "A Man's Shadow," and yet another is entitled "Desperate Straits."

John Maguire, the Montana manager, has not materialized at the Grand Opera House yet.

Lawrence Barrett's company for this season numbers forty-seven people.

Rose Osborne is supporting Creston Clarke in leads.

They have had twelve months' theatrical building boom in Philadelphia, and now they begin to ask, "Will Philadelphia be able to support all her theatres—nearly a score?"

Herrmann's Transatlantiques played the week in Cincinnati to over $7 000 in frightfully hot weather. On Sunday night, 15 h, at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, the take was $1500

The Eastern papers make note that Samuel Cox, the manager of the "Little Pack" Co., recently broke his arm in endeavoring to get his engagement ring off his finger. That's nothing. We have known men to break their necks because they could not relieve themselves of the binding engagement ring.

Manager W. F. Macomber, of the Westminster Musee, Providence, R. I., died recently, aged thirty-seven.

The foundation stone of the enormous entertainment structure to be erected on the site of the Madison Square Garden, N. Y., was laid on the 17th inst., and efforts will be made to have the building under roof by New Year's Day.

Recently a New York paper published a cablegram from London which stated that "people acquainted with her say that it has been obvious for some time that Mrs. Potter could not return to the stage until next Spring at the earliest.

Charles Schroeder, a San Franciscan, will take Charles Mathews' place on the staff of Abbey, Schoeffer and Grau.

The New York Sun avows that "It is said that some of the most beautiful girls in New York are to be found at the dramatic agencies," and that beauty thereabouts "is so prevalent as to be actually at a discount." We must look upon this as a Sun-flower of speech. If they have such a stock of pretty girls on hand at the New York agencies, why don't the agents book some of them with some manager coming to this coast, and let us see them?

Harry Shirley, well-known in musical and dramatic circles in the United States,

Another delegation of Chinese merchants and their families occupied reserved seats in the balcony of the Bush at to-day's matinee to see Herrmann. Magic and sleight-of-hand performances are national ones with all the Oriental races, from whence they came originally; and the open-air fakirs of India do things, without the aid of mechanical appliances, that no European expert can accomplish with them.

Harry Hook, the officer so long on the Bush and Kearney street district, has been appointed sergeant, and everybody is glad of it. His efficiency has been well tried. He is intelligent and manly, and will do his position credit.

A Frenchman has written a drama for America which, although the hero is a teetotaler, bears the extraordinary title of "Les Drames du Whisky." In order to suggest a forcible contrast, and to add to the suggestiveness of the title, all the other characters in the cast should be more or less of the confirmed toper species.

Apropos of the use of lithographs for show purposes, it is alleged that one of Mrs. Langtry advertises a Rentz-Santley burlesquer; Louise Paulin's is doing duty for Annie Foy, a variety actress; a Bowery juggler is utilizing the late D'Alvini's picture and Charles Cowles finds comfortable reflection in Den Thompson's likeness.

The New York Mercury says that M. B. Leavitt, manager of the Bush Street Theatre, San Francisco, has brought suit for $3,000 damages against Gustav Hinrichs, proprietor of the American Opera Company, now playing in Philadelphia, for breach of contract in not fulfilling an engagement to tour the Pacific Coast under Leavitt's management. The above named sum is specified as the penalty for non-fulfillment of contract by either party.

On November 11th the whole town will ring with P. S. Gilmore's grand reproduction of his great Boston Peace Jubilee of 1869, given with his band of sixty-three musicians, his anvil corps on his ten steel anvils, his own artillery battery of six field pieces, his half a hundred solo voices and the five hundred trained chorus voices of our Handel and Haydn Society—all thundering the notes of jubilee. It will be given in the Mechanics' Pavilion on the 11th and for the three succeeding nights, if it does not raise the roof off of the Pavilion on the first night.

Booth and Modjeska commence their New York season Oct. 14th at the Broadway in "Richelieu."

Maud Harrison and Marie Greenwall came over the green wall of the Atlantic's waves, very seasick, and are glad to be "hum" again from Lun'on, don't yer know.

The New York Mercury says that Daniel Bandmann, Marcus Daly and John Maguire (the lessee of the Grand Opera House) have formed a combination to supply Montana with Shakespearean performances, to begin at Anaconda December 9th.

Bob Hilliard, of New York fame, who was here with Nat Goodwin in "Turned Up," is the typical Mr. B. in the Chicago production of "Mr. Barnes of New York."

Edward Harrigan opens in "Old Lavender" at the Columbia Theatre, Chicago, next week.

Frank Mayo played a fine engagement at Leavitt's New Windsor Theatre, Chicago, last week.

Charles Arnold, little May Hannon and the St. Bernard dog, "Nord," are pictured as the successes of "Hans, the Boatman," in the Chicago papers.

Staunch Mme. Cottrelly has had a severe attack of nervous prostration. She was confined to her bed for a week.

Mr. Sid C. France, the Eastern melodramatic star, opens in his "Marked for Life," in which he commences his engagement at Morosco's next week. Mr. Mr. France is a popular, vigorous melodramatic actor, and has several sensational pieces of his own, which he will produce in succession at Morosco's. He is engaged especially for, and comes by this coast to play this engagement with Morosco & Byrne, and will wake up things lively for their popular East side of town house.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phoebe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Tigress," a society play of European life.

Patti Rosa, who has a new play, "Margery Daw," by the author of "The Stowaway," follows "The Brass Monkey" at the California. There are no burglars in "Margery Daw."

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes to the Baldwin after Fanny Davenport, and Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson later on.

Salsbury's Troubadours follow McKee Rankin at the Alcazar on October 14th.

Blanche Marsden is seriously ill.

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7 h. The play will be "'49;" a very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco manager in the business here, young as he is.

One of Herrmann's most puzzling acts is that in which he lifts Mrs. Herrmann some feet from the stage and leaves her in mid-air unsupported, as far as the spectators are able to discern. In that condition she walks back and fourth in the air, dances, whirls through hoops and jumps a skipping rope, thus demonstrating apparently that neither wires from above nor rods from the sides are used. The question is, how is she supported?

Mr. Frederick Warde, now on his ninth [illegible] is meeting with splendid suc

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Frank Arnold is in town with an eye to the windward either for a piece of his own or an engagement for the Lida Gardner Burlesque Company.

A variety danseuse in Chicago put phosphorus on her bunion the other night to soften it and retired. The night was warm and her pretty foot was extended out the side of the bed to keep the feverish corn cool when her husband came home. He spied the glowing thing, and sizing it up for a firefly, banged it with a bootjack. People in the house thought there was a fire, and she had corn spasms afterwards for three days whenever he spoke to her.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum Monday next.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eureka.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

Business Manager John R. Topham, of Miner's Eighth Avenue Variety Theatre, New York, was recently stricken with

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, opened his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush and was wrapt in attention of his feats greeted him every night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann presents his wonderful Cremation Act in his first week's programme, for the first time in California. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience, and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration. He also introduces his expose of spiritual phenomena, including slate-writing, table-tipping, cabinet and dark seances—all so cleverly done by the aid of mechanical and electric appliances, and the assistance of stage hands in the dark seance as to be a marvelous similation of the real phenomena.

His "Florine, the Child of the Air" is another new illusion. The Call describes it as "an entirely an agreeable deception, where a female figure, in a costume scantier than the most fashionable bathing dress, goes through a series of evolutions in mid-air with no firmer standing place than had Ariel when that sprite did gently the spiriting of the magician Prospero on the enchanted isle. She dances, marches, turns, summersaults, squirms through a hoop, and cuts many other capers, more or less gracefully. All of these evolutions are made against a dark background, with the lights turned down, and to slow music." Surely here is almost a new programme of occult effects.

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusory art, as in contrast they appear as mere bunglers. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals is irresistable—in fact, his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted for him by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Jules Goodman.

His engagement is limited to two weeks only.

Herrmann will give a change of programme next week, including his mysterious "Black Art" and his new illusion known as "The Resurrection of Mr. Crowley."

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin, formerly manager of the California, put in appearance this week, supported by Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley, and the Alcazar Company, in his new play, "The Runaway Wife," a romance of love and passion woven into a strong domestic drama; the joint work of F. G. Maeder and himself.

The play appeals to the minds and hearts of all classes. It has a well-conceived plot, plenty of dramatic action, with many telling situations, and has drawn good houses. The support is good.

Next week McKee Rankin gives us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Cadeaux, in "The Canuck," a character that is new to the stage. He is an observant old farmer, in dialect and every characteristic a thorough Canadian habitant.

The chief characters of the play fall into the good hands of Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley and L. B. Stockwell, with the Alcazar Company generally called for in the distribution.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company opened at the California this week in his latest piece, "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and character, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays palatable. Drew does not get the flavor of Jonah exactly; it is too dry and lacks unction. Murphy is better in Dodge Work.

Flora Walsh is very clever and Mrs. Walsh very pronounced in their respective parts. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

Business has been fine.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Manager Maguire is looked for in this city daily.

Orpheum Theatre.

The comedy-drama of "A Drummer's Life," with Charles Bassett and Miss Annie Firmin in the leading roles, has been this week's attraction at the Orpheum. It is amusing and entertaining.

Managers Walter & Co. have specially engaged Miss Kate Daglish and Geo. H. Wood for the production of "A Drummer's Life."

The play is limited to this week only.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum next week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

A careful production of the American play of "Uncle Tom's Cabin"—the most successful of all American plays—has been given at the Morosco's this week, with R. E. Franklin, specially engaged for Uncle Tom, and has drawn well.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens Monday night in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

There appears almost a new company at the Wigwam this week. The new faces are: Senor Delmonte, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; La Drew, specialist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion; Armstrong & Marren, refined Irish team, and the three Coles, trapeze artists.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; and the clever and versatile Langs, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The Coyne Brothers, acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance artistes, the Oakley Sisters; Miss Belle Kirby, the sword walker, and Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing, put in new appearances next week.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thies, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artist, are new features this week, with Dryden & Mitchell's piece of "Pat's War Horse."

Lang's Comiques, bright and musical; Geo.

Season Twenty Weeks. Stock Company for

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

The Bella Union have quite a number of new people next week—Ed. Thatcher, Ellwood, Rayannetta and others.

Hallman's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Pholtes, with their pantomime of "A Terrible Night;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Gibbons & Ford, the topical vocalists; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

In "A Terrible Night" the Pholtes do a deal of clever trick pantomime work, and produce some fine mechanical effects.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Dryden & Mitchell, Miss Stella Clair, the Great Ellwood, La Drew and others will be new at the Cremorne next week.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Josie Lescor and Charley Morrell and banjo; John Gilmore, comedian and neat song and dance artist; Miss Edna Earle and Ruby Grant, the Highland lassie dancer, are late additions.

The bill opens with a well arranged first part.

The comical farce-comedy of "A Terrible Night," is the interlude act.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Edna Earle, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new pepie next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

This popular house of the north-end present the following new cards this week: Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites, make their appearances in the company, and no two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Fox's act of "Misfits," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are West & Fowler's German sketch, Smith & Ellis' musical sketch, "Be Pleasant," and Smith's funny act, "Confusion."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Eva Williams, Fox, West and Jennie Fowler.

Drummond & Stahle, the Musical Blacksmiths, put in new appearances next week in

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Two weeks ago, Kafka & Co. leased from Gustave Amberg the Thalia—formerly the historical old Bowery Theatre in New York—for five years, with the intent of playing Jewish pieces and operas for Hebrew patronage. The wires tell us that Amberg's license having expired last week, the company kept on playing pending an application to the Mayor. The climax came at Saturday's matinee when the police were ordered to stop the performance. A squad was sent to the theatre and entered by the stage door. The curtain for the first act had risen on a play called "David Benjamin," and the manager, who played the part of King Solomon, was sitting on the throne in all his glory. He was notified that the performance must stop. He imparted the information to the audience and a terrible howl went up from nearly 2 000 people present. They yelled for their money and a rush was made for the box office, but it was locked and closed. An indescribable scene followed. Some of the infuriated mob began to tear the paper off the walls, while others kept up a continual shout for the return of their money. A cry of fire was raised, and a number of women, overcome by fright, fainted. Finally the police by the force of their clubs drove the mob out and cleared the theatre. Outside the mob kept howling for their money. Mr. Amberg attempted to pass through the crowd, and, being recognized, was assailed with all sorts of missiles. His hat was smashed and his coat torn up the back, and if it had not been for the police he would have been badly hurt. The police finally cleared the streets.

Dan Morris Sullivan's company played in Vallejo, Benicia and Martinez last week. Devote this week to Stockton. Thence go Northward through the Sacramento Valley for an extended tour in the Northwest and Eastward over the Northern road.

Elleford and Brophy and company are taking a short rest in this city after their long interior season. They open in Eureka on the 7th and play the towns on Humboldt Bay.

The Elks held a social Sunday night at quarters in the Alcazar building, with Geo. H Wood in the chair. Plenty of entertainment and a good time characterized it.

Jane Hading, the French tragedienne, was the original heroine of Lecoq's "La Jolie Persane" ("The Oolah") and was the most popular soprano in Paris.

Tony Hart, Edward Harrigan's former partner, has of late had a relapse of paresis and is once more the inmate of an asylum.

Manager Geo. A. Henderson, of the Opera House, Richmond, Va., is anxiously sought for by his moneyless company. George disappeared suddenly and it is hinted that he could not resist the attractions of Horace Greeley's enterprising "West."

Gillette's new American spectacle for Imre Kiralfy is completed, ready for its $40,000 stage frame.

It is reported that Manager Frank J. Pilling, of the World's Museum, Boston, has secured a long lease of the old National Theatre on the Bowery, New York, and will reopen it shortly.

Nellie Hague, a singing soubrette, wife of Comedian Joseph Measey, died recently at her home in Albany, N. Y.

Joseph R Grismer and Phœbe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Pilgrim," a society play of European life.

Mr. Sid C. France, the Eastern melodramatic star, opens in his "Marked for Life," in which he commences his engagement at Morosco's this week. Mr. Mr. France is a powerful, vigorous melodramatic actor, and has several sensational pieces of his own, which he will produce in succession at Morosco's. He is engaged especially for, and comes to it is said to fill this engagement with Morosco & Byrne, and will work up things lively for their popular East side of town house.

Patti Rosa, who has a new play, "Margery Daw," by the author of "The Stowaway," follows "The Brass Monkey" at [illegible]. There are no burglars in

Henry Irving revived Watt Phillips' strong drama of the French Revolution, "The Dead Heart," at the London Lyceum on the 28th, with a splendid representation of the storming of the Bastile. Press dispatches say that he gave to Landry poetic power and intensity, marred at times by his mannerisms. Ellen Terry played the heroine, and her twenty-year-old son, under the stage name of Gordon Craig, made a successful debut in a minor part.

A new historical play, "The Royal Oak," just produced at Drury Lane, London, proved a spectacular success. The piece deals with the wanderings and escape of King Charles II. after the Battle of Worcester, covering much the same ground as Walter Scott's "Woodstock," which novel suggested one or two characters. The principal and other villains in the piece are Puritans, made up grotesquely.

Dakota is waking up to criticism. They don't hanker much after fine arts, but they do begin to take interest in the drama. Here are two criticisms from a Dakota exchange: "The actress who impersonated the heroine capered through her part like a new-branded heifer in fly-time. Her hair was colored in a hue that would invite the attention of a one-eyed bull a mile away, and the ladies of this town won't get through talking about those second-act stockings and what was in them till the next circus strikes us. As for the men, they swear to gracious there isn't a leg among the fair sex in Rapid City." In the next piece noticed, a thrilling drama of frontier life, the editor was impressed with fitness of a great speech the hero made in a barroom scene when he had been refused a hang-up drink because he was unknown to the dispenser of the wet-goods. He hunted the actor up after the performance, he tells us, and had him repeat it slowly that he might copy it for his notice. Here is the "burst of eloquence of a wrongful soul asserting itself": "You don't know me! You don't know me, I say! I'm Bloody Bill, the Howling Terror! I'm a greased thunderbolt fresh from Hell's Canyon! When I twitter the clouds hide themselves! When I yell the rocks split, the waters stop running, and the sun turns black! And when I shriek 'Y-e-i-o-u-w!' it rains b-l-u-d!" He will thunder that speech on the doomed heads of many a side-road barkeeper when he takes his next canvassing trip up the canyons.

"Hands Across the Sea," a Henry Pettit English melodrama, which has been produced in Philadelphia and Boston, had its first New York production last week at the Standard Theatre, where it is booked for a run of three weeks. The play contains neither innovations nor startling chestnuts. The story is placid and tells of an English farmer who does a wonderful amount of brave deeds, the opportunities to do so falling around him as plentiful as the leaves in Vallambrosa. Financial as well as other troubles accumulate upon him, and he is finally relieved by Hands Across the Sea, which, in this instance, means rich resources in Australia. It is in five acts, and every act ends with an acceptable episode. The scenes are laid in England, Paris, on board an Australian steamship and in Australia. The cast is an exceedingly strong one, and includes Edna Carey, Percy Haswell, Lizzie Scanlan (a sister of W. J. Scanlan), Gustavus Levick, W. J. Ferguson and John C. Buckstone (formerly a member of the stock company at Wallack's Theatre. From what the Eastern critics say it can be calculated good for a fair run.

Some writer decries the alleged degeneracy of the stage in an Eastern paper, and though admitting that Edwin Forrest, in his old age, was so much greater than any other actor he had ever seen, that there is absolutely no one to compare with him in most of the great parts he played, he asserts, very truly, that plays now are better staged and are broader in application, and that actors are better paid than in the "legitimate" days of old.

Another delegation of Chinese merchants and their families occupied reserved seats in the balcony of the Bush Saturday's matinee to see Herrmann. Magic and sleight-of-hand performances are national ones with all the Oriental races, from whence they came originally; and the open-air fakirs of India do things, without the aid of mechanical appliances, that no European expert can accomplish with them.

Apropos of the use of lithographs for show purposes, it is alleged that one of Mr. Langtry advertises a Rentz Santley burlesquer; Louise Pulitzer is doing duty for Annie Foy, a variety actress; a Bowery juggler is utilizing the late D'Ennini's picture; and Charles Cowles finds comfortable reflection in Den Thompson's likeness.

On November 11th the whole town will ring with P. S. Gilmore's grand reproduction of his great Boston Peace Jubilee of 1869, given with his band of sixty-three musicians, his anvil chorus on his ten steel anvils, his own artillery battery of six field pieces, his half a hundred solo voices and the five hundred trained chorus voices of our Handel and Haydn Society—all thundering the notes of jubilee. It will be given in the Mechanics' Pavilion on the 11th and for the three succeeding nights, if it does not raise the roof off of the Pavilion on the first night.

Edward Harrigan opens in "Old Lavender" at the Columbia Theatre, Chicago, this week.

William Terriss, the English actor, and Miss Jessie Millward, a popular actress who made a success in "Called Back" and other pieces in New York several seasons ago, have returned on another professional visit. They appear in "Roger La Honte" at Niblo's Garden, Oct. 7th, under Augustin Daly's management. There are several versions of "Roger La Honte" already being played.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eureka.

Chas. Morrell, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes to the Baldwin after Fanny Davenport, and Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson later on.

Rose Osborne is supporting Creston Clarke in leads.

Salsbury's Troubadours follow McKee Rankin at the Alcazar on October 14th.

Blanche Maeden is seriously ill.

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7th. The play will be "'49;" a very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco man-

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, closes his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush, wrapt in attention of his feats, has greeted him every night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann continues his Cremation Act in his last week's bill. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration.

The marked new features of the bill are Mme. Herrmann in her New Black Art, assisted by Abdul Kahn the Oriental necromancer, and Herrmann's new act, The Resurrection of Mr. Crowley.

Herrmann also introduces new mysteries and marvels in his "Thirty Minutes of Magic," and the part fourth of his entertainment, "Magic Improvists."

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusory art, as in contrast they appear as mere bunglers. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals is irresistable—in fact, his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted for him by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Jules Goodman.

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

A special bill will be given at Wednesday's matinee for ladies and children, including Herrmann's Art Views.

—o—

Mr. Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement on Monday next, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

Alcazar Theatre.

This week McKee Rankin gives us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Cadeaux, in "The Canuck," a character that is new to the stage. He is an observant old farmer, in dialect and every characteristic a thorough Canadian habitant.

The chief characters of the play fall into the good hands of Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley and T. R. Stockwell, with the Alcazar Company generally called for in the distribution.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company hold the stage of the California for their second week in "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that makes them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires for on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the [illegible]—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters [illegible] that make his plays go.

The scenes in the [illegible] are strong and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three tramps—Dixie Work (Jas. Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron) in their "Razzle Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not so broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Manager Maguire is looked for in this city daily.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

The Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute is being held in their immense Pavilion, and is a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The First Infantry Band, 44 instrumentalists, in conjunction with the famed solo cornetists; Miss Marie McNeil and A. H. Knoll, give instrumental concerts every afternoon and evening. The "Fair" is a great resort, and everybody will be apt to take it in some time during its season.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodrames at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens this week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Coyne Brothers, acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance artistes, the Oatley Sisters; Miss Belle Kirby, the sword walker; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing, and the Quigley Bros., song and dance artists, put in new appearances this week.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thies, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artist; Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaetta, the aerial queen, are the latest at the Union.

George Drew, comedian; Miss May Deacon, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

John Tudor's musical comedy, "Afloat in Mic-Ocean," is the principal piece this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "The Four Lovers;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

"The Four Lovers" is a pantomime comedy and has Nestell and most of the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entirely new bill this week, with songs and afterpieces. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler the German Comiques, and Miss Belle Arnold, banjo soloist and vocalist, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude acts are West & Fowler's

Season Twenty Weeks. Stock Company

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Josie Lescor, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Drummond & Stahle, the Musical Blacksmiths, put in new appearances this week in their act, producing fine music on a horseshoe, an anvil and other implements. It is a novel and original act. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Pete Smith's funny comedy of "Fun at Petaluma," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new creation, "Shinny on Your Side," and Drummond & Stahle's act of "Senator Dinklespiel."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Ella Letcher and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Lulu Martell, vocalist and dancer, and Miss Mamie Sanford, motto singer, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

Post & Ashley and Franks & Morrison are two versatile teams.

In the comedy sc. "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Stranger—How far is it to Ransomville? Ticket Agent—Seventeen miles (counting work). Stranger—Well, s'pose'e, I want a ticket. Ticket Agent (sarcastic)—I beg your pardon, sir. This is the first time I have ever been told to get in my life. I took you for an actor. And then he commenced whistling "Tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching," as he looked over his ticket-file.

Business Manager John B. Topham, of Miner's Eighth Avenue Variety Theatre, New York, was recently stricken with paralysis and lies in a critical condition.

The New York Sun avows that "It is said that some of the most beautiful girls in New York are to be found at the dramatic agencies," and that beauty thereabouts "is so prevalent as to be actually at a discount." We must look upon this as a Sun-flower of speech. If they have such a stock of pretty girls on hand at the New York agencies, why don't the agents book some of them with some manager coming to this coast, and let us see them?

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The success of the N. Y. Casino's Gus Herker version of "The Brigands" by the Lingard and Van Brunne Opera Co., in England, is emphatic.

"Myrtle Ferns" is the first of the new productions of this season that have gone the way of all the world. It died in Philadelphia. Myrtle and ferns for its grave, but "no flowers."

The latest query anent Mr. William Shakespeare is: Did his widow marry again?

Maud Granger, the once beautiful, is interesting herself in behalf of a condemned murderer now awaiting execution in the New York Tombs. Recall the first production of "Diplomacy," at the California Theatre and those two peerless women pitted against each other in the play, Maud Granger and Jeffreys-Lewis, and think of the changes a few years have wrought.

Miss Hope Booth, a pretty girl and an actress of some promise in Miss Minnie Maddern's "Featherbrain," will hope no longer. She was married last week to the Hon. Mr. Gibbs, a member of the Canadian Parliament, and will retire from the stage.

Oh, but Buckley is bad as the sport from way back in "Canuck." Just see what the Call says about it: "Jim Hogan (Mr. E. J. Buckley) is of a lower class in the same genus with Stebbins and a most disagreeable individual. Mr. Buckley played the part with great breadth and freedom and caught the boodlum element in the audience closely. His speech is slang, his manner reeks with blackguardism, his dress is flashy"—and he is a very bad-man sport from way back.

Herrmann will entertain the children of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum at the Bush Street matinee on Wednesday.

Miss Ethel Brandon has been engaged to support Henry Chanfrau as leading lady for his Pacific Coast season.

M. B. Leavitt has returned to New York City satisfied that his Windsor Theatre, Chicago, is a winner.

The Eastern papers hint that "James Owen O'Connor is to visit this Coast." What, after all the disastrous mountain fires we have had this year, are we to have this?

John Maguire, the Montana manager, has not materialized at the Grand Opera House yet.

Dan Morris Sullivan's company played in Vallejo, Benicia and Martinez last week. Devote this week to Stockton. Thence go Northward through the Sacramento Valley for an extended tour in the Northwest and Eastward over the Northern road.

Elleford and Brophy and company are taking a short rest in this city after their long interior season. They open in Eureka on the 7th and play the towns on Humboldt Bay.

Gillette's new American spectacle for Imre Kiralfy is completed, ready for its $40,000 stage frame.

It is reported that Manager Frank J. Pilling, of the World's Museum, Boston, has secured a long lease of the old National Theatre on the Bowery, New York, and will reopen it shortly.

Salsbury's Troubadours follow McKee Rankin at the Alcazar on October 14th.

Mr. Sid C. France, the Eastern melodramatic star, opens in his "Marked for Life," in which he commences his engagement at Morosco's this week. Mr. Mr. France is a popular, vigorous melodramatic actor, and has several sensational pieces of his own, which he will produce in succession at Morosco's. He is engaged especially for, and comes to this coast to play this engagement with Morosco & Byrne, and will make up things lively for their regular East side of town house.

Some writer decries the alleged degeneracy of the stage in an Eastern paper, and though admitting that Edwin Forrest, in his prime, was so much greater than any other actor he had ever seen, that there is absolutely no one to compare with him in most of the great parts he played, he asserts, very truly, that plays now are better staged and are broader in application, and that actors are better paid than in the "legitimate" days of old.

Isabel Morris plays in Reno, 7; Carson, 8 to 12 Fair week. Company: Chas. J. Edmonds, John Jack, F. M. Page, W. De Lane, B. Wesner, W. Watson, Mrs. Chas. J. Edmonds, Miss Kate Chester, Miss May Wells and little Daisy Chester. Repertoire: "Gwynne's Oath," "East Lynne," "Pink Dominos," "Hazel Kirke" and "Great Divorce Case."

The papers all say that "Camilla Urso has decided to remain in California all this Winter," and some of them delicately intimate that she may be persuaded into taking a few of the many pupils that are just dying in their anxiety to take lessons from her. Where is the necessity? The eminent artiste has just had a society benefit tendered her at the Grand, and in "the Spring" Camilla Urso fond of taking benefits can get up another.

The opera of "Don Quixotte," by Reginald de Koven and Harry B Smith of Chicago, composed and written for the Bostonians, who control the opera in this country, has been accepted by Horace Sedger, the successor of Carl Rosa as manager of the Prince of Wales Theatre, London.

The Harlem Opera House opens this week. It is a new and elaborately appointed theatre at 125th street, near 7th avenue, in the very heart of populous Harlem, and easy of access from all parts of the city. The opening play is "The Wife." It is probable that 'Divorce" will follow in due time.

Pauline Hall is the star of the New York Casino. Just after her return from her London trip the company at the Casino became very curious to know who the lady was that was talking so familiarly with the stage manager during most of the performance. When inquiry was made they were astonished to learn that the unknown was burlesquer Pauline Hall disguised in a dress.

Dion Boucicault has signed a contract to write a new play for Sol Smith Russell. The scene is to be in and around New York, and the play will be produced at Daly's Theatre next September, when Mr. Russell begins a six-weeks engagement at that house.

W. H. Crane's new play, "On Probation," produced at the Chicago Opera House for the first time, went with a rush.

The assertion the New York papers make that Bronson Howard refused an offer of $10,000 to write a play for a star will not seem so improbable when it is considered that it is figured that "Shenandoah" will pay him over $30,000 royalty this year. It pays best to write plays for himself.

Henry Irving revived Watt Phillips' strong drama of the French Revolution, "The Dead Heart," at the London Lyceum on the 28th, with a splendid representation of the storming of the Bastile. Press dispatches say that he gave to Landry poetic power and intensity, marred at times by his mannerisms. Ellen Terry played the heroine, and her twenty-year-old son, under the stage name of Gordon Craig, made a successful debut in a minor part.

A new historical play, "The Royal Oak," just produced at Drury Lane, London, proved a spectacular success. The piece deals with the wanderings and escape of King Charles II. after the Battle of Worcester, covering much the same ground as Walter Scott's "Woodstock," which novel suggested one or two characters. The principal and other villains in the piece are Puritans, made up grotesquely.

Dakota is waking up to criticism. They don't banker much after fine arts, but they do begin to take interest in the drama. Here are two criticisms from a Dakota exchange: "The actress who impersonated the heroine capered through her part like a new-branded heifer in fly-time. Her hair was colored in a hue that would invite the attention of a one-eyed bull a mile away, and the ladies of this town won't get through talking about those second-act stockings and what was in them till the next circus strikes us. As for the men, they swear to gracious there isn't a leg among the fair sex in Rapid City." In the next piece noticed, a thrilling drama of frontier life, the editor was impressed with fitness of a great speech the hero made in a barroom scene when he had been refused a hang-up drink because he was unknown to the dispenser of the wet-goods. He hunted the actor up after the performance, he tells us, and had him repeat it slowly that he might copy it for his notice. Here is the "burst of eloquence of a wrongful soul asserting itself": "You don't know me! You don't know me, I say! I'm Bloody Bill, the Howling Terror! I'm a greased thunderbolt fresh from Hell's Canyon! When I twitter the clouds hide themselves! When I yell the rocks split, the waters stop running, and the sun turns black! And when I shriek 'Y-e-l-c-u-w!' it rains b-l-u-d!" He will thunder that speech on the doomed heads of many a side-road barkeeper when he takes his next canvassing trip up the canyons.

Another delegation of Chinese merchants and their families occupied reserved seats in the balcony of the Bush Saturday's matinee to see Herrmann. Magic and sleight-of-hand performances are national ones with all the Oriental races, from whence they came originally; and the open-air fakirs of India do things, without the aid of mechanical appliances, that no European expert can accomplish with them.

On November 11th the whole town will ring with P. S. Gilmore's grand reproduction of his great Boston Peace Jubilee of 1869, given with his band of sixty-three musicians, his anvil corps on his ten steel anvils, his own artillery battery of six field pieces, his half a hundred solo voices and the five hundred trained chorus voices of our Handel and Haydn Society—all thundering the notes of jubilee. It will be given in the Ma-

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eureka.

Matt Trayers, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes to the Baldwin after Fanny Davenport, and Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson later on.

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7th. The play will be "49;" a very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco manager in the business here, young as he is.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phoebe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Tigress," a society play of European life.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, closes his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush, wrapt in attention of his feats, has greeted him every night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann continues his Cremation Act in his last week's bill. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration.

The marked new features of the bill are Mme. Herrmann in her New Black Art, assisted by Abdul Kahn, the Oriental necromancer, and Herrmann's new act, The Resurrection of Mr. Crowley. Black Art is full of wonders. Material things and living persons appear and disappear at will, and Herrmann's famed Decapitation Act is introduced in this portion of the performance.

Herrmann also introduces new mysteries and marvels in his "Thirty Minutes of Magic," and the part fourth of his entertainment, "Magic Improvista."

There can be no comparison drawn between Herrmann and his competitors in the illusory art, as in contrast they appear as mere bunglers. Every trick performed by Herrmann is accomplished so deftly that it inspires a feeling akin to awe in the audience, and the impression that he is possessed of some occult power not vouchsafed to ordinary mortals is irresistable—in fact, his least elaborate tricks are the most difficult to explain, for the very reason that they cannot be attributed to outside agencies. Herrmann carries all his own scenery with him, which is entirely new, having just been painted for him by the eminent New York artist, Arthur Julee Goodman.

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

A special bill will be given at Wednesday's matinee for ladies and children, including Herrmann's Art Views. The children of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum will be present at the entertainment by invitation of Manger Leavitt and Prof. Herrmann.

—o—

Mr. Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement on Monday next, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

Alcazar Theatre.

This week McKee Rankin gives us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Cadeaux, in "The Canuck." The play is located in Canada, near the Vermont line, and does not go much out the beaten pathway of domestic dramas. Jean is an observant old farmer, in dialect and every characteristic a thorough Canadian habitant. Mr. Rankin localizes the character in deportment, dialect and costume very distinctively. He makes it as he promises, "A character new to the stage."

The chief characters of the play fall into the good hands of Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley and L. E. Stockwell, with the Alcazar Company generally called for in the distribution. Mabel Bert sustains the unpleasant role of an openly bad adventuress with well poised power. Buckley makes a strong part out of Jim Hogan, the sport from wayback. He plays it with great dashes of light and shade and with a vim that makes them tell. Stockwell, as the Vermont farmer, has a quaint, wholesome, domestic part, in which he is at home. Nellie Buckley plays the ingenue part of Jean's daughter, Archange, very ably and shows a growing improvement in her profession. Fanny Young does good work as Mrs. Stebbins.

"The Canuck" has only this week allotted to it.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49."

Mark Thall, the active and popular business manager of the Alcazar, has a benefit jointly tendered to him by Manager Wallenrod, Stock-Mark Thall is the pioneer manager of all our resident managers now here in the theatrical business—though he has not a gray hair among his black ones yet—the "49" play comes in very apropos.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company hold the stage of the California for their second week in "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays palatable.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron) —in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

Business has been fine.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Manager Maguire is looked for in this city daily.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Compnay can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

The Orpheum was crowded to its doors.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

This is the last week of the Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute, a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The "Fair" is a great resort, a credit to our city and State, and we are pleased to state that the exhibition has drawn larger attendance at the Pavilian this year than at any previous ones.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens this week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Coyne Brothers, acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance artistes, the Oatley Sisters; Miss Belle Kirby, the sword walker; Maggie Burnell, the winger of wingers in dancing, and the Quigley Bros., song and dance artists, put in new appearances this week.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thies, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artist; Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaette, the aerial queen, are the latest at the Union.

George Drew, comedian; Miss May Deacon, Lottie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

John Tudor's musical comedy, "Afloat in Mid-Ocean," is the principal piece this week.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "The Four Lovers;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

"The Four Lovers" is a pantomime comedy and has Nestell and most of the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, the German Comiques, and Miss Belle Arnold, banjo soloist and vocalist, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude acts are West & Fowler's "America vs. Germany," and the farce comedy of "The Wrong House," with Burns, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Josie Lescor, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Drummond & Stahle, the Musical Blacksmiths, put in new appearances this week in their act, producing fine music on a horseshoe, an anvil and other implements. It is a novel and original act. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Pete Smith's funny comedy of "Fun at Petaluma," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new creation, "Shinny on Your Side," and Drummond & Stahle's act of "Senator Dinklespiel."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Lulu Martell, vocalist and dancer, and Miss Mamie Sanford, motto singer, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

EVENING EDITION

WEDNESDAY.... ... .OCTOBER 2, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Wilson Barrett, the tragedian, is to have a theatre built for him in London, England. It will be located near Trafalgar Square, which is becoming a fashionable theatrical quarter of London.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes to the Baldwin after Fanny Davenport, and Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson later on.

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7th. The play will be "'49;" a very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco manager in the business here, young as he is.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Figress,' a society play of European life.

Herrmann entertained the children of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum at the Bush Street matinee to-day.

Miss Ethel Brandon has been engaged to support Henry Chanfrau as leading lady for his Pacific Coast season.

M. B. Leavitt has returned to New York City satisfied that his Windsor Theatre, Chicago, is a winner.

The Eastern papers hint that "James Owen O'Connor is to visit this Coast." What, after all the disastrous mountain fires we have had this year, are we to have this?

Isabel Morris plays in Reno, 7; Carson, 8 to 12. Fair week. Company: Chas. J. Edmonds, John Jack, F. M. Page, W. De Lano, B. Wesner, W. Watson, Mrs. Chas. J. Edmonds, Miss Kate Chester, Miss May Wells and little Daisy Chester. Repertoire: "Gwynne's Oath," "East Lynne," "Pink Dominos," "Hazel Kirke" and "Great Divorce Case."

The papers all say that "Camilla Urso has decided to remain in California all this Winter," and some of them delicately intimate that she may be persuaded into taking a few of the many pupils that are just dying in their anxiety to take lessons from her. Where is the necessity? The eminent artiste has just had a society benefit tendered her at the Grand, and in "the Spring" Camilla Urso fond of taking benefits can get up another.

The Harlem Opera House opens this week. It is a new and elaborately appointed theatre at 125th street, near 7th avenue, in the very heart of populous Harlem, and easy of access from all parts of the city. The opening play is "The Wife." It is probable that 'Divorce" will follow in due time.

Pauline Hall is the star of the New York Casino. Just after her return from her London trip the company at the Casino became very curious to know who the lady was that was talking so familiarly with the stage manager during most of the performance. When inquiry was made they were astonished to learn that the unknown was burlesquer Pauline Hall disguised in a dress.

Dion Boucicault has signed a contract to write a new play for Sol Smith Russell. The scene is to be in and around New York, and the play will be produced at Daly's Theatre next September, when Mr. Russell begins a six-weeks engagement at that house.

W. H. Crane's new play, "On Probation," produced at the Chicago Opera House for the first time, went with a rush.

Duncan Harrison's "Paymaster" played to big business in Louisville, Ky.

The latest query anent Mr. William Shakespeare is: Did his widow marry again?

Maud Granger, the once beautiful, is interesting herself in behalf of a condemned murderer now awaiting execution in the New York Tombs. Recall the first production of "Diplomacy" at the California Theatre and the two peerless women pitted against each other in the play, Maud Granger and Jeffreys-Lewis, and think of the changes a few years have wrought.

Oh, but Buckley is bad as the sport from way back in "Cannuck." Just see what the Call says about it: "Jim Hogan (Mr. E. J. Buckley) is of a lower class in the same genus with Stebbins and a most disagreeable individual. Mr. Buckley played the part with great breadth and [illegible] brought the hoodlum element

NIBLO'S GARDEN.

The last New York Mercury has a historical sketch of Niblo's Garden, one of the oldest New York theatres, from which we condense the following article:

Niblo's Garden did not begin as a theatre, but as a concert saloon. Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Bailey, H. T. Bishop and other singers gave the first public performance ever held within its walls, just fifty years ago. Then later on the Ravels came along with their pantomimes. The original Ravels—not the succeeding Martinetti company under that name. Old Niblo's became a veritable garden resort in midsummer in the Ravel days; walled in from Broadway, surrounded by flower beds, garden walks, conservatories and bubbling fountains, all accessible to its audience, who promenaded at will between acts. "The Green Monster," the most popular of the Ravel pantomimes, was almost as big a success as "The Black Crook," twenty-five years afterwards.

Polyglot performances were also given every now and then at old Niblo's; French drama, French opera and Italian opera. The most popular opera ever produced in New York, 'Lucia," was produced first on the boards of Niblo's. "Martha" had its first New York production on its boards. "The Daughter of the Regiment," with the great Sontag, also graced its stage, and fifteen years later came "The Grand Duchess." "Rip Van Winkle," the first American opera, was produced at Niblo's by the Payne-Harrison Troupe.

The purely dramatic record of Niblo's Garden is something wonderful in its richness and variety, both in quantity and quality. The stars of the past have all nearly trod the boards of Niblo's. Burton, the elder Wallack, Chas. Kean, Edwin Forrest—one of his best and earliest, as well as his last engagement in New York was played here—Miss Vandenhoff, Mrs. Fitzwilliams, E. L. Davenport, Tom Placide, John Brougham, Mrs. Mowatt, Hackett, George Holland, John Sefton, George Bassett, Mrs. Howard, Blake, Bland and Mrs. Skerrett, all appeared there. Nor must it be forgotten that Rachel, the greatest tragedienne the world has ever seen, played in French her finest role, Phædre, at Niblo's.

The above list can be supplemented by the names of Gustave V. Brooke, Hudson & Collins (Irish comedians), Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams, Edwin Eddy, Charlotte Cushman, Matilda Herron, Vestvali, Jean Davenport (Mrs. General Lander), Chas. Dillon, and many not recalled without referring to records.

Among the stars of the past, yet living, who have shown at Niblo's may be enumerated Dion Boucicault, Agnes Robertson, Charles Wheatleigh, Mrs. John Wood. Bandmann made his debut as Narcisse at Niblo's, and Edwin Booth essayed his great role of Bertuccio in "The Fool's Revenge" for the first time there. Maggie Mitchell played Fanchon on its boards several times.

At last "The Black Crook" came, made the fortunes of all interested in it, and replaced drama by spectacle. Niblo's is now the New York home of Kiralfy spectacular pieces and in its line still ranks as "the first."

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The latest sensation in out-door exhibitions East is jumping from a high tower and being caught in a life-saving net. A Frenchman introduced it at Coney Island in the Summer, and was afterwards injured, at Montreal, by his landing net being wrenched from the hands of some of the men who held it by the force of his fall and his coming in contact with the ground very roughly. The wires tell us of a fatal jump one Baptiste Renaud made on the 1st inst. at the Interstate Fair grounds at Trenton, N. J. He leaped from a 150-foot tower to a net below. On landing in the net he fell flat on his back, rebounded out, fell to the ground and almost instantly expired.

None of the players who are to support "Adonis" Dixey in his new play, "Seven Ages," will be permitted to wear mustaches or whiskers. Alas! what will the wind do now that bloweth about the "Adonis" company without a whisker to go to.

Primrose & West's Minstrels are doing good business at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia.

Frank McNish is performing his Silence and Fun specialty with distinguished success in the London music halls. More than one imitator had attempted to steal his thunder prior to his arrival, but they all fled when he appeared on the scene, and he now has the field to himself. He is engaged to play, in white face, along with Minnie Palmer in "Cinderella" at Her Majesty's.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eon k.

Matt Trayers, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

The exhibit of the Sierra Chemical Company, manufacturers of the justly celebrated Sierra Kidney and Liver Cure, a new but well-known panacea for all diseases of the liver, kidneys and bladder, situated on the ground floor, near the north-end of the Mechanics' Pavilion, is one of the most picturesque displays ever exhibited at its Fairs. Faithfully depicted on canvass, towering far above the heads of the spectators, is one of the many beautiful scenes of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, which evokes praiseworthy comments from all visitors. It illustrates the home of the herbs from which this greatest of all known remedies is compounded. They are gathered when they contain their most nutritious properties. By chemical analysis they have been reduced to a purely vegetable formula of most remedial powers—not a cure-all, but a sure cure for all troubles arising from diseased or disordered kidneys, liver and bladder. The Sierra Kidney and Liver Cure also has great powers as a blood purifier and strengthener. The manufactory of the Sierra Chemical Company is at No. 2424 Mission street, in this city, from whence their Cure is finding its way into every section of the Union.

Frank B. Bowers will manage the tour of "A Little Tramp," written by W. G. Wills, the author of Henry Irving's "Faust." Miss Hattie Harvey, who made a hit as "Puck" in the McVicker production of "Midsummer Night's Dream," and E. D. Lyons, will be the stars. The season will open in Milwaukee Oct. 7. It will be remembered that this is the piece in which Mrs. Langtry made such an emphatic hit in England, and it is expected Miss Harvey will do likewise here, as the part is much more suited to her physique and natural talent.

The assertion the New York papers make that Bronson Howard refused an offer of $10,000 to write a play for a star will not seem so improbable when it is

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, closes his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush, wrapt in attention of his feats, has greeted him every night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann continues his Cremation Act in his last week's bill. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience, and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration.

The marked new features of the bill are Mme. Herrmann in her New Black Art, assisted by Abdul Kahn, the Oriental necromancer, and Herrmann's new act, The Resurrection of Mr. Crowley. Black Art is full of wonders. Material things and living persons appear and disappear at will, and Herrmann's famed Decapitation Act is introduced in this portion of the performance.

Herrmann also introduces new mysteries and marvels in his "Thirty Minutes of Magic," and the part fourth of his entertainment, "Magic Improvista."

At his last matinee, on Saturday, Mr. Herrmann, in acknowledgment of his kind reception in San Francisco, will present every lady in the audience with a handsome medalion souvenir containing a likeness of himself.

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Mr. Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement on Monday next, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," will have its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her." The story has had a very extensive sale and is still popular among novel readers.

The scene of the play opens at Monte Carlo the great gambling establishment of the world. The characters are those who frequent such places, the better classes, tourists, sight-seers, noblemen, gamesters and adventurers, etc The little colony that mingled together at Monte Carlo, the Flower girl the adventuress —"the Tigress," her brother, and the titled personages of society, afterwards meet in various dramatic situations of intense interest, culminating in an exposure of the adventures at a Masque Ball in the last act. There are lighter parts and comedy elements interwoven in the woof of the play, that are given due prominence.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week McKee Rankin gives us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Cadeaux, in "The Canuck." The play is located in Canada, near the Vermont line, and does not go much out the beaten pathway of domestic dramas. Jean is an observant old farmer, in dialect and every characteristic a thorough Canadian habitant. Mr. Rankin localizes the character in deportment, dialect and costume very distinctively. He makes it as he promises, "A character new to the stage."

The chief characters of the play fall into the good hands of Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley and L. R. Stockwell, with the Alcazar Company generally called for in the distribution. Mabel Bert sustains the unpleasant role of an openly bad adventuress with well poised power Buckley makes a strong part out of Jim Hogan the sport from wayback. He plays it with great washes of light and shade and with a vim that makes them tell. Stockwell, as the Vermont farmer, has a quaint, wholesome, domestic part, in which he is at home. Nellie Buckley plays the ingenue part of Jean's daughter, Archaire, very ably and shows a growing improvement in her profession. Fanny Young does good work as Mrs. Stebbins.

The Canuck" has only this week allotted to it.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49."

Mark Thall, the active and popular business manager of the Alcazar, has a benefit jointly Mark Thall is the pioneer manager of all our resident managers now here in the theatrical business—though he has not a gray hair among his black ones yet—the "49" play comes in very apropos.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company hold the stage of the California for their second week in "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays palatable.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J C. Miron) —in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

Business has been fine.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

Mr. John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years lease of the Grand, announces in an adjacent column the opening of his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Manager Maguire is looked for in this city daily.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Company can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

The Orpheum was crowded to its doors.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

This is the last week of the Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute, a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The "Fair" is a great resort, a credit to our city and State, and we are pleased to state that the exhibition has drawn larger attendance at the Pavilian this year than at any previous ones.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodrames at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast esp-cially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens this week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Coyne Brothers, acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance artistes, the Oatley Sisters; Miss Belle Kirby, the sword walker; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing, and the Quigley Bros., song and dance artists, put in new appearances this week.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; Delmonte, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thiess, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artist; Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaetta, the aerial queen, are the latest at the Union.

George Drew, comedian; Miss May Deacon, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

John Tudor's musical comedy, "Afloat in Mid-Ocean," is the principal piece this week.

management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Ballman's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Pholtes, with their pantomime of "The Four Lovers;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

"The Four Lovers" is a pantomime comedy and has Nestell and most of the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, the German Comiques, and Miss Belle Arnold, banjo soloist and vocalist, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude acts are West & Fowler's "America vs. Germany," and the farce comedy of "The Wrong House," with Burns, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J Burns, Josie Lescor Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Drummond & Stahle, the Musical Blacksmiths, put in new appearances this week in their act, producing fine music on a horseshoe, an anvil and other implements. It is a novel and original act. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Pete Smith's funny comedy of "Fun at Petaluma," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new creation, "Shinny on Your Side," and Drummond & Stahle's act of "Senator Dinkiespiel."

The olio brings to the front in musical

WESTLEY VENNUA.

Clear back in the 'Forties Westley Vennua was quite a prominent member of the old Park Theatre Company, Park Row, New York, and also of Tom Hamblin's company at the old Bowery Theatre. He came to California in the early rush, although not so early as veteran John McCabe, Attwood, Hank Daly and the little company that gave dramatic performances at the Eagle Theatre (a tent structure) on the levee at Sacramento in the Fall months of 49

Sacramento was the early home of the drama in California. Hundreds of teamsters, "prairie-schooner men," came in every day and stopped over night to load up—too often in a double sense—for an early start for the mines in the morning. The hundreds of new comers from "the Bay" bound for the mines had to accommodate themselves to teamsters' time, and left at early daylight tramping after the teams that carried their rockers and other mining implements and grub. This gave Sacramento a peculiar advantage as a theatrical town during all the earlier mining emigration.

Vennua went to Sacramento and became manager and part owner of the Metropolitan Theatre, quite a pretensive wooden structure, in the early 'Fifties. Eventually he embarked for some of the South Pacific islands and disappeared, only to turn up in the Eastern dispatches as arrested in New York as an escape from a Baltimore lunatic asylum, where he had been confined for five years.

Vennua—or Venna, as the dispatch has his name—who we remember as a swarthy, black-eyed, black-haired, vigorous melodramatic actor and reader, is described as a broken down, venerable, white-haired, silver bearded man, who places his age at 75. He states that he joined Farragut's forces at the breaking out of the war, and received a wound in the leg that left him a cripple and incapacitated him from performing on the stage. He is seeking the shelter of the Actors' Fund and the society has released him and will take care of him.

Vennua was approached by L. W. Hoffman, the business manager of the Globe Museum, who offered him $100 a week to appear at the museum.

"My day has gone," exclaimed Vennua, laying his hand on his heart, "and I am old and weak. I am in the fifth act now, but I'll never forget that I played with Booth and Forrest. No, sir; I'll not accept your offer," and he sank back quite exhausted by the effort.

Charley Hoyt is polishing up his "Brass Monkey." He has made three material changes in the first act this week, and brightened up the last two considerably.

Wilson Barrett, the tragedian, is to have a theatre built for him in London, England. It will be located near Trafalgar Square, which is becoming a fashionable theatrical quarter of London

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes to the Baldwin after Fanny Davenport, and Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson later on.

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7th The play will be "'49;" a very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco manager in the business here, young as he is.

Miss Ethel Brandon has been engaged to support Henry Chanfrau as leading lady for his Pacific Coast season.

M. B. Leavitt has returned to New York City satisfied that his Windsor Theatre, Chicago, is a winner.

The Eastern papers hint that "James Owen O'Conner is to visit this Coast." What, after all the disastrous mountain hres we have had this year, are we to have this?

Pauline Hall is the star of the New York Casino. Just after her return from her London trip the company at the Casino became very curious to know who the lady was that was talking so familiarly with the stage manager during most of the performance. When inquiry was made they were astonished to learn that the unknown was burlesquer Pauline Hall disguised in a dress.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The details of the construction of the new Harlem Opera House and Opera Hall building, published in the New York papers, prove it to be an eclipser. The building is located in the center of Harlem, corner of 125th street and Seventh avenue, and cost $750 000. The arcade is a preparation and prelude for the splendors of the theatre itself. It is wainscoted with Italian marble, its walls frescoed in a soft sapphire blue, and hung with pictures of great actors, composers and playwrights. Its decorations are rich and beautiful. The Italian marble stairways at the end of the arcade leading to the balcony are the most costly and artistic of any in the Union. The supports and ornamental pillars are sculptured marble. Colored marble and Orandilla shafts form the ornaments of the foyer, and in the north wall in a marble and granite frame is the largest French plate glass mirror ever brought to this country—14x17 feet. The auditorium surpasses any theatre in New York in artistic beauty, richness and cost. The theatre was opened this week. Its companion building is the Opera Hall, the largest music hall in New York, with a floor space of 100x75 feet unbroken by pillars. Six 75-foot iron girders, which weigh eighteen tons apiece, are employed to secure this space. There is also a magnificent banquetting hall in the same building, with accommodations for 1,000 plates. Oscar Hammerstein, the owner, is the largest individual holder of real estate in Harlem, and can afford to build palatial places of amusement.

Many American theatrical people are playing "Alone in London" just at present. That is, the rush for America in September was so great that they could not get passage home at a moment's notice, and had to wait their turn. The New York Truth says: "The rush this way has been so enormous that at the present writing I am told that something like a thousand Americans in London just now are unable to obtain transportation of any kind across to Atlantic. A very large number of these are professional people who, improvident in making their arrangements for the future just as they are improvident in everything they do in life, find themselves without any possible facilities for returning home. They must simply wait until the transatlantic travel lightens up. In the meanwhile one of our best known commediennes, whose name out of charity I will refrain from mentioning, came over last week in the steerage."

"The Arabian Nights," spectacular piece, opened its season in Sing Sing last week. Although the opening was satisfactory, they would have had an overflowing house if some 2000 persons living in the town had not been unfortunately detained in their domiciles by circumstances over which they had no control. They all wanted to get out and go.

Charles Arnold, with his idyllic play of "Hans, the Boatman," under the management of Simmons and Brown, commenced a week's stay in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 23d, at Macauley's Theatre. The receipts of the first night of this engagement was given to the Firemen's Fund for the relief of the widows and orphans of the five firemen who were burned to death at a late fire in that city. The house was crowded to suffocation, and the returns were $1 800, every dollar of which was given to the fund.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Tigress," a society play of European life.

The purely dramatic record of Niblo's Garden is something wonderful in its richness and variety, both in quantity and quality. The stars of the past have all nearly trod the boards of Niblo's. Burton, the elder Wallack, Chas. Kean, Edwin Forrest—one of his best and earliest, as well as his last engagement in New York was played here—Miss Vandenhoff, Mrs. Fitzwilliams, E. L. Davenport, Tom Placide, John Brougham, Mrs. Mowatt, Hackett, George Holland, John Sefton, George Bassett, Mrs. Howard, Blake, Bland and Mrs. Skerrett, all appeared there. Nor must it be forgotten that Rachel, the greatest tragedienne the world has ever seen, played in French her finest role, Phædre, at Niblo's.

The above list can be supplemented by the names of Gustave V. Brooke, Hudson & Collins (Irish comedians), Mr. and Mrs. Barney William, Edwin Eddy, Charlotte Cushman, Matilda Herron, Vestvali, Jean Davenport (Mrs. General Lander), Chas. Dillon, and many not recalled without referring to records.

Among the stars of the past, yet living, who have shown at Niblo's may be enumerated Dion Boucicault, Agnes Robertson, Charles Wheatleigh, Mrs. John Wood. Bandmann made his debut as Narcisse at Niblo's, and Edwin Booth essayed his great role of Bertuccio in "The Fool's Revenge" for the first time there. Maggie Mitchell played Fanchon on its boards several times.

At last "The Black Crook" came, made the fortunes of all interested in it, and replaced drama by spectacle. Niblo's is now the New York home of Kiralfy spectacular pieces and in its line still ranks as "the first."

Maud Granger, the once beautiful, is interesting herself in behalf of a condemned murderer now awaiting execution in the New York Tombs. Recall the first production of "Diplomacy" at the California Theatre and the two peerless women pitted against each other in the play, Maud Granger and Jeffreys-Lewis, and think of the changes a few years have wrought.

Oh, but Buckley is bad as the sport from way back in "Canuck." Just see what the Call says about it: "Jim Hogan (Mr. E. J. Buckley) is of a lower class in the same genus with Stebbins and a most disagreeable individual. Mr. Buckley played the part with great breadth and freedom and caught the hoodlum element [illegible] His speech is Primrose & West's Minstrels are doing good business at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia.

Frank McNish is performing his Silence and Fun specialty with distinguished success in the London music halls. More than one imitator had attempted to steal his thunder prior to his arrival, but they all fled when he appeared on the scene, and he now has the field to himself. He is engaged to play, in white face, along with Minnie Palmer in "Cinderella" at Her Majesty's.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week.

Matt Trayers, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, closes his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush, wrapt in attention of his feats, has greeted him every night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann continues his Cremation Act in his last week's bill. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on a stage. A woman is brought out and apparently consumed by fire in full view of the audience, and yet at the end reappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transfiguration.

The marked new features of the bill are Mme. Herrmann in her New Black Art, assisted by Abdul Kahn, the Oriental necromancer, and Herrmann's new act, The Resurrection of Mr. Crowley. Black Art is full of wonders. Material things and living persons appear and disappear at will, and Herrmann's famed Decapitation Act is introduced in this portion of the performance.

Herrmann also introduces new mysteries and marvels in his "Thirty Minutes of Magic," and the part fourth of his entertainment, "Magic Improvists."

At his last matinee, on Saturday, Mr. Herrmann, in acknowledgment of his kind reception in San Francisco, will present every lady in the audience with a handsome medalion souvenir containing a likeness of himself.

Matinees, Wednesdays and Saturdays.

—o—

Mr. Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement on Monday next, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," will have its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her." The story has had a very extensive sale and is still popular among novel readers.

The scene of the play opens at Monte Carlo, the great gambling establishment of the world. The characters are those who frequent such places, the better classes, tourists, sight-seers, noblemen, gamesters and adventurers, etc. The little colony that mingled together at Monte Carlo, the Flower girl, the adventuress—"the Tigress," her brother, and the titled personages of society, afterwards meet in various dramatic situations of intense interest, culminating in an exposure of the adventures at a Masque Ball in the last act. There are lighter parts and comedy elements interwoven in the woof of the play, that are given due prominence.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week McKee Rankin gives us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Cadeaux, in "The Canuck." The play is located in Canada, near the Vermont line, and does not go much out the beaten pathway of domestic dramas. Jean is an observant old farmer, in dialect and every characteristic a thorough Canadian habitant. Mr. Rankin localizes the character in deportment, dialect and costume very distinctively. He makes it as he promises, "A character new to the stage."

The chief characters of the play fall into the good hands of Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley and L. R. Stockwell, with the Alcazar Company generally called for in the distribution. Mabel Bert sustains the unpleasant role of an openly bad adventuress with well poised power. Buckley makes a strong part out of Jim Hogan the sport from Waybac. He plays it with great deftness of light and shade and with a vim that makes them tell. Stockwell, as the Vermont farmer has a quaint, wholesome, domestic part in which he is at home. Neille Lindley plays the ingenue part of Jean's daughter, Archibel, very ably and shows a great improvement in her portrayal. Daisy Young does good work as Mrs. St Clare.

"The Canuck" has only this week allotted to it.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49."

Mark Thall, the active and popular business manager of the Alcazar, has a benefit jointly tendered to him by Manager Hallen at the Mark Thall is the pioneer manager of all our resident managers now here in the theatrical business—though he has not a gray hair among his black ones yet—the '49' play comes in very apropos.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company hold the stage of the California for their second week in "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays palatable.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

Business has been fine.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Company can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

The Orpheum was crowded to its doors.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

This is the last week of the Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute, a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The "Fair" is a great resort, a credit to our city and State, and we are pleased to state that the exhibition has drawn larger attendance at the Pavilion this year than at any previous time.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens this week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Coyne Brothers, acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance artistes, the Oatley Sisters; Miss Belle Kirby, the sword walker; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing, and the Quigley Bros., song and dance artists, put in new appearances this week.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; Delmonte, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thies, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artist; Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannette, the aerial queen, are the latest at the Union.

George Drew, comedian; Miss May Deacon, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

John Tudor's musical comedy, All at in Mid-Ocean," is the principal piece this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up the record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Ballman's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "The Four Lovers;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; "The Four Lovers" is a pantomime comedy and has Nestell and most of the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, the German Comiques, and Miss Belle Arnold, banjo soloist and vocalist, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude acts are West & Fowler's "America vs. Germany," and the farce comedy of "The Wrong House," with Burns, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Josie Lescor, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Drummond & Stable, the Musical Blacksmiths, put in new appearances this week in their act, producing fine music on a horseshoe, an anvil and other implements. It is a novel and original act. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Pete Smith's funny comedy of "Fun at Petaluma," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new creation, "Shinny on Your Side," and Drummond & Stable's act of "Senator Dinklespiel."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Ella Letcher and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Wallerstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Lulu Martell, vocalist and dancer, and Miss Mamie Sanford, "coon" singer, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection

FRIDAY.....OCTOBER 4, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

WESTLEY VENNUA.

Clear back in the 'Forties Westley Vennua was quite a prominent member of the old Park Theatre Company, Park Row, New York, and also of Tom Hamblin's company at the old Bowery Theatre. He came to California in the early rush, although not so early as veteran John McCabe, Attwood, Hank Daly and the little company that gave dramatic performances at the Eagle Theatre (a tent structure) on the levee at Sacramento in the Fall months of 49

Sacramento was the early home of the drama in California. Hundreds of teamsters, "prairie-schooner men," came in every day and stopped over night to load up—too often in a double sense—for an early start for the mines in the morning. The hundreds of new comers from "the Bay" bound for the mines had to accommodate themselves to teamsters' time, and left at early daylight tramping after the teams that carried their rockers and other mining implements and grub. This gave Sacramento a peculiar advantage as a theatrical town during all the earlier mining emigration.

Vennua went to Sacramento and became manager and part owner of the Metropolitan Theatre, quite a pretensive wooden structure, in the early 'Fifties. Eventually he embarked for some of the South Pacific islands and disappeared, only to turn up in the Eastern dispatches as arrested in New York as an escape from a Baltimore lunatic asylum, where he had been confined for five years.

Vennua—or Venna, as the dispatch has his name—who we remember as a swarthy, black-eyed, black-haired, vigorous melodramatic actor and reader, is described as a broken down, venerable, white-haired, silver bearded man, who places his age at 75. He states that he joined Farragut's forces at the breaking out of the war, and received a wound in the leg that left him a cripple and incapacitated him from performing on the stage. He is seeking the shelter of the Actors' Fund and the society has released him and will take care of him.

Vennua was approached by L. W. Hoffman, the business manager of the Globe Museum, who offered him $100 a week to appear at the museum.

"My day has gone," exclaimed Vennua, laying his hand on his heart, "and I am old and weak. I am in the fifth act now, but I'll never forget that I played with Booth and Forrest. No, sir; I'll not accept your offer," and he sank back quite exhausted by the effort.

"Shenandoah" had only five weeks booked at the Star Theatre, New York, and not being able to buy off dates at that house arrangements have been made to continue its run at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre.

John H Gilmour, who has been engaged by Jay Rial in New York as leading man for the company he is bringing for the Grand Opera House in this city is the actor who made such a hit as the Earl in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Broadway Theatre, New York Mr Gilmour is a graduate of Wallack's Theatre, a thorough gentleman, a good fellow, a handsome man and one of the best all around actors in the country.

The New York Dispatch says: 'Hoyt's new farce, called "A Texas Steer," will be let loose upon the playgoers early in November."

Joseph R Grismer and Phoebe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Figrets," a society play of European life.

"Little Lord Fauntleroy" comes to the Baldwin after Fanny Davenport, and Rosina Vokes and Stuart Robson later on.

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7th. The play will be "49;" very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco manager in the business, having managed here.

Miss Ethel Brandon has been engaged to support Henry Chanfrau as leading lady for the Pacific Coast season.

M. B. Leavitt has returned to New York City satisfied that his Windsor Theatre, Chicago, is a winner.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

M. B. Leavitt's spectacular production of Fraser and Gill's pantomime burlesque, "Toe Spider and the Fly," is a success. The company engaged to illustrate the spectacle is especially well selected, and in their several parts captured encores from the start. The Dramatic News says: "Hilda Thomas, Bessie Cleveland, Pauline Markham, Louise Allen, Ray Allen and Ada Dare, of the many clever ladies, were excellent. The male part of the company, which includes Tommy Dare, Dorsie & Oreste, the Lenten Bros., the Dares, James R. Allen and Sam J. Ryan, all scored hits. Taken all around, there is not a better or more taking attraction on the road. The costumes are beautiful and the scenic effects magnificent. The many tricks introduced in the pantomime are new and novel." Another journal says: "The burlesque pantomime is in three acts. The first scene introduces Pauline Markham as Anarchi, and this is transformed five or six times, and ends with a beautiful scene of New York and the Brooklyn Bridge. There is also introduced a very funny grocery scene and a gymnasium, where a great many specialties are introduced. The last transformation is very gorgeous, and was received with great applause. Some forty or fifty people are employed, and among them are some of the best talent in the country."

John Maguire is en route for this city to be present at the opening of the Grand on Saturday week

Herrmann will give his Art Views again at the matinee Saturday.

John H. McCabe, the veteran actor and agent, had quite a severe attack of chills this morning.

Under the heading of "Mr. Rial's New Venture" the last New York Dramatic News has this paragraph anent the Grand Opera House opening: "Mr. Jay Rial is about to go to San Francisco to assume the management of the Grand Opera House, of which John Maguire is the lessee. Mr. Rial handles the house under exceptionally favorable conditions, and he has secured for it a list of attractions conveying the impression that his season there will be marked by the highest type of prosperity and standing. Mme. Patti plays three weeks there, and "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions are already booked. It is Mr. Rial's intention to make a number of fine productions on his own account, and with that end in view he has secured the rights to a dozen already successful plays, for the representation of which he will take out a company headed by J. H. Gilmour. Mr. Rial is a great social favorite in San Francisco, as indeed he is wherever he may be known, and great things are naturally expected of his season in the metropolis of the Pacific.

Among those booked at the new Harlem Opera House are Booth and Modjeska, the Kendals, Tommy Russell, Jefferson and Florence, Fanny Davenport, Emma Juch, Margaret Mather and Marie Wainwright.

In London a hair-raising drama called "Florence Musgrick" is shortly to be produced.

The theatrical season at New Orleans opens very auspiciously.

The Italian papers are booming their Christine Nilsson, who has made a success in opera at Copenhagen. The Italian papers are wrong, as the new prima donna is Miss Nielson, of Madison, Wis., who is only nineteen and possesses a phenomenal soprano voice.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers and Daniel Bandmann have joined forces for a tour of the principal towns in Montana.

The latest query anent Mr. William Shakespeare is: Did his widow marry again?

Col. McCaull, although out and about is really in no way improved in physical condition. His health continues to be the subject of the gravest alarm to his friends. The business affairs of the company are still under the immediate charge of Mr. Stevens, who, assisted by Mme. Cottrelly in the management of the stage, succeeds in keeping Mr. McCaull's affairs in excellent condition—[N. Y. Truth.

Lydia Thompson and her new English comedietta company, comprising eight persons, are in New York, and have designs on us.

A new musical spectacle called "Stanley in Africa" will shortly be produced at the Victoria Theatre, Berlin.

The "Sentenced for Life" Company's fate is over. It died a few days ago at Rochester, New York.

William Ludwig, the Irish baritone, is back from Europe with a corps of singers for a concert tour.

Tamagno, Henry E Abbey's phenomenal tenor, thinks that Wagner was a great composer for masters of musical science, but not for the masses who love melodious sounds. Tamagno has hit the nail on the head.

"The Arabian Nights," spectacular piece, opened its season in Sing Sing last week. Although the opening was satisfactory, they would have had an overflowing house if some 2000 persons living in the town had not been unfortunately detained in their domiciles by circumstances over which they had no control. They all wanted to get out and go.

Charley Hoyt is polishing up his "Brass Monkey." He has made three material changes in the first act this week, and brightened up the last two considerably.

The "New King Cole" has not the jolly old soul of his progenitor. In fact, the New King is worrying himself half to death how to keep on his travels beyond Denver.

When H. C. Miner takes possession of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, next Primrose & West's Minstrels are doing good business at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

Billy Versatile Akarman has the stage management of the Eureka.

Matt Trayers, John Gilmore and Ruby Grant, three good ones, make themselves felt at the Comique this week.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance and has a semi-family audience patronage.

Loudon and Maud Miller McCormick are actin' down in Dallas, Texas. Mrs. McC. during that she is destitute.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 4 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, closes his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush, wrapt in attention at his feats, has greeted him every night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

Herrmann concludes with Cremation Act in his last week's bill. It is assuredly one of the most thrilling and mysterious features ever seen on the stage. A woman is burnt to ashes and apparently consumed. Fire in full view of the audience and then she disappears without a blemish. He calls this the acme of transmutation.

The marked new features of the bill are Miss Herrmann in a New Act assisted by Alex. Kohl, the Comedian, in Mind and Matter, and the Resurrection of Mr. Quimby. Dark Act is one of Mr. Herrmann's Material things and invisible, the latter appearing at will, and Burglar's Latest Deception Act is introduced in the latter portion of the performance.

Herrmann also introduces new mysteries and marvels in the "Fairy Marvels of Magic" and will put the finishing touch of his entertainment, "Magic in Pastels."

At his last matinee, on Saturday, Mr. Herrmann, in addition to the usual floral tributes received, was presented, with great ceremony by the manager, with a handsome bouquet of flowers, the gift of himself.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Mr. Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two weeks' return engagement on Monday next, opening in their new play, entitled, "The Tigress."

"The Tigress," or "The Burglar," will have its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by Grismer from his novel "Crucify Her." The story has had a very extensive sale and is still popular among novel readers.

The scene of the play opens at Monte Carlo, the great gambling establishment of the world, the characters are those who frequent such places, the better classes, tourists, sight-seers, noblemen, gamesters and adventurers etc. The little colony that mingled together at Monte Carlo, the flower girl, the adventuress—"the Tigress," her brother, and the titled personages of society afterwards meet in various dramatic situations of intense interest culminating in the discovery of the adventures of a Marquis [illegible] in the last act. There are other personages and incidents of interest in the web of the play, that are given due prominence.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week McKee Rankin plays one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Crobeau in "The Canuck." The play is located in Canada, near the Vermont line, and does not go much out the beaten pathway of domestic dramas. Jean is an observant old farmer, individual and very characteristic a thorough Canadian habitant. Mr. Rankin localizes the character in deportment, dialect and costume very distinctively. He makes it as he promises, "A character new to the stage."

The chief characters of the play fall into the good hands of Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley and L. R. Stockwell, with the Alcazar Company generally called for in the distribution. Mabel Bert assumes the unpleasant role of an openly bad adventuress with well poised power. Buckley makes a strong part out of Jim Hogan, the sport from wayback. He plays it with great dashes of light and shade and with a vim that makes them tell. Stockwell, as the Vermont farmer has a quaint, wholesome, domestic part, in which he is at home. Nellie Buckley plays the ingenue part of Jean's daughter, Archange, very ably and shows a growing improvement in her performance. Fanny Young does good work as Miss Stebbins.

"The Canuck" has only this week allotted to it.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "Ad."

Mark Thall, the active and popular business manager of the Alcazar, has a benefit jointly tendered to him by Manager Wallenrod, Stockwell and McKee Rankin on Monday night. As Mark Thall is the pioneer manager of all our resident managers now here in the theatrical business—though he has not a gray hair among his black ones yet—the '49' play comes in very apropos.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company hold the stage of the California for their second week in "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays palatable.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron) —in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

Business has been fine.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

A late dispatch from John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, announces that he will be here on Sunday, and that he will open his season on Saturday evening, October 12th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing direct; but the New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Maguire's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour.

The Grand was pricely secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dr. Dio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Woolen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Company can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

The Orpheum was crowded to its doors.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion—Industrial Exhibition.

This is the last week of the Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute, a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The "Fair" is a great resort, a credit to our city and State, and we are pleased to state that the exhibition has drawn larger attendance at the Pavilian this year than at any previous ones.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to the coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opens this week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life."

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Coyne Brothers, acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance artistes, the Oatley Sisters; Miss Belle Kirby, the sword walker; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing, and the Quigley Bros., song and dance artists, put in new appearances this week.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; Delmonte, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Miss Maude Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thies, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste; Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Bayadaeets, the racial queen, are the latest in the Union.

George Drew, comedian; Miss May Deacon, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

John Tudor's musical comedy, "All at in Mid-Ocean," is the principal piece this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phorites, with their pantomime of "The Four Lovers;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

"The Four Lovers" is a pantomime comedy and has Nestell and most of the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, the German Comiques, and Miss Belle Arnold, banjo soloist and vocalist, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude acts are West & Fowler's "America vs. Germany," and the farce comedy of "The Wrong House," with Burns, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Josie Lescor, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Drummond & Stable, the Musical Blacksmiths, put in new appearances this week in their act, producing fine music on a horseshoe, an anvil and other implements. It is a novel and original act. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Pete Smith's funny comedy of "Fun at Petaluma," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new creation, "Shinny on Your Side," and Drummond & Stable's act of "Senator Dinklespiel."

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Ella Letcher and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Lulu Martell, vocalist and dancer, and Miss Mamie Sanford, motto singer, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge, James Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company.

The first-part is made of songs rendered by the Eureka company.

In the comedy act songs and dances and have been introduced, than ever.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The production of the new spectacle, "Kajanka," at Hooley's Opera House, Cincinnati, was a success. The piece made a very vivid impression. It is one of the most gorgeous productions of the kind that has ever been staged in that city.

Now they say that neither cigarettes nor opium killed Bernhardt's husband, as his friends are trying to make out. It was paresis that did it.

Mattie Vickers has closed a continuous season of sixty weeks for a five weeks' rest, and then goes out campaigning again.

Philosopher Denman Thompson don't believe in bucking at a game when you have to die to win. He says that he is not a believer in life insurance. His late partner and manager, J. M. Hill, was insured in five different companies, and every one of them collapsed, and "Hill was dead yet."

"Listen to the Tale of Woe" has got across the Atlantic. Charles Danby and Lettie Lind are singing it in the new burlesque, "Ruy Blas," at the Gaiety Theatre, London.

Lawrence Barrett's neck and the side of his head are in a painful condition. The glands are badly swollen, and the interior swelling is giving him great trouble. It is a hereditary complaint. He is making all arrangements, however, to go on with his season in "Ganelon," though his friends fear he will have to submit to severe surgical treatment before he will be presentable.

It is reported that Charles R. Gardiner is stricken with blindness.

Peter Fleming, brother of W. J. Fleming, the veteran actor, and well known to Niblo patrons as Herzog in "The Black Crook," died recently in New York city.

There is a probability of legal trouble between Manager Hammerstein, of the new Harlem Opera House, and Manager McKee, of the "Mankind" combination, owing to Mr. Hammerstein's alleged intent not to play "Mankind" at his theatre, although he has signed a contract to do so; and therefore Frank McKee is going after him legally, with hammer and tongs.

Edwin Booth's programme, supported by Mme. Modjeska, for their opening week in Pittsburg was "The Merchant of Venice," "Richelieu," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "The Fool's Revenge." Booth opens his New York season at the Broadway Theatre on the 14th in "Richelieu."

Manager Maguire has postponed the opening of the Grand Opera House until Monday, October 21st.

"Shenandoah" had only five weeks booked at the Star Theatre, New York, and not being able to buy off dates at that house arrangements have been made to continue its run at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre.

John H. Gilmour, who has been engaged by Jay Rial in New York as leading man for the company he is bringing for the Grand Opera House in this city is the actor who made such a hit as the Earl in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Broadway Theatre, New York. Mr. Gilmour is a graduate of Wallack's Theatre, a thorough gentleman, a good fellow, a handsome man and one of the best all around actors in the country.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies follow Herrmann at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Tigress," a society play of European life.

Mark Thall, the business manager of the Alcazar, will be the recipient of a benefit at that theatre on Monday evening, Oct. 7th. The play will be "49," a very fitting bill for the occasion, as Mark is the pioneer San Francisco manager in the business here, young as he is.

Miss Ethel Brandon has been engaged to support Henry Chanfrau as leading lady for his Pacific Coast season.

M. B. Leavitt has returned to New York City satisfied that his Windsor Theatre, Chicago, is a winner.

Lately, during a performance of "Hamlet" at Boston, the pronounced brogue of Queen Gertrude revealed the fact that Shakespeare's melancholy Dane was of Irish parentage. Here is another Shakespearean mystery to unravel.

"The Black Crook" owed its original production to a curious chance. It was written by Charles M. Barras, a cranky stage carpenter, who considered it the effort of his life. He took it to William Wheatley, who was then managing Niblo's Garden, New York, and Wheatley thrust the manuscript in his drawer. Meantime Jarrett & Palmer bought the scenery and costumes of "La Chatte Blanche" in Paris and brought them to New York together with an imported ballet troupe. They applied to Wheatley for a play to fit their materials and he hauled out the half-forgotten "Black Crook" from its lurking place with the remark that he thought it might answer. It was brought out at Niblo's in 1866 with such success that it made fortunes for Wheatley, Jarrett & Palmer and Barras. The latter's heirs drew a large royalty from it for years, we think $250 a week. Though so long before the public it is still one of the most popular of the spectacular pieces.

Daniel Bandmann and Mrs. D. P. Bowers will probably open the new opera house at Duluth, Minn., in November.

Sophie Eyre, formerly of Wallack's Theatre, will shortly star in a new play called "The Witch." She is one of our coming Grand Opera House attractions.

M. B. Leavitt's spectacular production of Fraser and Gill's pantomime burlesque, "The Spider and the Fly," is a success. The company engaged to illustrate the spectacle is especially well selected, and in their several parts captured encores from the start. The Dramatic News says: "Hilda Thomas, Bessie Cleveland, Pauline Markham, Louise Allen, Ray Allen and Ada Dare, of the many clever ladies, were excellent. The male part of the company, which includes Tommy Dare, Dorste & Oreste, the Lenten Bros., the Dares, James R. Allen and Sam J. Ryan, all scored hits. Taken all around, there is not a better or more taking attraction on the road. The costumes are beautiful and the scenic effects magnificent. The many tricks introduced in the pantomime are new and novel." Another journal says: "The burlesque pantomime is in three acts. The first scene introduces Pauline Markham as Anarchi, and this is transformed five or six times, and ends with a beautiful scene of New York and the Brooklyn Bridge. There is also introduced a very funny grocery scene and a gymnasium, where a great many specialties are introduced. The last tranformation is very gorgeous, and was received with great applause. Some forty or fifty people are employed, and among them are some of the best talent in the country."

John Maguire is en route for this city to be present at the opening of the Grand on Saturday week.

Under the heading of "Mr. Rial's New Venture" the last New York Dramatic News has this paragraph anent the Grand Opera House opening: "Mr. Jay Rial is about to go to San Francisco to assume the management of the Grand Opera House, of which John Maguire is the lessee. Mr. Rial handles the house under exceptionally favorable conditions, and he has secured for it a list of attractions conveying the impression that his season there will be marked by the highest type of prosperity and standing. Mme. Patti plays three weeks there, and "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions are already booked. It is Mr. Rial's intention to make a number of fine productions on his own account, and with that end in view he has secured the rights to a dozen already successful plays, for the representation of which he will take out a company headed by J. H. Gilmour. Mr. Rial is a great social favorite in San Francisco, as indeed he is wherever he may be known, and great things are naturally expected of his season in the metropolis of the Pacific.

Among those booked at the new Harlem Opera House are Booth and Modjeska, the Kendals, Tommy Russell, Jefferson and Florence, Fanny Davenport, Emma Juch, Margaret Mather and Marie Wainwright.

In London a hair-raising drama called "Florence Maybrick" is shortly to be produced.

The New York Dispatch says: "Hoyt's new farce, called "A Texas Steer," will be let loose upon the playgoers early in November."

The latest query anent Mr. William Shakespeare is: Did his widow marry again?

Col. McCaull, although out and about is really in no way improved in physical condition. His health continues to be the subject of the gravest alarm to his friends. The business affairs of the company are still under the immediate charge of Mr. Stevens, who, assisted by Mme. Cottrelly in the management of the stage, succeeds in keeping Mr. McCaull's affairs in excellent condition—[N. Y. Truth.

Lydia Thompson and her new English comedietta company, comprising eight persons, are in New York, and have designs on us.

A new musical speciacle called "Stanley in Africa" will shortly be produced at the Victoria Theatre, Berlin.

The "Sentenced for Life" Company's fate is over. It died a few days ago at Rochester, New York.

Tamagno, Henry E. Abbey's phenomenal tenor, thinks that Wagner was a great composer for masters of musical science, but not for the masses who love melodious sounds. Tamagno has hit the nail on the head.

Charley Hoyt is polishing up his "Brass Monkey." He has made three material changes in the first act this week, and brightened up the last two considerably.

The "New King Cole" has not the jolly old soul of his progenator. In fact, the

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The greatest of magicians, Herrmann, closes his season at the Bush this week. An audience that crowded all three tiers of the Bush, wrapt in attention of his feats, has greeted him every night. He may be counted one of Manager Leavitt's most successful cards. He performs his feats with such quickness and dexterity that even the most lynx-eyed individuals cannot see how they are done.

It will be seen by referring to the programme that he gives his best acts in his last performance.

—o—

Mr. Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement on Monday next, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," will have its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her." The story has had a very extensive sale and is still popular among novel readers.

The scene of the play opens at Monte Carlo, the great gambling establishment of the world. The characters are those who frequent such places, the better classes, tourists, sight-seers, noblemen, gamesters and adventurers, etc. The little colony that mingled together at Monte Carlo, the Flower girl, the adventuress—"the Tigress," her brother, and the titled personages of society, afterwards meet in various dramatic situations of intense interest, culminating in an exposure of the adventures at a Masque Ball in the last act. There are lighter parts and comedy elements interwoven in the woof of the play, that are given due prominence.

Alcazar Theatre.

This week McKee Rankin gave us one of his strong frontier parts as Jean Cadeaux, in "The Canuck." The play is located in Canada, near the Vermont line, and does not go much out the beaten pathway of domestic dramas. Jean is an observant old farmer, in dialect and every characteristic a thorough Canadian habitant. Mr. Rankin localizes the character in deportment, dialect and costume very distinctively. He makes it as he promises, "A character new to the stage."

The chief characters of the play fall into the good hands of Mabel Bert, E. J. Buckley and L. R. Stockwell, with the Alcazar Company generally called for in the distribution. Mabel Bert sustains the unpleasant role of an openly bad adventuress with well poised power.

"Canuck" for the last time on Sunday night.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar next week in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49."

Mark Thall, the active and popular business manager of the Alcazar, has a benefit jointly tendered to him by Manager Wallenrod, Stockwell and McKee Rankin on Monday night. As Mark Thall is the pioneer manager of all our resident managers now here in the theatrical business—though he has not a gray hair among his black ones yet—the '49" play comes in very apropos.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company hold the stage of the California for their second week in "A Brass Monkey," never played here before. This last piece Hoyt's calls a satire on superstition, but is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

As to the plot of the piece—well, that does not matter. It is Hoyt's incidents and characters, his conceits and comicalities that make his plays palatable.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

Next week is the last one of "A Brass Monkey."

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Grand Opera House.

A late dispatch from John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, announces that he will be here on Sunday, and that he will open his season on Monday evening, October 21st; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing direct; but the New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, opens at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Compnay can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

Business has been fine, and the same bill will be given for next week.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Mechanics' Pavilion — Industrial Exhibition.

This is the last week of the Twenty-fourth Industrial Exhibition of the Mechanics' Institute, a most interesting exhibit of the manufactured and natural productions of California, as well as a reflex of our inventions, and the products of our arts and sciences.

The "Fair" is a great resort, a credit to our city and State, and we are pleased to state that the exhibition has drawn larger attendance at the Pavilian this year than at any previous ones.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opened this week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life" with marked success in his original character of "Skid," a comic darkey.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

"The James Boys," a melodrama of thrilling adventures and scenes, founded on the career of these outlaws and desperados, will be the bill for Mr. France's second week here. He appears in his orginal part of Buckskin, Darrell Vinton plays Jesse, and Walter Adrian Frank James.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

The Coyne Brothers, acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance artistes, the Oatley Sisters; Miss Belle Kirby, the sword walker; Maggie Burnell, the winger of wingers in dancing, and the Quigley Bros., song and dance artists, put in new appearances this week.

J. W. Kelley, improvisatore and comedian; Delmonio, the fire king, from Orrin Brothers' Circus, Mexico; S. G. Beasley, musical artist; Miss Mamie Chatwood, song and dance artiste; Franks & Marion, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Emmett & Doyle, change artists, vocalists and dancers, and Rennise Morton, operatic vocalist, are added to next week's bill.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

The Tudors, clever specialists; Dryden & Mitchell, the comedians; the Thies, the Hottentots; Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artist; Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayaunaetta, the aerial queen, are the latest at the Union.

George Drew, comedian; Miss May Deacon, Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

John Tudor's musical comedy, "Afloat in Mid-Ocean," is the principal piece this week.

Glenn & Weston, musical artists, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artiste, are the new comers for next week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no gassing is permitted.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Cremorne presents an array of new faces: The Phoites, with their pantomime of "The Four Lovers;" the Thies, the black sketch artists; Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others.

"The Four Lovers" is a pantomime comedy and has Nestell and most of the company in the cast.

Senor Delmonic, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances at the Cremorne next week.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, the German Comiques, and Miss Belle Arnold, banjo soloist and vocalist, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude acts are West & Fowler's "America vs. Germany," and the farce comedy of "The Wrong House," with Burns, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Josie Lescor, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield and the new talent.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Drummond & Stahle, the Musical Blacksmiths, put in new appearances this week in their act, producing fine music on a horseshoe, an anvil and other implements. It is a novel and original act. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with Pete Smith's funny comedy of "Fun at Petaluma," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new creation, "Shinny on Your Side," and Drummond & Stahle's act of "Senator Dinklespiel."

S. G. Beasley, the musical king; Miss Florence Wood, balladist, and Miss Rose Ellwood, serio-comic, appear now here next week.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Lulu Martell, vocalist and dancer, and Miss Mamie Sanford, motto singer, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Chas. Franks make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY..... OCTOBER 7, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

A GREAT LORD MAYOR'S SHOW.

The Lord Mayor Show, in which his Honor makes a grand parade officially tendering his fealty to the Queen, is a great day in London. A cablegram tells us that all the London papers on Sunday morning, except the Sunday Herald—a branch venture of the New York Herald—published the programme of the Lord Mayor's Show, which had been sent to them on Saturday for publication.

Among its features were a number of allegorical floats, one of them representing "England and America, drawn by twelve cream horses;" "an American band of forty musicians in a chariot drawn by twelve horses." It also mentioned thirty American thoroughbreds and jockeys, twenty camels and dromedaries, "a new musical pantechnichon in a chariot drawn by twelve lamas," and "twelve ostriches drawing cars."

The programme was accepted in good faith, and the parade part of it excited mingled admiration, wonder, doubt and indignation, according to the politics and calibre of intelligence of the reader. It was the great subject of controversy in London.

The New York Herald, scenting some job in the air, American-like, sent a reporter to interview the Mayor, Sir Henry Isaacs, although it was Sunday, and telegraphs the result: "He looked long and anxiously at the programme," says the Herald man. "He first thought that there must be some mistake. Then he assured him that there was a mistake. He read the programme carefully, and the more he read the more surprised he seemed. He finally said: 'Marvelous! astonishing!' and was then lost for ninety seconds in deep thought. Having emerged, he said: 'Then this can't be the programme, for it will not be decided upon until to-morrow. Twelve gentlemen, six appointed by me and six appointed by two Sheriffs, will meet at Guild Hall to-morrow and arrange the programme. A circus man, Barnum, has tendered some of his fine horses. I cannot say what the committee will do, but I can say that there will be no floats, no lamas, no ostriches and no Barnum in the Lord Mayor's Show.'"

After some chat of a general nature about the show Sir Henry Isaacs said: "There is no intention to offend a man like Barnum, but he can't be permitted to interfere with the Lord Mayor's Show. The publication of this programme is audacious." The bogus programme is undoubtedly the work of Barnum's advance agent springing an advertising mine on the British public.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Chiarini's Circus opens in Central Park, Market and Eighth streets, on Nov. 4th. He is now in the Sandwich Islands, coming there from Japan.

The Vaidis Sisters and their vaudeville company are playing to fine business at the Brooklyn Theatre.

The great Barnum Show has closed early that everything may be made ready for the trip across the Atlantic to London town on October 16th.

Elden Victorelli, a specialty performer, and Laura Korzenborn, of Newark, Ohio, were lately married. So Vic has been led a captive again.

Primrose & West's Minstrels are doing good business at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, drew largely at the Orpheum last week and is continued this.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

Bottle Meier's, a regular minor theatre with horseshoe circle and all, presents a very full and taking vaudeville programme, with a little of almost everything in it, elsewhere in our columns. Bottle Meier's gives a good performance

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Henry Lee opened in his new play, "The Suspect," at the Brooklyn Criterion last week.

Manager Heinrich Conreid has begun a suit in the Court of Common Pleas to recover $6 039 92 from James D. Carson, manager of the Columbia Theatre, Chicago. This is a claim for alleged unpaid royalties due upon plays and operettas presented at Mr. Carson's theatre since May 1, 1888.

Chas. L. Bert goes ahead of Nick Roberts Humpty-Dumpty Co. in the interior.

Mme. Albertini, a prominent and even a star actress, who has been blind since 1875, died in New Bedford on the 6th inst. Mme. Albertini was a native of Tiverton, R. I., and was born in 1830. She adopted the stage early in life as a profession, took lessons in dancing from the once famous Pauline Desjardens, who came to this country with Fannie Ellsler, and soon became almost her teacher's equal as a danseuse. She starred in "The French Spy," and then as Dot in "The Cricket on the Hearth," traveled with Frank Chanfrau a number of years. She had a company of her own on the Pacific Coast and visited Australia. It was there that she was stricken with blindness, after an attack of the Colon fever. Captain Ralph Chandler, U. S. Navy, found her in an asylum in Ballarat, destitute and totally blind, and brought her to America in the Swartara. Since that time Mme. Albertini has been an invalid, living with a sister in New Bedford.

The Kendals make their first appearance in New York at the Fifth Avenue Theatre October 7th.

"The Black Crook" owed its original production to a curious chance. It was written by Charles M. Barras, a cranky stage carpenter, who considered it the effort of his life. He took it to William Wheatley, who was then managing Niblo's Garden, New York, and Wheatley thrust the manuscript in his drawer. Meantime Jarrett & Palmer bought the scenery and costumes of "La Chatte Blanche" in Paris and brought them to New York together with an imported ballet troupe. They applied to Wheatley for a play to fit their materials and he hauled out the half-forgotten "Black Crook" from its lurking place with the remark that he thought it might answer. It was brought out at Niblo's in 1866 with such success that it made fortunes for Wheatley, Jarrett & Palmer and Barras. The latter's heirs drew a large royalty from it for years, we think $250 a week. Though so long before the public it is still one of the most popular of the spectacular pieces.

M. B. Leavitt's spectacular production of Fraser and Gill's pantomime burlesque, "The Spider and the Fly," is a success. The company engaged to illustrate the spectacle is especially well selected, and in their several parts captured encores from the start. The Dramatic News says: "Hilda Thomas, Bessie Cleveland, Pauline Markham, Louise Allen, Ray Allen and Ada Dare, of the many clever ladies, were excellent. The male part of the company, which includes Tommy Dare, Dorste & Oreste, the Lenten Bros., the Dares, James R. Allen and Sam J. Ryan, all scored hits. Taken all around, there is not a better or more taking attraction on the road. The costumes are beautiful and the scenic effects magnificent. The many tricks introduced in the pantomime are new and novel." Another journal says: "The burlesque pantomime is in three acts. The first scene introduces Pauline Markham as Anarchi, and this is transformed five or six times, and ends with a beautiful scene of New York and the Brooklyn Bridge. There is also introduced a very funny grocery scene and a gymnasium, where a great many specialties are introduced. The last tranformation is very gorgeous, and was received with great applause. Some forty or fifty people are employed, and among them are some of the best talent in the country."

John Maguire is en route for this city to be present at the opening of the Grand on the 21st inst.

Under the heading of "Mr. Rial's New Venture" the last New York Dramatic News has this paragraph anent the Grand Opera House opening: "Mr. Jay Rial is about to go to San Francisco to assume the management of the Grand Opera House, of which John Maguire is the lessee. Mr. Rial handles the house under exceptionally favorable conditions, and he has secured for it a list of attractions conveying the impression that his season there will be marked by the highest type of prosperity and standing. Mme. Patti plays three weeks there, and "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions are already booked. It is Mr. Rial's intention to make a number of fine productions on his own account, and with that end in view he has secured the rights to a dozen already successful plays, for the representation of which he will take out a company headed by J. H. Gilmour. Mr. Rial is a great social favorite in San Francisco, as indeed he is wherever he may be known, and great things are naturally expected of his season in the metropolis of the Pacific.

In London a hair-raising drama called "Florence Maybrick" is shortly to be produced.

Lydia Thompson and her new English comedietta company, comprising eight persons, are in New York, and have designs on us.

A new musical speciacle called "Stanley in Africa" will shortly be produced at the Victoria Theatre, Berlin.

The "Sentenced for Life" Company's fate is over. It died a few days ago at Rochester, New York.

Lawrence Barrett's neck and the side of his head are in a painful condition. The glands are badly swollen, and the interior swelling is giving him great trouble. It is a hereditary complaint. He is making all arrangements, however, to go on with his season in "Ganelon," though his friends fear he will have to submit to severe surgical treatment before he will be presentable.

It is reported that Charles R. Gardiner is stricken with blindness.

Peter Fleming, brother of W. J. Fleming, the veteran actor, and well known to Niblo patrons as Herz g in "The Black Crook," died recently in New York city.

There is a probability of legal trouble between Manager Hammerstein, of the new Harlem Opera House, and Manager McKee, of the "Mankind" combination, owing to Mr. Hammerstein's alleged intent not to play "Mankind" at his theatre, although he has signed a contract to do so; and therefore Frank McKee is going after him legally, with hammer and tongs.

Edwin Booth's programme, supported by Mme. Modjeska, for their opening week in Pittsburg was "The Merchant of Venice," "Richelieu," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "The Fool's Revenge." Booth opens his New York season at the Broadway Theatre on the 14th in "Richelieu."

Manager Maguire has postponed the opening of the Grand Opera House until Monday, October 21st.

"Shenandoah" had only five weeks booked at the Star Theatre, New York, and not being able to buy off dates at that house arrangements have been made to continue its run at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre.

John H. Gilmour, who has been engaged by Jay Rial in New York as leading man for the company he is bringing for the Grand Opera House in this city is the actor who made such a hit as the Earl in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Broadway Theatre, New York. Mr. Gilmour is a graduate of Wallack's Theatre, a thorough gentleman, a good fellow, a handsome man and one of the best all around actors in the country.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies are at the Bush, opening in their new London play, "The Tigress," a society play of European life.

Lately, during a performance of "Hamlet" at Boston, the pronounced brogue of Queen Gertrude revealed the fact that Shakespeare's melancholy Dane was of Irish parentage. Here is another Shakespearean mystery to unravel.

W. W. Kelly has ran against something that downed him at last. London sewer gas did what no man has yet been able to do, and "The Hustler" is put on the shelf for repairs. He will probably hustle up a suit against the city of London for £27,000,000 damage as soon as he gets on his feet.

Philosopher Denman Thompson don't believe in bucking at a game when you have to die to win. He says that he is not a believer in life insurance. His late partner and manager, J. M. Hill, was insured in five different companies, and every one of them collapsed, and "Hill ain't dead yet."

Now they say that neither cigarettes

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Joseph B. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement this week, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," will have its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her." The story has had a very extensive sale and is still popular among novel readers.

The scene of the play opens at Monte Carlo, the great gambling establishment of the world. The characters are those who frequent such places, the better classes, tourists, sight-seers, noblemen, gamesters and adventurers, etc. The little colony that mingled together at Monte Carlo, the Flower girl, the adventuress—"the Tigress," her brother, and the titled personages of society, afterwards meet in various dramatic situations of intense interest, culminating in an exposure of the adventures at a Masque Ball in the last act. There are lighter parts and comedy elements interwoven in the woof of the play, that are given due prominence.

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," next week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here, which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar this week in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49," a strong and interesting drama of early mining life, in which he plays a character that none have equaled him in. Mabel Bert is the Carrots of the cast.

Mark Thall, the active and popular business manager of the Alcazar, has a benefit jointly tendered to him by Manager Wallenrod, Stockwell and McKee Rankin this evening. As Mark Thall is the pioneer manager of all our resident managers now here in the theatrical business—though he has not a gray hair among his black ones yet—the "49" play comes in very apropos.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company is at the California for its third and last week in "A Brass Monkey."

It is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialities. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron) —in their "Bazzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

New music and songs will be introduced for the last week.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Patti Rosa follows in her new piece "Margery Daw."

Grand Opera House.

A late dispatch from John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, announces that he will be here on time, and that he will open his season on Monday evening, October 21st; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing direct; but the New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Maguire's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, closes at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Compnay can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

Business has been fine, and extra matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday for ladies and children. Ladies, 25 cents to all parts of the house; children, 10 cents.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opened last week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life" with marked success in his original character of "Skid," a comic darkey.

"The James Boys," a melodrama of thrilling adventures and scenes, founded on the career of these outlaws and desperados, will be the bill for Mr. France's second week here. He appears in his orininal part of Buckskin. Darrell Vinton plays Jesse, and Walter Adrian Frank James.

See cast and synopsis in programme else where in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Emmett & Doyle, change artists, vocalists and dancers, and Rennise Morton, operatic vocalist, are added to this week's bill. In addition the Coyne Bros., acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; J. W. Kelley, improvisatore; the ever popular Tudors, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Glenn & Weston, musical artists, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week. Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaette, the aerial queen, are the late additions.

George Drew, comedian; Harry Bryant, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lottie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

For rattling fun this week Ford Brothers' "Irish Aristocracy" comedy takes the cake.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Senor Delmonic, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances this week. Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are returned, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

In addition Dryden & Mitchell put in appearances in their comedy of "The O'Malleys" and create lots of fun.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Miss Lottie Gardner, a dashing serio-comic, makes her first appearance this week, and Jas. Fitz, the Irish comedian, puts in a reappearance.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Mixtures," with Fitz, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, Fitz, Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner.

The Comique's company is a strong one in certed pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G. Beasley, the musical king; Miss Florence Wood, balladist, and Miss Rose Ellwood, serio-comic, appear new here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny comedy of "Our Jail Birds," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the new act of "Innocence," which calls for all the company.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Rose Ellwood, Florence Wood and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Lulu Martell, vocalist and dancer, and Miss Mamie Sanford, motto singer, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Wm. Baker make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Many American theatrical people are playing "Atonem London" just at present. That is, the rush for America in September was so great that they could not get passage home at a moment's notice and had to wait their turn. The New York Truth says: "The rush this way has been so enormous that at the present writing I am told that something like a thousand Americans in London just now are unable to obtain transportation of any kind across to Atlantic. A very large number of these are professional people who, improvident in making their arrangements for the future just as they are improvident in everything they do in life, find themselves without any possible facilities for returning home. They must simply wait until the transatlantic travel lights up. In the meanwhile one of our best known commediennes, whose name out of charity I will refrain from mentioning, came over last week in the steerage."

Manager Al Hayman of the Baldwin Theatre has entered suit in the Superior Court against Herrmann, the magician, for $3000 damages for violation of a contract made between the two by which Herrmann

The production of the new spectacle, 'Kajanka,' at Heuck's Opera House, Cincinnati, was a success. The piece made a very vivid impression. It is one of the most gorgeous productions of the kind that has ever been staged in that city.

The theatrical season at New Orleans opens very auspiciously.

The "New King Cole" has not the jolly old soul of his progenator. In fact, the the New King is worrying himself half to death how to keep on his travels beyond Denver.

EVENING EDITION

TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 8, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

A GREAT LORD MAYOR'S SHOW.

The Lord Mayor Show, in which his Honor makes a grand parade officially tendering his fealty to the Queen, is a great day in London. A cablegram tells us that all the London papers on Sunday morning, except the Sunday Herald—a branch venture of the New York Herald—published the programme of the Lord Mayor's Show, which had been sent to them on Saturday for publication.

Among its features were a number of allegorical floats, one of them representing "England and America, drawn by twelve cream horses;" "an American band of forty musicians in a chariot drawn by twelve horses." It also mentioned thirty American thoroughbreds and jockeys, twenty camels and dromedaries, "a new musical pantechnichon in a chariot drawn by twelve lamas,' and "twelve ostriches drawing cars.'

The programme was accepted in good faith, and the parade part of it excited mingled admiration, wonder, doubt and indignation, according to the politics and calibre of intelligence of the reader. It was the great subject of controversy in London.

The New York Herald, scenting some job in the air, American-like, sent a reporter to interview the Mayor, Sir Henry Isaacs, although it was Sunday, and telegraphs the result: "He looked long and anxiously at the programme," says the Herald man. "He first thought that there must be some mistake. Then he assured him that there was a mistake. He read the programme carefully, and the more he read the more surprised he seemed. He finally said: 'Marvelous! astonishing!' and was then lost for ninety seconds in deep thought. Having emerged, he said: 'Then this can't be the programme, for it will not be decided upon until to-morrow. Twelve gentlemen, six appointed by me and six appointed by two Sheriffs, will meet at Guild Hall to-morrow and arrange the programme. A circus man, Barnum, has tendered some of his fine horses. I cannot say what the committee will do, but I can say that there will be no floats, no lamas, no ostriches and no Barnum in the Lord Mayor's Show.'"

After some chat of a general nature about the show Sir Henry Isaacs said: "There is no intention to offend a man like Barnum, but he can't be permitted to interfere with the Lord Mayor's Show. The publication of this programme is audacious." The bogus programme is undoubtedly the work of Barnum's advance agent springing an advertising mine on the British public.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Extra Humpty-Dumpty matinees for invited children at the Orpheum on Wednesday and Saturday this week. Higher admission, 10 and 25 cents. See programme and cut me now.

The Big Event set by the three Oatley Sisters and the Quigley Brothers as the big feature of this week's bill at the Wigwam.

W. R. Peck, advance representative of the Great London Olympic Specialty Company, that opens at the Orpheum next week, is in town.

Cleaves' Circus opens in Central Park, Market and Eighth streets, on Nov. 4 to. He is now in the Sandwich Islands, coming here from Japan.

The Vance Sisters and their vaudeville company are playing to fine business at the Brooklyn Theatre.

The great Barnum show has closed again for the winter, and is making ready for the big move to the Atlantic to London town on October 16.

Eight Vienna girls, a specialty performer, and Leon Kenzaburo at Newark, Ohio, were lately married. So Vic has been left a comparative wreck.

Primrose & West's Minstrels are doing good business at the Grand Opera House, Pittsburg.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, drew largely at the Orpheum last week and is continued this.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Wilkie Collins, the famous novelist, who died at London, Sept. 23d, of paralysis of the heart, was also a successful play-writer. His first drama was "The Lighthouse," which was acted in private at the house of Charles Dickens. It was first performed at Camden House, Kensington, for the benefit of a charity connected with the army in the Crimea. Charles Dickens assumed the part of Aaron Gurnoob, head light-keeper; Wilkie Collins, that of Martin Gurnoch; Jacob Dale was acted by Mark Lemon; a Shipwrecked Lady, Miss Hogarth (Dickens' sister-in-law); Phœbe, the eldest Miss Dickens. "The Lighthouse" was also brought out in public at the London Olympic with marked success. "The Frozen Deep," Collins' second drama, had a similar history, having been produced at Dickens' house by amateurs, and also at the Olympic, but had only a limited popularity. Wilkie Collins, in collaboration with Dickens, dramatized the beautiful Christmas story, "No Thoroughfare," which Charles Fechter brought out with great eclat at the Adelphi Theatre, London, of which he was then the manager. Florence played the Swiss hero in "No Thoroughfare" with almost a Fechter-like ability in dialect and acting. He revived it here during his last engagement at the Baldwin Theatre. "Black and White" was also adapted by Messrs. Collins and Fechter, and produced at the Adelphi, as was also "Man and Wife."

Of all the benefits, great or small, little or tall, none equaled that of Mark Thall in excitement, when he was called out for a speech last evening at the Alcazar. They would have him out; and really he acquitted himself very creditably with a nice little speech. Chief Usher Peyser is committing what he can remember of it to memory to use over for his next benefit in 1892, and it is rumored that Rankin made some notes for future exigencies.

The Jefferson-Florence season begins in New York next week.

Hoyt has added an ominous undertaker to his "Brass Monkey."

Louise Allen, of the Allen Sisters, is getting creamy notices for good work in "The Spider and the Fly."

A dispatch from Indianapolis (Ind.) of Oct. 7th says: "At Mount Vernon today George Rice, an aeronaut with a circus, made an ascension. As he descended over the river he became tangled in the ropes and was dragged through the water and drowned. This was Rice's one hundredth ascension."

Clara Lane and J. K. Murray, members of the Carleton Company, have added a choir-boy to their family recently. He has the musical talent of his parents, and voices himself nicely already.

Sothern shakes "Lord Chumley" on the 26th, at the close of his engagement. He is to have a new comedy ready for his Spring season. It is said to be "from the pen of a charming actress, the wife of a good comedian, and a woman of conceded literary ability." Shakespeare and Sheridan never had those advantages to father their plays.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, for many years popular London comedians in society parts, made their first American appearance in "A Scrap of Paper" at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, last evening, and had a favorable reception. The dispatch describes Mrs. Kendal as "a healthy, wholesome and very presentable matron. She may be said to have captivated her observers, but not to have rapturously enslaved them." But little is said of her acknowledged ability as an actress, but much space is given in the article to her professional pedigree, which extends over many years. Of Mr. Kendal it says: "His big, solid, honest sort of personality—not suggesting at any moment the make-believe of an actor—commanded a hearty liking.' He is given credit for "naturalness of humor" and "effective skill." Mr. Kendal is hale, hearty, rotund and fifty. This does not look as though the Kendals would impoverish the country by their earnings. Wise heads counseled American managers against bringing them over.

It seems a hard law that will hold a man in imprisonment for months for a small debt, yet such is the case of a former manager, Robert Grau, who has been locked up in Ludlow Street Jail, New York, for the past two months. He has applied to Judge Daly for a release. He was arrested by a chorus girl, formerly in his employ, who sought to recover $60—five weeks' salary.

Under the heading of "Mr. Rial's New Venture" the last New York Dramatic News has this paragraph about the Grand Opera House opening: "Mr. Jay Rial is about to go to San Francisco to assume the management of the Grand Opera House, of which John Maguire is the lessee. Mr. Rial undertakes the venture under exceptionally favorable conditions, and he has secured for it a list of attractions conveying the impression that his season there will be marked by the highest type of progress and standing. Mme. Janauschek plays three weeks there, and 'The Dark Secret,' 'The Great Metropolis' and about thirty other heavy and important productions are already booked. It is Mr. Rial's intention to make a number of fine productions on his own account, and with that end in view he has secured the rights to a dozen already successful plays, for the representation of which he will take out a company headed by J. H. Gilmour. Mr. Rial is a great social favorite in San Francisco, as indeed he is wherever he may be known, and great things are naturally expected of his season in the metropolis of the Pacific.

TESTIMONIALS.

Harry Hook, the policeman who has been detailed on Bush street for a number of years, has won the good will of all who knew him for his manly qualities, intelligence, and efficiency. His recent promotion to Sergeant brought him two valuable tokens of the esteem in which he is held. His beat took in the Bush and California theatres. Upon his appointment Harry Mann, manager of the California, presented him with an elegant silver-mounted pistol, that was on exhibition at Mechanics' Fair. In the meantime Manager Gottlob of the Bush was having a proper testimonial prepared to show his esteem of the retiring officer's efficient services. It was presented yesterday. It is an elegant silver badge of regulation size denoting his new rank. The badge is a seven-pointed star, upon the face of which are the words "Sergeant Police" in gold-raised letters. In the center is a blue-enameled circle, with the figures "73" in gold. In each point of the large star and in its center are rubies. The surface of the badge is further decorated with various ornamental devices in gold. Upon the reverse is the inscription "Presented to Harry Hook by J. J. Gottlob." Sergeant Hook, with natural modesty, shirks about being badgered about the badge, and wants to go off whenever that silver-mounted pistol is mentioned to him; but older officers say that he will soon get over that, and hook on the badge as though it was a zink one, and think no more of using that pistol than if it was an old pioneer Allen pepper box revolver.

Edwin Booth's programme, supported by Mme. Modjeska, for their opening week in Pittsburg was "The Merchant of Venice," "Richelieu," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "The Fool's Revenge." Booth opens his New York season at the Broadway Theatre on the 14th in "Richelieu."

Manager Maguire has postponed the opening of the Grand Opera House until Monday, October 21st.

"Shenandoah" had only five weeks booked at the Star Theatre, New York, and not being able to buy off dates at that house arrangements have been made to continue its run at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre.

J. H. Gilmour, who has been engaged by Jay Rial in New York a leading man for the company he is bringing for the Grand Opera House in this city is the actor who made such a hit as the Earl in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Broadway Theatre, New York. Mr. Gilmour is a graduate of Wallack's Theatre, a thorough gentleman, a good fellow, a handsome man and one of the best all around actors in the country.

Chas. L. Bert goes ahead of Nick Roberts Humpty-Dumpty Co. in the interior.

Lastly, during a performance of "Hamlet" at Boston, the pronounced brogue of Queen Gertrude revealed the fact that Shakespeare's melancholy Dane was of Irish parentage. Here is another Shakespearean mystery to unravel.

W. W. Kelly has ran against something that downed him at last. London sewer gas did what no man has yet been able to do, and "The Hustler" is put on the shelf for repairs. He will probably hustle up a suit against the city of London for £27,000,000 damage as soon as he gets on his feet.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Joseph B. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement this week, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," has had its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her." The story has had a very extensive sale and is still popular among novel readers.

The scene of the play opens at Monte Carlo, the great gambling establishment of the world. The characters are those who frequent such places, the better classes, tourists, sight-seers, noblemen, gamesters and adventurers, etc. The little colony that mingled together at Monte Carlo, the Flower girl, the adventuress—"the Tigress," her brother, and the titled personages of society, afterwards meet in various dramatic situations of intense interest, culminating in an exposure of the adventure at a Masque Ball in the last act. There are lighter parts and comedy elements interwoven in the woof of the play, that are given due prominence.

The Examiner claims that "'The Tigress' has novelty enough, emotions enough and sensations enough to make it interesting and even thrilling to a large class of play-goers."

Miss Phœbe Davies rises at times to a grandeur of feeling as the wronged and persecuted woman that the much overlauded Davenport never reached, even with Sardou's sentiments to inspire her. She was at her best in her interviews with the "Tigress," and evinced inspirational as well as rare dramatic powers.

Miss Isabelle Archer does surprising good work as the adventuress, a character that requires great force to sustain it. It is full of promising power in one so young.

Mr. Grismer personates an Italian in the instigating society villain with great adroitness and good dialect. He plays the cool, heartless, calculating scamp that the part demands very impressively.

Hugo Toland is the society good man, gentle manly and finished, to life. Weir dies in the prologue, but makes a good mark in his short existence. Harry Davenport is very clever as Lord Noddy, even though the part is a nid-noddy sort of a one, and Miss Stevens tries equally hard to give interest to a companion character. Their scenes are enlivened up by some terse witticisms, fortunately, that give glimpses of brightness to them. Miss Amy Roberts, Miss Lina Crews and Little Laura Crews act their respective parts creditably.

The "Tigress" will draw good houses the week out.

Mr. Grismer previves that pronounced success, "The Burglar," next week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here, which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its character. [illegible]

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar this week in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49," a strong and interesting drama of early mining life, in which he plays a character that none have equaled him in.

The play is almost as familiar to the theatre [illegible] and action breathe the spirit of the time for which it was written. "49" gives a realistic dramatic vision of the past, and no character stands out in bolder relief in the frontier [illegible] broken-down old miner.

[illegible] strong cast. Mabel Bert is very good as Carrots, playing the part vivaciously and with spirit. Buckley makes a manly, dashing Arthur Denmore. Stockwell is unctiously humorous as the old-fashioned negro, Old Ned. James M. Ward, as the "General;" Leo Cooper, a self-assertive Lawyer; Louis Belmour, in his dual role, and Fanny Young as Mississippi, all give graphic portraitures. Miss Nellie Buckley and Carrie Clarke Ward also deserve notice for their good work.

Mark Thall had a crusher for his benefit.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar next week in her new play, "For Sweet [illegible]

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company is at the California for its third and last week in "A Brass Monkey."

It is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Bazzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

New music and songs will be introduced for the last week.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Patti Rosa follows in her new piece, "Margery Daw."

Grand Opera House.

A late dispatch from John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, announces that he will be here on time, and that he will open his season on Monday evening, October 21st; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing direct; but the New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, closes at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Compnay can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

Business has been fine, and extra matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday for ladies and children. Ladies, 25 cents to all parts of the house; children, 10 cents.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, will be next week's attraction.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opened last week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life" with marked success in his original character of "Skid," a comic darkey.

"The James Boys," a melodrama of thrilling adventures and scenes, founded on the career of these outlaws and desperados, will be the bill for Mr. France's second week here. He appears in his orininal part of Buckskin, Darrell Vinton plays Jesse, and Walter Adrian Frank James.

See cast and synopsis in programme else where in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Emmett & Doyle, change artists, vocalists and dancers, and Bennise Morton, operatic vocalist, are added to this week's bill. In addition the Coyne Bros., acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world; the three song and dance Ottley sisters; Maggie Burnell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; J. W. Kelley, improvisatore; the ever popular Tudors, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classification.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Glenn & Weston, musical artists, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week. Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaetta, the aerial queen, are the late additions.

George Drew, comedian; Harry Bryant, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

For rattling fun this week Ford Brothers' "Irish Aristocracy" comedy takes the cake.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Senor Delmonio, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances this week. Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

In addition Dryden & Mitchell put in appearances in their comedy of "The O'Malleys" and create lots of fun.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Miss Lottie Gardner, a dashing serio-comic, makes her first appearance this week, and Jas. Fitz, the Irish comedian, puts in a reappearance.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Mixtures," with Fitz, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, Fitz, Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger house.

S. G. Beasley, the musical king; Miss Florence Wood, balladist, and Miss Rose Ellwood, serio-comic, appear new here this week in acts and specialities. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny comedy of "Our Jail Birds," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the new act of "Innocence," which calls for all the company.

C. B. BISHOP DIES IN THE THEATRE.

"Remember, girls, the motto to-night is hilarity," were the last words uttered by Charles B. Bishop in the character of Adam Butterworth, in "Lord Chumley," as he made his exit from the stage of the Lyceum Theatre, New York, last evening in the first act of the comedy and started for his dressing-room. He never spoke again. He fell in a dead faint and expired. His trouble was heart disease. His wife was with him in his room, gave the alarm. E. H. Sothern stepped before the curtain in his Lord Chumley costume and dismissed the audience, and all were startled at the sudden presence of Death in their midst.

Charles B Bishop was born in Baltimore, was 52 years of age, and adopted the stage as a profession over thirty years ago. In his earlier years he was a member of Wm. E. Burton's company, and it was this great comedian's teachings that formed his school of acting. He was afterwards, for some years, with Ford in his Baltimore theatre, and it was here he became proficient in Shakespearean comedy parts, in which he was unexcelled by any actor on the stage. His versatility was remarkable. He could play the entire line of comedy roles in Shakespeare, and was almost equally good in old farce characters, modern comedy, and even in burlesque parts. He was famed for his Pistol, Peter, Launcelot, Gobbo, Grave Digger, Toodles and Burtonian parts, and starred for two years as the Widow Bedott, and as the Drummer in "Strictly Business."

Bishop first visited California with Barrett, in the famed "Henry V" eighty-four-hour trip across the continent in the summer of 1876. He afterwards was for several years a member of the old California Theatre Company and became immensely popular. His good-humored face, his cheerfulness, his merry, active mind made him a jovial companion, and his success hardly knew a check in the course of his career here. In small or large parts, in farce, comedy or Shakespeare, he played the character always with ability, and he was as careful and attentive an actor as ever trod the stage. Society plays gradually came into vogue, and though personally less suited to the comedy roles, his genuine acting knowledge and spirit made him acceptable in anything.

The curtain has actually fallen on the death of an inimitable, kind-hearted gentleman, a scholar—for Bishop was a student in scientific and general literature—and actor. One whose gifts and accomplishments have added many hours of pleasure to innumerable lives, and one whose key-note of life was the spirit of what he uttered with his last breath—"hilarity."

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Extra Humpty-Dumpty matinees for ladies and children at the Orpheum on Wednesday and Saturday this week. Highest admission, 10 and 25 cents. See programme announcement.

The Big Five act by the three Oatley Sisters and the Quigley Brothers is a big feature of this week's bill at the Wigwam.

W. R. Peck, advance representative of the Great London Olympic Specialty Company, that opens at the Orpheum next week, is in town.

Chas. Circus opens in Central Park, Market and Eighth street, on Nov. 4 h. He is now in the Sandwich Islands, coming there from Japan.

The Vance Sisters and their vaudeville company are playing to fine business at the Brooklyn Theatre.

Elden Victorelli, a specialty performer, and Laura Kouzenburn, of Newark, Ohio, were lately married. So Vic has been led a captive again.

The great Barnum Show has closed early that everything may be made ready for the trip across the Atlantic to London town on October 16th.

N. B. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, drew largely at the Orpheum last week and is continued this.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and partners in life, have separated.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Nellie McHenry, the bright and lively, opens at the Alcazar next week in her new comedy by Bronson Howard, "For Sweet Charity's Sake," supported by her own company. The sentiment is applied as a motto of an arranged society amateur performance of an Indian drama for the benefit of the little cannibals, and the fun comes in the complications that ensue during its preparation and production.

G. B. Densmore, the critic of the Bulletin, pays this handsome tribute to the little California actress at the Bush. In his notices of "The Tigress" he says: "The redeeming feature is Phœbe Davies' Angela. This is the best acting part Miss Davies has appeared in recently. She has the intensity and flash of Jeffreys-Lewis in her best days, and carries an idea of sincerity which Miss Lewis never did. Her scene at the end of the prologue was strong, but in the third act there is a still better exhibition of her dramatic power."

Fred C. Rust, business manager of Nellie McHenry, who opens at the Alcazar in her new comedy by Bronson Howard, now on the top wave of popular authorship, is in town to let the public know that this vivacious soubrette is coming to the front next week.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies revive their "Burglar" next week. "The Burglar" is a success everywhere. They filled out their two-weeks time at the Bush with it a couple of months ago and turned people away at their last two nights. Cast the same. Box office now open.

Of all the benefits, great or small, little or tall, none equaled that of Mark Thall in excitement, when he was called out for a speech Tuesday night at Alcazar. They would have him out; and really he acquitted himself very creditably with a nice little speech. Chief Usher Peyser is committing what he can remember of it to memory to use over for his next benefit in 1892, and it is rumored that Rankin made some notes for future exigencies.

The Jefferson-Florence season begins in New York next week.

Hoyt has added an ominous undertaker to his "Brass Monkey."

Louise Allen, of the Allen Sisters, is getting creamy notices for good work in "The Spider and the Fly."

A dispatch from Indianapolis (Ind.) of Oct. 7th says: "At Mount Vernon today George Rice, an aeronaut with a circus, made an ascension. As he descended over the river he became tangled in the ropes and was dragged through the water and drowned. This was Rice's one hundredth ascension."

Clara Lane and J. K. Murray, members of the Carleton Company, have added a choir-boy to their family recently. He has the musical talent of his parents, and voices himself nicely already.

Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, for many years popular London comedians in society parts, made their first American appearance in "A Scrap of Paper" at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, last evening, and had a favorable reception. The dispatch describes Mrs. Kendal as "a healthy, wholesome and very presentable matron. She may be said to have captivated her observers, but not to have rapturously enslaved them." But little is said of her acknowledged ability as an actress, but much space is given in the article to her professional pedigree, which extends over many years. Of Mr. Kendal it says: "His big, solid, honest sort of personality—not suggesting at any moment the make-believe of an actor—commanded a hearty liking.' He is given credit for "naturalness of humor" and "effective skill." Mr. Kendal is hale, hearty, rotund and fifty. This does not look as though the Kendals would impoverish the country by their earnings. Wise heads cautioned American managers against bringing them over.

It seems a hard law that will hold a man in imprisonment for months for a small debt, yet such is the case of a former manager, Robert Grau, who has been locked up in Ludlow Street Jail, New York, for the past two months. He has applied to Judge Daly for a release. He was arrested by a chorus girl, formerly in his employ, who sought to recover $60—five weeks' salary.

Now they say that neither cigarettes nor opium killed Bernhardt's husband, as his friends are trying to make out. It was paresis that did it.

Mattie Vickers has closed a continuous season of sixty weeks for a five weeks' rest, and then goes out campaigning again.

"Listen to the Tale of Woe" has got across the Atlantic. Charles Danby and Lettie Lord are singing it in the new burlesque, "Ruy Blas," at the Gaiety Theatre, London.

A new musical spectacle called "Stanley in Africa" will shortly be produced at the Victoria Theatre, Berlin.

The "Sentenced for Life" Company's fate is over. It died a few days ago at Rochester, New York.

Edwin Booth's programme, supported by Mme. Modjeska, for their opening week in Pittsburg was "The Merchant of Venice," "Richelieu," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "The Fool's Revenge." Booth opens his New York season at the Broadway Theatre on the 14th in "Richelieu."

Manager Maguire has postponed the opening of the Grand Opera House until Monday, October 21st.

"Shenandoah" had only five weeks booked at the Star Theatre, New York, and not being able to buy off dates at that house arrangements have been made to continue its run at Proctor's Twenty-Third Street Theatre.

DEATH OF GEORGE Y. STEVENS.

The wires yesterday afternoon brought a message from Fanny Davenport to the Baldwin Theatre management, sent from San Bernardino, requesting them to notify the relatives of George Y. Stevens, a San Francisco member of her company, that he was dying at the St. James Hotel, San Diego. The company left on Sunday morning, played in San Diego Monday night, and took Tuesday morning's train to fill dates at San Bernardino Tuesday night. A dispatch last night notified us that Stevens had several attacks of epileptic fits on the cars en route, lay unconscious at the hotel nearly all day Monday, and died on Tuesday before Miss Davenport's dispatch of warning reached this city.

Mr. Stevens was a well known actor here. He was a member of the Grand Opera House company, and afterwards leading man, during Fred Bert's management, and was also with Charley Bert's Oakland Theatre seasons. He had played leads in many interior touring trips, and possessed a good stage presence and was a competent leading man. He was one of Miss Davenport's company in her late two-weeks "La Tosca" season at the Baldwin, and acted the part of Marquis Attavanti.

Mr. Stevens' relatives, we learn, live near Salinas. His divorced wife and two children reside in this city. It is but another case of a young man, well favored by nature, falling by the wayside through his own recklessness and improvidence. It is not charity to hide the truth in all cases. They can serve better as warning monitors to tell us that when men abuse themselves without stint they must expect to pay the penalty of their transgressions at some time or another.

John H. Gilmour, who has been engaged by Jay Rial in New York as leading man for the company he is bringing for the Grand Opera House in this city is the actor who made such a hit as the Earl in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Broadway Theatre, New York. Mr. Gilmour is a graduate of Wallack's Theatre, a thorough gentleman, a good fellow, a handsome man and one of the best all around actors in the country.

Chas. L. Bert goes ahead of Nick Roberts Humpty-Dumpty Co. in the interior.

Lately, during a performance of "Hamlet" at Boston, the pronounced brogue of Queen Gertrude revealed the fact that Shakespeare's melancholy Dane was of Irish parentage. Here is another Shakespearean mystery to unravel.

W. W. Kelly has run against something that downed him at last. London sewer gas did what no man has yet been able to do, and "The Hustler" is put on the shelf for repairs. He will probably hustle up a suit against the city of London for £27,000,000 damage as soon as he gets on his feet.

John Maguire is en route for this city to be present at the opening of the Grand on the 21st inst.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Primrose & West's Minstrels are doing good business at the Grand Opera House, Philadelphia.

EVENING EDITION

WEDNESDAY.....OCTOBER 9, 1889

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Joseph B. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement this week, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," has had its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her." The story has had a very extensive sale and is still popular among novel readers.

The scene of the play opens at Monte Carlo, the great gambling establishment of the world. The characters are those who frequent such places the better classes, tourists, sight-seers, noblemen, gamesters and adventurers, etc. The little colony that mingled together at Monte Carlo, the Flower girl, the adventuress—"the Tigress," her brother, and the titled personages of society, afterwards meet in various dramatic situations of intense interest, culminating in an exposure of the adventure at a Masque Ball in the last act. There are lighter parts and comedy elements interwoven in the woof of the play, that are given due prominence.

The Examiner claims that "'The Tigress' has novelty enough, emotions enough and sensations enough to make it interesting and even thrilling to a large class of play-goers."

Miss Phœbe Davies rises at times to a grand cur of feeling as the wronged and persecuted woman that the much overlauded Davenport never reached, even with Sardou's sentiments to inspire her. She was at her best in her interviews with the "Tigress," and evinced inspirational as well as rare dramatic powers.

Miss Isabelle Archer does surprising good work as the adventuress, a character that requires great force to sustain it. It is full of promising power in one so young.

Mr. Grismer personates an Italian in the intriguing society villain with great adroitness and good dialect. He plays the cool, heartless, calculating scamp that the part demands very impressively

Hugo Toland is the society good man, gentlemanly and finished to life. Weir dies in the prologue, but makes a good mark in his short existence. Harry Davenport is very clever as Lord Noddy, even though the part is a nid-noddy sort of a one, and Miss Stevens tries equally hard to give interest to a companion character. Their scenes are enlivened up by some terse witticisms, fortunately, that give scintillating brightness to them. Miss Amy Roberts, Miss Lina Orews and Little Laura Orews act their respective parts creditably.

The "Tigress" will draw good houses the week out

Mr. Grismer grevives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," next week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here, which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar this week in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49," a strong and interesting drama of early mining life, in which he plays a character that none have equaled him in.

The play is almost as familiar to the theatre-goer as a standard drama. Scenes, character and action breathe the spirit of the time for which it was written. "49" gives a realistic dramatic vision of the past, and no character stands out in bolder relief in the frontier dramas than Mr. Rankin's broken-down old miner.

"49" has a strong cast. Mabel Bert is very good as Carlota, playing the part vivaciously and with spirit. Buckley makes a manly, dashing Arthur Bennett. Stockwell is most quaintly humorous as the old-fashioned negro, Old Ned. James M. Ward, as the "General," Leo Cooper, a self-assertive Lawyer; Louis Belmour, in his dual roles, and Fanny Young as Mississippi, all give graphic portraitures. Miss Nellie Buckley and Carrie Clarke Ward also deserve notice for their good work.

—o—

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar next week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up for the benefit of the Little Cannibals.

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces.

Box sheet now open.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company is at the California for its third and last week in "A Brass Monkey."

It is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

New music and songs will be introduced for the last week.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Patti Rosa follows in her new piece, "Margery Daw."

Grand Opera House.

A late dispatch from John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, announces that he will be here on time, and that he will open his season on Monday evening, October 21st; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing direct; but the New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Maguire's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, closes at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Compnay can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

Business has been fine, and extra matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday for ladies and children. Ladies, 25 cents to all parts of the house; children, 10 cents.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, will be next week's attraction.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's. He opened last week in his sensational melodrama of "Marked for Life" with marked success in his original character of "Skid," a comic darkey.

"The James Boys," a melodrama of thrilling adventures and scenes, founded on the career of these outlaws and desperados, will be the bill for Mr. France's second week here. He appears in his orininal part of Buckskin. Darrell Vinton plays Jesse, and Walter Adrian Frank James.

See cast and synopsis in programme else where in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Emmett & Doyle, change artists, vocalists and dancers, and Rennise Morton, operatic vocalist, are added to this week's bill. In addition the Coyne Bros., acrobatic song and dancers and the champion hair tearers of the world; the three song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; J. W. Kelley, improvisatore; the ever popular Tudors, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary, remain.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

Glenn & Weston, musical artists, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week. Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaetta, the aerial queen, are the late additions.

George Drew, comedian; Harry Bryant, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

For rattling fun this week Ford Brothers' "Irish Aristocracy" comedy takes the cake.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Senor Delmonio, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artists, put in new appearances this week. Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

In addition Dryden & Mitchell put in appearances in their comedy of "The O'Malleys" and create lots of fun.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Miss Lottie Gardner, a dashing serio-comic, makes her first appearance this week, and Jas. Fitz, the Irish comedian, puts in a reappearance

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Mixtures," with Fitz, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, Fitz, Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny comedy of "Our Jail Birds," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the new act of "Innocence," which calls for all the company.

C. B. BISHOP DIES IN THE THEATRE.

"Remember, girls, the motto to-night is hilarity," were the last words uttered by Charles B. Bishop in the character of Adam Butterworth, in "Lord Chumley," as he made his exit from the stage of the Lyceum Theatre, N. Y., Monday night in the first act of the comedy and started for his dressing-room. He never spoke again. He fell in a dead faint and expired. His trouble was heart disease. His wife was with him in his room, gave the alarm, E. H. Sothern stepped before the curtain in his Lord Chumley costume and dismissed the audience, and all were startled at the sudden presence of Death in their midst.

Charles B. Bishop was born in Baltimore, was 52 years of age, and adopted the stage as a profession over thirty years ago. In his earlier years he was a member of Wm. E. Burton's company, and it was this great comedian's teachings that formed his school of acting. He was afterwards, for some years, with Ford in his Baltimore theatre, and it was here he became proficient in Shakespearean comedy parts, in which he was unexcelled by any actor on the stage. His versatility was remarkable. He could play the entire line of comedy roles in Shakespeare, and was almost equally good in old farce characters, modern comedy, and even in burlesque parts. He was famed for his Pistol, Peter, Launcelot, Gobbo, Grave Digger, Toodles and Burtonian parts, and starred for two years as the Widow Bedott, and as the Drummer in "Strictly Business."

Bishop first visited California with Barrett, in the famed "Henry V" eighty-four-hour trip across the continent in the summer of 1876. He afterwards was for several years a member of the old California Theatre Company and became immensely popular. His good-humored face his cheerfulness, his merry, active mind made him a jovial companion, and his success hardly knew a check in the course of his career here. In small or large parts, in farce, comedy or Shakespeare, he played the character always with ability, and he was as careful and attentive an actor as ever trod the stage. Society plays gradually came into vogue, and though personally less suited to the comedy roles, his genuine acting knowledge and spirit made him acceptable in anything.

The curtain has actually fallen on the death of an irreproachable, kind-hearted gentleman, a scholar—for Bishop was a student in scientific and general literature—and actor. One whose gifts and accomplishments have added many hours of pleasure to innumerable lives, and one whose key-note of life was the spirit of what he uttered with his last breath—"hilarity."

The Jefferson-Florence season begins in New York next week.

Hoyt has added an ominous undertaker to his "Brass Monkey."

John H. Gilmour, who has been engaged by Jay Rial in New York as leading man for the company he is bringing for the Grand Opera House in this city is the actor who made such a hit as the Earl in "Little Lord Fauntleroy" at the Broadway Theatre, New York. Mr. Gilmour is a graduate of Wallack's Theatre, a thorough gentleman, a good fellow, a handsome man and one of the best all around actors in the country.

Chas. L. Bert goes ahead of Nick Roberts Humpty-Dumpty Co. in the interior.

John Maguire is en route for this city to be present at the opening of the Grand on the 21st inst.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Col. McCaull, although out and about is really in no way improved in physical condition. His health continues to be the subject of the gravest alarm to his friends. The business affairs of the company are

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

What is about the stage that has such a fattening influence on its divinities? We believe if a walking skeleton should get stage-struck and make the drama a profession, in six months' time the said walking skeleton would be groaning over inconvenient adipose, and have to take to Banting. Those stage stars who manage to keep their figures lead a life of self-denial that must interfere with half the joys of their career. Caper and frisk as fatiguingly as they may, exhaust themselves as they do with "study," the fat rolls up, and lovely rounded contours disappear beneath the billows. It is said that nothing even in the line of mental fret and worry can prevent this predisposed stoutness, and that its remedy, starvation, causes worse ills by impoverishing the blood; in fact, that healthy flesh cannot be antagonized with safety to the possessor thereof. If a dread of unshapeliness inspires abstemious living, something is gained, but it is hard lines for the butterflies of the stage to forego champagne and dainties in the heyday of youth. Better pass one's life in a tricycle and dine on beefsteak and stale bread, as the fair Lillian Russell does, than succumb to physical grossness, or, better yet, give up the magnetic flesh-making stage.

Louise Allen, of the pretty dancing sisters, is particularly lively in Leavitt's "Spider and Fly" burlesque. They have added to the title. It is now "The Spider, the Fly and the Flea." Louise Allen is the flea.

This season "Fantasma" as presented by the Hanlons is "a dazzling display of scantily attired nymphs, mermaids and fairy queens." Send them out here.

Thomas Ewing, W. E. Bailey, Thomas Burke, John Leary, Amos Brown and Bailey Gatzert, well known local capitalists in Seattle, have organized themselves into a company to construct an opera house in Seattle, costing over $200,000. The edifice will surpass anything in the Northwest, and is intended to rival the finest opera houses of San Francisco. Competitive plans will be advertised for, and the construction will begin just so soon as a plan is chosen.

Hoyt still keeps polishing up his "Brass Monkey." He introduced a new song by Williard T. Barton, "The Wild Man of Borneo," last night, which is good and gives the "Monkey" an extra shine.

It rained nearly steadily for two weeks the latter part of last month in the East, and many traveling companies hurried back to New York to get under the awnings and escape the deluge.

"Hands Across the Sea," Pettit's last English melodrama, is not drawing many hands across the box office window in New York. In fact they say it is not paying.

"Kajanka," the new spectacle, is credited with "making a success in St. Louis." That settles it. If it succeeds there its salvation is assured in Helena, or anywhere else.

The Eddy's Squib says: "Miss Annie Pixley makes her first appearance in New York this season this week at the Windsor Theatre, where she will be seen in 'Zara.'" That looks mighty like zero.

Kate Forsythe has a new play which she brought with her from London. It is a dramatization of Blanche Roosevelt's "Copper Queen." Copper it!

Herbert Marsden's company came to financial grief at New Orleans last week, the moneyed man of the enterprise having failed to respond. The company will however go out in charge of a receiver.

The Bessie Franklin Comedy Company mourns the sudden flight of its star and manager from Jackson, Mich.

Nellie McHenry, the bright and lively, opens at the Alcazar next week in her new comedy by Bronson Howard, "For Sweet Charity's Sake," supported by her own company. The sentiment is applied as a motto of an arranged society amateur performance of an Indian drama for the benefit of the little cannibals, and the fun comes in the complications that ensue during its preparation and production.

G. B. Densmore, the critic of the Bulletin, pays this handsome tribute to the little California actress at the Bush. In his notices of "The Tigress" he says: "The redeeming feature is Phœbe Davies' Angela. This is the best acting part Miss Davies has appeared in recently. She has the intensity and flash of Jeffreys-Lewis in her best days, and carries an idea of sincerity which Miss Lewis never did. Her scene at the end of the prologue was strong, but in the third act there is a still better exhibition of her dramatic power."

Fred C. Rust, business manager of Nellie McHenry, who opens at the Alcazar in her new comedy by Bronson Howard, now on the top wave of popular authorship, is in town to let the public know that this vivacious soubrette is coming to the front next week.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies revive their "Burglar" next week. "The Burglar" is a success everywhere. They filled out their two-weeks time at the Bush with it a couple of months ago and turned people away at their last two nights. Cast the same. Box office now open.

Of all the benefits, great or small, little or tall, none equaled that of Mark Thall in excitement, when he was called out for a speech Tuesday night at Alcazar. They would have him out; and really he acquitted himself very creditably with a nice little speech. Chief Usher Peyser is committing what he can remember of it to memory to use over for his next benefit in 1892, and it is rumored that Ran-

AN ENTIRE COMPANY DESTROYED.

It is wired from the City of Mexico that a fire destroyed the Calderon Opera House at Zacatecas, and that all the educated animals belonging to Salvida were consumed. This must, doubtless, mean Salvini's troupe of educated animals, that gave performances about a year ago at the Grand Opera House, as his is the only company of performing animals in Mexico. This makes us feel sad. Think of the antics of that cunning little monk that played the cook in the banquet act, and of his inimitably comic powers of expression; of the tony carriage drive and the happy animals that took part in it; of the big trapeze performing baboon, who not only exhibited the greatest skill as he revolved upon his trapeze, but the greatest anxiety also to keep his guiding rope from getting tangled up in his toes. Think of the wonderful performances of the trained dogs, ponies and goats as well, all showing a remarkable degree of reasoning powers, and your sympathies will be enlisted that so much developed intelligence—that seemed almost human—should have met such a sad fate. Salvini's exhibition was a most instructive one for children. It filled them with delight, and even made all human hearts think kinder of the "dumb" animals that are more or less our companions in Life's pathway.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

When Fred Innes, the trombone soloist and band leader, was recently presented on the stage with a gold medal and a testimonial speech from the directors of the Industrial Fair at Minneapolis he did not say a word, but seizing his trombone he awoke the echoes of the pavilion with its doleful notes, playing "How Can I Leave Thee." He won't get any more gold medals in Minneapolis.

Extra Humpty-Dumpty matinee for ladies and children at the Orpheum on Saturday this week. Highest admission, 10 and 25 cents. See programme announcement.

The Big Five act by the three Oatley Sisters and the Quigley Brothers is a big feature of this week's bill at the Wigwam.

Chiarini's Circus opens in Central Park, Market and Eighth streets, on Nov. 4 h. He is now in the Sandwich Islands, coming there from Japan.

The Vokes Sisters and their vaudeville company are playing to fine business at the Brooklyn Theatre.

The great Barnum Show has closed early that everything may be made ready for the trip across the Atlantic to London town on October 16th.

N. D Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, drew largely at the Orpheum last week and is continued this.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Joseph B. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies commence a two-weeks return engagement this week, opening in their new play, a late London success, "The Tigress."

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," has had its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her.' The story has had a very extensive sale and is still popular among novel readers.

The scene of the play opens at Monte Carlo, the great gambling establishment of the world. The characters are those who frequent such places, the better classes, tourists, sight-seers, noblemen, gamesters and adventurers, etc. The little colony that mingled together at Monte Carlo, the Flower girl, the adventuress—"the Tigress," her brother, and the titled personages of society, afterwards meet in various dramatic situations of intense interest, culminating in an exposure of the adventure at a Masque Ball in the last act. There are lighter parts and comedy elements interwoven in the woof of the play, that are given due prominence.

The Examiner claims that "'The Tigress' has novelty enough, emotions enough and sensations enough to make it interesting and even thrilling to a large class of play-goers."

Miss Phœbe Davies rises at times to a grandeur of feeling as the wronged and persecuted woman that the much overlauded Davenport never reached, even with Sardou's sentiments to inspire her. She was at her best in her interviews with the "Tigress," and evinced inspirational as well as rare dramatic powers.

Miss Isabelle Archer does surprising good work as the adventuress, a character that requires great force to sustain it. It is full of promising power in one so young.

Mr. Grismer personates an Italian in the instigating society villain with great adroitness and good dialect. He plays the cool, heartless, calculating scamp that the part demands very impressively.

Hugo Toland is the society good man, gentlemanly and finished, to life. Weir dies in the prologue, but makes a good mark in his short existence. Harry Davenport is very clever as Lord Noddy, even though the part is a nid-noddy sort of a one, and Miss Stevens tries equally hard to give interest to a companion character. Their scenes are enlivened up by some terse witticisms, fortunately, that give scintillating brightness to them. Miss Amy Roberts, Miss Lina Crews and Little Laura Crews act their respective parts creditably.

The "Tigress" will draw good houses the week out.

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," next week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here, which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar this week in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49," a strong and interesting drama of early mining life, in which he plays a character that none have equaled him in.

The play is almost as familiar to the theatre-goer as a standard drama. Scenes, character and action breathe the spirit of the time for which it was written. "49" gives a realistic dramatic vision of the past, and no character stands out in bolder relief in the frontier dramas than Mr. Rankin's broken-down old miner.

"49" has a strong cast. Mabel Bert is very good as Carrots, playing the part vivaciously and with spirit. Buckley makes a manly, dashing Arthur Dennison. Stockwell is unctuously humorous as the old-fashioned negro, Old Ned. James M. Ward, as the "General;" Leo Cooper, a self-assertive Lawyer; Louis Belmour, in his dual roles, and Fanny Young as Missis-sippi, all give graphic portraitures. Miss Nellie Buckley and Carrie Clarke Ward also deserve notice for their good work.

—o—

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar next week in her new play, "For Sweet engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up for the benefit of the Little Cannibals.

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces.

Box sheet now open.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company is at the California for its third and last week in "A Brass Monkey."

It is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. The auction business, journalism, politics and even the wearing of mourning is satirized, or rather surrounded in an element of fun and humor that make them ridiculous. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

The scenes in the auction room are amusing and serve as a vehicle for the introduction of free concert specialties. Among the best numbers is that of the three toughs—Dodge Work (Tim Murphy), Mr. Barnes of New York (Otis Harlan) and Potter of Texas (J. C. Miron)—in their "Razzle-Dazzle" song. Drew and Flora Walsh give good specialties. The girls sing nicely, are pretty and prettily dressed, and everybody contributes something palatable. Though not as broadly funny as some of the author's former pieces, it has the Hoyt ring in metal and grain, and that is the best in the farcical comedy business.

New music and songs will be introduced for the last week.

Matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Patti Rosa follows in her new piece, "Margery Daw."

Grand Opera House.

A late dispatch from John Maguire, the manager of the Butte City, Helena and Montana circuit, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, announces that he will be here on time, and that he will open his season on Monday evening, October 21st; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing direct; but the New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Maguire's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, closes at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and Miss Bella Baratta, Chas. W. Ravel, Chas. Constantine, Henry T. Stewart, Jas. W. Whalen, Wm. B. Jordan, J. W. West and Josie Regan in the company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Compnay can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece. The clowns are clever, the Columbine handsome, the Harlequin graceful, and pantomime amusing.

New scenery and costumes come with the troupe.

Business has been fine, and extra matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday for ladies and children. Ladies, 25 cents to all parts of the house; children, 10 cents.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, will be next week's attraction.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodrames at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"The James Boys," a melodrama of thrilling adventures and scenes, founded on the career of these outlaws and desperados, will be the bill for Mr. France's second week here. He appears in his orininal part of Buckskin. Darrell Vinton plays Jesse, and Walter Adrian Frank James. The play is full of exciting adventures and has filled the big south-side theatre every night.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentation in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre next week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Emmett & Doyle, change artists, vocalists and dancers, and Bennise Morton, operatic vocalist, are added to this week's bill. In addition the Coyne Bros., acrobatic song and dancers and the champion paper tearers of the world, the three sons and dance Oatley Sis-

Bella Union Theatre

Glenn & Weston, musical artists, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artiste, are new comers this week. Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaetta, the ærial queen, are the late additions.

George Drew, comedian; Harry Bryant, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

For rattling fun this week Ford Brothers' "Irish Aristocracy" comedy takes the cake.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Senor Delmonte, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances this week. Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

In addition Dryden & Mitchell put in appearances in their comedy of "The O'Malleys" and create lots of fun.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Miss Lottie Gardner, a dashing serio-comic, makes her first appearance this week, and Jas. Fitz, the Irish comedian, puts in a reappearance.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Mixtures," with Fitz, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, Fitz, Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions

trict of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G. Beasley, the musical king; Miss Florence Wood, balladist, and Miss Rose Ellwood, serio-comic, appear new here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny comedy of "Our Jail Birds," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the new act of "Innocence," which

A ROMANCE OF MADRID.

The New York Truth tells this story reminiscently, that could be woven into a fine sensational play of the "Tigress" order, with the taking title we have used (not copyrighted):

The retirement of Frascuelo, the famous Spanish bullfighter, with a fortune estimated at over half a million dollars, recalls a romance of ten years back in which a woman, once well known in New York society, cut a prominent figure. This person, after a somewhat stormy domestic city at home, suddenly vanished from New York and presently appeared that her husband had obtained a divorce from her. She was a rich woman in her own right, however, and when next heard of was traveling about Europe in truly regal state. Her wanderings took her to Madrid, where she, of course, saw Frascuelo, and was conquered. For several months she lingered in the capital city, and never missed a bullfight where Frascuelo officiated as torero. It was freely whispered—but you know how people will gossip, even in Spain.

One night the lonely senora, in a suburb of Madrid devoted to detached villas inhabited by wealthy people generally, was awakened from a doze against a gate by the wild shrieks of a woman on the other side of the garden wall. He forced an entrance, and found the little cottage brilliantly lighted up. In the dining-room a dusky Spanish beauty was carving up a rather frail, but remarkably pretty woman in a lovely negligee, with a havoc. Relics of a supper loaded the table. On a couch lay Frascuelo, smoking a cigarette, and serenely contemplating the conflict. After a week's retirement in the surgeon's care, the New York divorcee departed for Paris. Two white scars mark her cheek and neck to this day, it is said. Curiously enough, after she had departed, Frascuelo was found to be the owner of the house and all it contained, though the agent who had sold it was certain the purchaser had been a woman and a foreigner.

Frascuelo was a brawny brute, handsome enough, as handsome men of the common class go in Spain, inordinately vain, imperious as a prince, capricious as a woman and fickle as the wind. He was by no means the chief expert at his bloody trade in Spain, but he had the faculty of impressing the women, and this rendered him popular and brought money to his purse. He was a rank coward at heart. I once saw him thrashed like a dog on the Prado by a little Irish naval officer, from the old Dreadnought I believe, whom he had insulted on the strength of his being too small to resent it.

AN ENTIRE COMPANY DESTROYED.

It is wired from the City of Mexico that a fire destroyed the Calleron Opera House at Zacatecas, and that all the educated animals belonging to Salvida were consumed. This must, doubtless, mean Salvini's troupe of educated animals, that gave performances about a year ago at the Grand Opera House, as he is the only company of performing animals in Mexico. The news is unfounded. Think of the antics of that capering little monk that played the cook in the banquet scene, and of his inimitably comic powers of expression; of the four carrier doves and the happy animals that took part in that of the big trained performing bison, who not only exhibited the greatest docility upon his travels, but the greatest anxiety also to keep his guiding rope from getting tangled up in his tusks. Think of the wonderful performances of the trained dogs, ponies and goats as well, all showing a remarkable degree of reasoning powers, and your sympathies will be enlisted that so much developed intelligence—that seemed almost human—should have met such a sad fate. Salvini's exhibition was a most instructive one for children. It filled them with de-

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, arrived to-day.

Douglas White is keeping the ball a rolling about Gilmore's great Peace Jubilee that is to come off at the Pavilion next month. Excursion trains will be run from the valley towns north and south of us.

"Beetles' Baby," that is having such a big run at the Madison Square Theatre, will be the next New York success produced in this city. It will be brought out at a first-class theatre, and we shall have an opportunity to see it before the end of the month. It is a very funny comedy.

Dispatches credit May Brookyn, the Delilah of Salvini's 'Samson," with a strong displayed dramatic power when the result of her hair-cutting treachery became apparent in the tragedy that made her a suitable companion artiste for Salvini.

As a general rule we are willing to admit the charge that actors are improvident—the old ones—but we have hopes that the young members of the profession will gainsay the proverb after reading this. A very pretty young lady, who has lately made an excellent impression in New York by a charming piece of natural acting, went into an agent's office a few days ago, and asked him to see about an engagement for her for next season! She was looking only a year ahead!

What is about the stage that has such a fattening influence on its divinities? We believe if a walking skeleton should get stage-struck and make the drama a profession, in six months' time the said walking skeleton would be groaning over inconvenient adipose, and have to take to Banting. Those stage stars who manage to keep their figures lead a life of self-denial that must interfere with half the joys of their career. Caper and frisk as fatiguingly as they may, exhaust themselves as they do with "study," the fat rolls up, and lovely rounded contours disappear beneath the billows. It is said that nothing even in the line of mental fret and worry can prevent this predisposed stoutness, and that its remedy, starvation, causes worse ills by impoverishing the blood; in fact, that healthy flesh cannot be antagonized with safety to the possessor thereof. If a dread of unshapeliness inspires abstemious living, something is gained, but it is hard lines for the butterflies of the stage to forego champagne and dainties in the heyday of youth. Better pass one's life in a tricycle and dine on beefsteak and stale bread, as the fair Lillian Russell does, than succumb to physical grossness, or, better yet, give up the magnetic flesh-making stage.

Louise Allen, of the pretty dancing sisters, is particularly lively in Leavitt's "Spider and Fly" burlesque. They have added to the title. It is now "The Spider, the Fly and the Flea." Louise Allen is the flea.

This season "Fantasma" as presented by the Hanlons is "a dazzling display of scantilly attired nymphs, mermaids and fairy queens." Send them out here.

Thomas Ewing, W. E. Bailey, Thomas Burke, John Leary, Amos Brown and Bailey Gatzert, well known local capitalists in Seattle, have organized themselves into a company to construct an opera house in Seattle, costing over $200,000. The edifice will surpass anything in the Northwest, and is intended to rival the finest opera houses of San Francisco. Competitive plans will be advertised for, and the construction will begin just so soon as a plan is chosen.

Hoyt still keeps polishing up his "Brass Monkey." He introduced a new song by Williard T. Barton, "The Wild Man of Borneo," last night, which is good and gives the "Monkey" an extra shine.

It rained nearly steadily for two weeks the latter part of last month in the East, and many traveling companies hurried back to New York to get under the awnings and escape the deluge.

"Hands Across the Sea," Pettit's last English melodrama, is not drawing many hands across the box office window in New York. In fact they say it is not paying.

Nellie McHenry, the bright and lively, opens at the Alcazar next week in her new comedy by Bronson Howard. "For Sweet Charity's Sake," supported by her own company. The sentiment is applied as a motto of an arranged society amateur performance of an Indian drama for the benefit of the little cannibals, and the fun comes in the complications that ensue during its preparation and production.

G. B. Densmore, the critic of the Bulletin, pays this handsome tribute to the little California actress at the Bush. In his notices of "The Tigress" he says: "The redeeming feature is Phoebe Davies' Angela. This is the best acting part Miss Davies has appeared in recently. She has the intensity and flash of Jeffreys-Lewis in her best days and carries an idea of sincerity which Miss Lewis never did. Her scene at the end of the prologue was strong, but in the third act there is a still better exhibition of her dramatic power."

Joseph R Grismer and Phoebe Davies revive their "Burglar" next week. "The Burglar" is a success everywhere. They filled out their two-weeks time at the Bush with a couple of months ago and turned people away at their last two nights. Cast the same. Box office now open.

Manager Maguire has postponed the opening of the Grand Opera House until Monday, October 21st.

SALVINI AS SAMSON.

Salvini, the present Forrest of the stage, appeared in his new tragedy of "Samson" last evening at Palmer's Theatre, New York. The wires tell us he was greeted with warm applause in the first act when he came down the rugged path which led to the little plateau, where the Hebrews were assembled. His description of the fight with the lion provoked a storm of applause, and when the curtain fell at the conclusion of the first act Salvini was twice called to the footlights.

In the tableau of the second act Samson was represented as about to begin the terrible slaughter of the Philistines, armed only with the rude weapon caught up from a pile of bones, yet the tremendous energy of his rush upon his enemies conveyed the idea of the power of the onslaught.

The scene with Delilah in the third act was an interesting study, illustrating the surrender of a giant to the wiles of a woman he loved. In the next act, when Samson, awakening, found himself bereft of strength and at the mercy of his enemies there was a powerful bit of acting, which reminded one of Othello's scene with Desdemona. The last act, when Samson, blinded, was led out to amuse the Philistines and became conscious of a renewal of his strength, was a wonderful change from pathos to tragedy. Salvini was enthusiastically recalled at the end of every act.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Allison, the Australian manager; J. B Gaylord, who took out the Silbons and company and Hick's' Minstrels to Australia, and Mr. Solomon are the proprietors of a thoroughly organized Buffalo Bill kind of a Wild West show that they will take to the Australian fields by the next steamer. It consists of lassoing cowboys, bucking horses and riders, charlots and steeds, a company of Indian warriors with their squaws and pappooses, a troupe of Arabs and a goodly array of specialty people. The Arabs, Indians and the specialty people will put in five nights of next week at the Orpheum. The whole company will sail on Saturday's steamer.

When Fred James, the trombone soloist and band leader, was recently presented on the stage with a gold medal and best wishes by the directors of the Industrial Fair at Minneapolis he did not say a word, but staggered to the awkward centre of the pavilion with its colorful roof, playing "How Can I Leave Thee." He won't get any more gold medals in Minneapolis.

The Big Five act by the three Oatley Sisters and the Quigley Brothers is a big feature of this week's bill at the Wigwam.

Starr's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

N. D Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, drew largely at the Orpheum last week and is continued this.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders,

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Joseph B. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies are in their last nights in "The Tigress." Their great success, "The Burglar," will be revived for next week.

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," has had its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her." The story is one of a fashionable adventuress foiled in her schemes.

The Examiner claims that "'The Tigress' has novelty enough, emotions enough and sensations enough to make it interesting and even thrilling to a large class of play-goers."

Miss Phœbe Davies rises at times to a grandeur of feeling as the wronged and persecuted woman, and evinced inspirational as well as rare dramatic powers.

Miss Isabelle Archer does surprising good work as the adventuress, a character that requires great force to sustain it. It is full of promising power in one so young.

Mr. Grismer personates an Italian in the instigating society villain with great adroitness and good dialect. He plays the cool, heartless, calculating scamp that the part demands very impressively.

Hugo Toland, Harry Davenport and company generally render fine support.

—o—

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," next week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

"The Burglar" is a charming play, sparkling with light comedy flashes and full of nature. It is stamped as a genuine success everywhere.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar this week in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "39," a strong and interesting drama of early mining life in which he plays a character that none have equaled him in.

The play is almost as familiar to the theatre-goers as a household word. Scenes, character and action breathe the spirit of the time for which it was written. It has drawn full houses.

"39" has a strong cast. Mabel Bert is very good as Carrote, playing the part vivaciously and with spirit. Buckley makes a manly, dashing Arthur Dennison; Stockwell is unctiously humorous as the old-fashioned negro, Old Ned.

—o—

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar next week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up for the benefit of the Little Cannibals.

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces.

Box sheet now open.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company at the California put in their last appearance in "A Brass Monkey" on Sunday night.

It is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

It has done a good three weeks' business, and goes away a brighter play than when it came here.

—o—

Patti Rosa opens next week in her new piece, "Margery Daw," and will renew acquaintance with us in a comedy-drama she purchased in England, in which she shows her taking soubrette qualities as a "light-as-air" heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc.

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, is in town and is preparing to commence his season on Monday evening, October 21st; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing direct; but the New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, closes at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and a full company.

The performance goes off very lively, and Manager Roberts and Company can be credited with introducing many new and clever tricks in their piece.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in five nights next week, on their way to Australia, sailing on Saturday. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste; Leston, the musical wonder; Rollins, the grotesque; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos, specially engaged, and others.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"The James Boys," a melodrama of thrilling adventures and scenes, founded on the career of these outlaws and desperados, will be the bill for Mr. France's second week here. He appears in his original part of Buckskin, Darrell Vinton plays Jesse, and Walter Adrian Frank James. The play is full of exciting adventures and has filled the big south-side theatre every night.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentation in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre next week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

This is the last week of the present company here.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

An entire new company puts in appearance next week, consisting of Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; Irene Lee, the song bird; Gilbert & Goldie the "Kalifornia Krauky Kooks;" the Tuscora Duo clever sketch artists; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Burnell, the winner of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Glenn & Weston, musical artists, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week. Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaetta, the aerial queen, are the late additions.

George Drew, comedian; Harry Bryant, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

For rattling fun this week Ford Brothers' "Irish Aristocracy" comedy takes the cake.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Senor Delmonio, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances this week. Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

In addition Dryden & Mitchell put in appearances in their comedy of "The O'Malleys" and create lots of fun.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Miss Lottie Gardner, a dashing serio-comic, makes her first appearance this week, and Jas. Fitz, the Irish comedian, puts in a reappearance.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Mixtures," with Fitz, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, Fitz, Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G Beasley, the musical king; Miss Florence Wood, balladist, and Miss Rose Ellwood, serio-comic, appear new here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny comedy of "Our Jail Birds," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the new act of "Innocence," which calls for all the company.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Rose Ellwood, Florence Wood and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Lulu Martell, vocalist and dancer, and Miss Mamie Sanford, motto singer, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge James Post, Billy Akarman and Wm. Baker make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

THE SEA.

O, senseless Sea, long shall men proclaim
Thy freedom and thy power! Slave of the Moon,
Thy wrath is borrowed of the wind, the Noon
Supplies thy smiles, thy life is but a name!
That poets use. To thee nor praise nor blame
Belong, and yet I shall not, else, not roam
Forget to fear thee, and thy driven halls strewn
With bones of bravest men and fair stol'n dame!
The careless thrush within thee spies and hies,
The bird above thee spreads her scornful wing;
Yet thou, more lifeless than thy weakest weed,
Canst shake the very soul of priest and king.
And ye to man thy breathless breast appeals
A waste of sighs, a wilderness of tears.

A ROMANCE OF MADRID.

The New York Truth tells this story reminiscent, that could be woven into a fine sensational play of the "Tigress" order, with the taking title we have used (not copyrighted):

The retirement of Frascuelo, the famous Spanish bullfighter, with a fortune estimated as over half a million dollars, recalls a romance of ten years back in which a woman, once well known in New York society, cut a prominent figure. This person, after a somewhat stormy domesticity at home, suddenly vanished from New York and it presently appeared that her husband had obtained a divorce from her. She was a rich woman in her own right, however, and when next heard of was traveling about Europe in truly regal state. Her wanderings took her to Madrid, where she, of course, saw Frascuelo, and was conquered. For several months she lingered in the capital city, and never missed a bullfight where Frascuelo officiated as torero. It was freely whispered—but you know how people will gossip, even in Spain.

One night the lonely senora, in a suburb of Madrid devoted to detached villas inhabited by wealthy people generally, was awakened from a doze against a gate by the wild shrieks of a woman on the other side of the garden wall. He forced an entrance, and found the little cottage brilliantly lighted up. In the dining-room a lusty Spanish beauty was carving up a rather frail, but remarkably pretty woman in a lovely neglige, with a navaga. Relics of a supper loaded the table. On a couch lay Frascuelo, smoking a cigarette, and serenely contemplating the conflict. After a week's retirement in the surgeon's care, the New York divorcee departed for Paris. Two white scars mark her cheek and neck to this day, it is said. Curiously enough, after she had departed, Frascuelo was found to be the owner of the house and all it contained, though the agent who had sold it was certain the purchaser had been a woman and a foreigner.

Frascuelo was a brawny brute, handsome enough, as handsome men of the common class go in Spain, inordinately vain, imperious as a prince, capricious as a woman and fickle as the wind. He was by no means the chief expert at his bloody trade in Spain, but he had the faculty of impressing the women, and this rendered him popular and brought money to his purse. He was a rank coward at heart. I once saw him thrashed like a dog on the Prado by a little Irish naval officer, from the old Dreadnought I believe, whom he had insulted on the strength of his being too small to resent it.

SALVINI AS SAMSON.

Salvini, the present Forrest of the stage, appeared in his new tragedy of "Samson" Thursday at Palmer's Theatre, New York. The wires tell us he was greeted with warm applause in the first act when he came down the rugged path which led to the little plateau, where the Hebrews were assembled. His description of the fight with the lion provoked a storm of applause, and when the curtain fell at the conclusion of the first act Salvini was twice called to the footlights.

In the tableau of the second act Samson was represented as about to begin the terrible slaughter of the Philistines, armed only with the rude weapon caught up from a pile of bones, yet the tremendous energy of his rush upon his enemies conveyed the idea of the power of the onslaught.

The scene with Delilah in the third act was an interesting study, illustrating the surrender of a giant to the wiles of a woman he loved. In the next act, when Samson, awakening, found himself bereft of strength and at the mercy of his enemies there was a powerful bit of acting, which reminded one of Othello's scene with Desdemona. The last act, when Samson, blinded, was led out to amuse the Philistines and became conscious of a renewal of his strength, was a wonderful

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The night of the 14th will be an interesting one for New York theatre-goers, with Booth and Modjeska opening in "Richelieu" at the Broadway Theatre, the Joseph Jefferson-Florence Comedy Company at the Star Theatre in "The Rivals," and the Boston Athenæum Specialty Company opening at the Bijou Theatre.

Chicago will see the first production of Lawrence Barrett's new romantic tragedy of "Cianelon," with its rich appointments and its 200 people on the stage, at the Chicago Opera House on Monday night.

The New York Mercury says: "The Indian (?) actress, Mrs. Go-Wan-Go, failed to appear at Jacobs' Hoboken Theatre on Monday night in 'The Indian Mail Carrier' because her husband, Go-Wan-Go, a genuine Indian, had just arrived in that city and had threatened to shoot her if she came on the stage. He claims that he met and married his wife in Mexico, and that after living with him for some time she eloped with Charles Charles, a cowboy, with whom she now travels as Mrs. Charles Charles. The actress claims that the Indian treated her brutally and that she then obtained a divorce and married Mr. Charles." We fear Mrs. Go-Wan Go's ambitious attempt to lift herself into stardom will fail. Her little inharmonious domestic difficulties are not of the calibre of a Langtry or a Potter, though she may be a better actress.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, is in town, getting ready for the opening of his season on Monday evening, Oct. 28th. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive next week.

"Bootles' Baby" will have two companies, one in New York and one on the road. It is a big success.

P. T. Barnum will sail for England today.

A Parisian has invented a new kind of stage snow which disappears as soon as it falls. It is used in the midnight mass scene of 'Roger La Honte" at the Ambigu Theatre.

It is gossiped that Perrugini, the tenor, will shortly wed Emma Abbott. Miss Abbott is a widow with $300,000 to begin housekeeping with, so that handsome "Jack" is in luck.

Kate Wilson recently obtained an absolute divorce from James E. Wilson, the well-known leading man.

The news from Portland via way of Los Angeles, where the report originated, that the vinegary Bettina Padelford had attacked W. F. Rochester with a switch about some operatic difficulty is without the least foundation. Nothing of the kind occurred, except in the brain of a Los Angeles reporter hunting up another sensation for his sheet. The report does Mr. Rochester great injustice.

Wm. A. Williams has been placed in charge of the ushering department of the California Theatre. Mr. Williams has a sad smile, but he is polite and efficient, and fills the bill nicely.

Ruth Esmonde, a clever young actress, wife of Albert F. Darcy, comedian, died lately at South Fitchburg, Mass.

Nellie McIntyre, of the original Lydia Thompson Burlesque Company, and wife of Walter E. Ryder, also of that organization, died lately at New Brunswick, N. J.

At the recent opening of the Metropolitan Opera House, Denver, Col., with 'King Cole, II," Gus Bruno was arrested for retaining the gold watch of W. S. Mesmer, an alleged Philadelphia dude, who was the "backer" of the show, but Bruno was released the next day, although his "taking off" in the middle of the inaugural performance killed the show. Following this the receipts were attached for $350 and the members of the company garnisheed the box office for unpaid salaries. Mesmer, it is reported, devoted his time to impressing the chorus girls with the splendor of his presence. Mesmer became mesmerized, but the company was equal to the occasion. They hunted up a new backer, and, by St. Paul, "King Cole" went bravely on to new fields in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Douglas White is keeping the ball a rolling about Gilmore's great Peace Jubilee that is to come off at the Pavilion next month. Excursion trains will be run from the valley towns north and south of us.

"Bootles' Baby," that is having such a big run at the Madison Square Theatre, will be the next New York success produced in this city. It will be brought out at a first-class theatre, and we shall have an opportunity to see it before the end of the month. It is a very funny comedy.

Dispatches credit May Brookyn, the Delilah of Salvini's "Samson," with a strong displayed dramatic power when the result of her hair-cutting treachery became apparent in the tragedy that made her a suitable companion artiste for Salvini.

As a general rule we are willing to admit the charge that actors are improvident—the old ones—but we have hopes that the young members of the profession will gainsay the proverb after reading this. A very pretty young lady, who has lately made an excellent impression in New York by a charming piece of natural acting, went into an agent's office a few days ago, and asked him to see about an engagement for her for next season! She was looking only a year ahead!

Nellie McHenry, the bright and lively, opens at the Alcazar next week in her new comedy by Bronson Howard, "For Sweet Charity's Sake," supported by her own company. The sentiment is applied as a motto of an arranged society amateur performance of an Indian drama for the

A balloon ascension and a parachute jump will be made by the æronaut Lulu, at the height of 2500 feet, at 3 P. M. at Woodward's Garden on Sunday. Also performance in the pavilion.

Francis Martinetti, while recently performing a double somersault at the Bijou, Lowell, Mass., fell and seriously injured his ankle and foot.

The Orpheum Specialty Co., culled from the best, will hold the stage of that theatre next week.

Allison, the Australian manager; J. B. Gaylord, who took out the Silbons and company and Hicks' Minstrels to Australia, and Mr. Solomon are the proprietors of a thoroughly organized Buffalo Bill kind of a Wild West show that they will take to the Australian fields by Nov. 8th steamer. It consists of lassoing cowboys, bucking horses and riders, chariots and steeds, a company of Indian warriors with their squaws and pappooses, a troupe of Arabs and a goodly array of specialty people. The Arabs, Indians and the specialty people will put in a week or so at the Orpheum, commencing on the 21st.

George H. Wood has been engaged to appear in his popular specialties with the Orpheum specialty Company at that theatre next week.

When Fred Innes, the trombone soloist and band leader, was recently presented on the stage with a gold medal and a testimonial speech from the directors of the Industrial Fair at Minneapolis he did not say a word, but seizing his trombone he awoke the echoes of the pavilion with its doleful notes, playing "How Can I Leave Thee." He won't get any more gold medals in Minneapolis.

The Big Five act by the three Oatley Sisters and the Quigley Brothers is a big feature of this week's bill at the Wigwam.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

N. D. Roberts' Humpty Dumpty Pantomime Company, an entire Eastern organization, make their last appearance Sunday night.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies revive their "Burglar" next week. "The Burglar" is a success everywhere. They filled out their two-weeks time at the Bush with it a couple of months ago and turned people away at their last two nights. Cast the same. Box office now open.

Manager Maguire has postponed the opening of the Grand Opera House until Monday, October 21st.

The Eddy's Squib says: "Miss Annie Pixley makes her first appearance in New York this season this week at the Windsor Theatre, where she will be seen in 'Zara.'" That looks mighty like zero.

The Jefferson-Florence season begins in New York next week.

This season "Fantasma" as presented by the Hanlons is "a dazzling display of

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies are in their last nights in "The Tigress." Their great success, "The Burglar," will be revived for next week.

"The Tigress," like "The Burglar," has had its first production in San Francisco at the Bush by Mr. Grismer, Miss Davies, and Company. The play is from the pen of Ramsay Morris—dramatized by himself from his novel "Crucify Her." The story is one of a fashionable adventuress foiled in her schemes.

The Examiner claims that "'The Tigress' has novelty enough, emotions enough and sensations enough to make it interesting and even thrilling to a large class of play-goers."

Miss Phœbe Davies rises at times to a grandeur of feeling as the wronged and persecuted woman, and evinced inspirational as well as rare dramatic powers.

Miss Isabelle Archer does surprising good work as the adventuress, a character that requires great force to sustain it. It is full of promising power in one so young.

Mr. Grismer personates an Italian in the instigating society villain with great adroitness and good dialect. He plays the cool, heartless, calculating scamp that the part demands very impressively.

Hugo Toland, Harry Davenport and company generally render fine support.

—o—

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," next week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here, which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

"The Burglar" is a charming play, sparkling with light comedy flashes and full of nature. It is stamped as a genuine success everywhere.

Alcazar Theatre.

McKee Rankin closes his season at the Alcazar this week in an elaborate production of his most successful play, "49," a strong and interesting drama of early mining life, in which he plays a character that none have equaled him in.

The play is almost as familiar to the theatre-goer as a standard drama. Scenes, character and action breathe the spirit of the time for which it was written. It has drawn full houses.

"49" has a strong cast. Mabel Bert is very good as Carrots, playing the part vivaciously and with spirit. Buckley makes a manly, dashing Arthur Dennison; Stockwell is emotionally humorous as the old-fashioned negro, Old Ned.

—o—

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar next week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up for the benefit of the Little Cannibals.

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. B. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces.

Box sheet now open.

New California Theatre.

Hoyt's Comedy Company at the California put in their last appearance in "A Brass Monkey" on Sunday night.

It is an all around satire, a "Mikado" of satires in fact. There are no stings to Hoyt's satires, but on the contrary they are good-naturedly amusing.

It has done a good three weeks' business, and goes away a brighter play than when it came here.

—o—

Patti Rosa opens next week in her new piece, "Margery Daw," and will renew acquaintance with us in a comedy-drama she purchased in

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, is in town, and is preparing to commence his season on Monday evening, October 28th; though, with what is getting to be characteristic managerial reticence, he keeps his opening attraction secret. The theatre will be kept open the year round. Beyond this we are told nothing direct; but the New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Maguire's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

Nick Roberts Great Humpty-Dumpty Company, from Niblo's Garden, New York, an entire Eastern organization, closes at the Orpheum this week. The troupe consists of the three clowns, Grimaldi, Dromio and Pedro, and a full company.

They have drawn good business.

The Orpheum Specialty Company will cater for the amusement of its patrons next week. It consists of Liston, the musical wonder; Laurence Brothers, the grotesques; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos; Geo. H. Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Vanola, the Mexican marvel; Miss Tillie Morrissey, the operatic vocalist; Freddie Stockmeyer, the vocal soubrette; the Polka Tyrolean Warblers; Harry Moore, vocalist, and John Morrissey, comedian. A goodly array of talent.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances week of 28th, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"The James Boys," a melodrama of thrilling adventures and scenes, founded on the career of these outlaws and desperados, will be the bill for Mr. France's second week here. He appears in his original part of Buckskin. Darrell Vinton plays Jesse, and Walter Adrian Frank James. The play is full of exciting adventures and has filled the big south-side theatre every night.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentation in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre next week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

This is the last week of the present company here.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

An entire new company puts in appearance next week, consisting of Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; Irene Lee, the song bird; Gilbert & Goldie, the "California Kranky Koons;" the Tudors, the clever sketch artists; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Burnell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Glenn & Weston, musical artists, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artiste, are new comers this week. Ned Thatcher, comedian, and Rayannaetta, the aerial queen, are the late additions.

George Drew, comedian; Harry Bryant, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lottie Le Vyne, vocalists, and others are also in the bill.

For rattling fun this week Ford Brothers' "Irish Aristocracy" comedy takes the cake.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Senor Delmonte, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances this week. Serio-comic Claudie West; Paul La Drew, the deceiver; and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

Miss Lottie Gardner, a dashing serio-comic, makes her first appearance this week, and Jas. Fitz, the Irish comedian, puts in a reappearance.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "Mixtures," with Fitz, Ruby Grant, Trayers and Gilmore in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, Fitz, Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G Beasley, the musical king; Miss Florence Wood, balladist, and Miss Rose Ellwood, serio-comic, appear new here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny comedy of "Our Jail Birds," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the new act of "Innocence," which calls for all the company.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Rose Ellwood, Florence Wood and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akerman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Miss Lulu Martell, vocalist and dancer, and Miss Mamie Sanford, motto singer, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, May Ashley, Edith Morrison, Jessie Eldridge

In the comedy act, "A Trip to Paris," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

It rained nearly steadily for two weeks the latter part of last month in the East, and many traveling companies hurried back to New York to get under the awnings and escape the deluge.

"Hands Across the Sea," Pettit's last English melodrama, is not drawing many hands across the box office window in New York. In fact they say it is not paying.

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY..... OCTOBER 14, 1889

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

He smiles. There isn't a man allied to the variety business happier than Peter Hall to-day. It is a twelve-pounder and his first.

Francis Martinetti, while recently performing a double somersault at the Bijou, Lowell, Mass., fell and seriously injured his ankle and foot.

The Orpheum Specialty Co., culled from the best, will hold the stage of that theatre this week.

Allison, the Australian manager; J. B. Gaylord, who took out the Silbons and company and Hicks' Minstrels to Australia, and Mr. Solomon are the proprietors of a thorough organized Buffalo Bill kind of a Wild West show that they will take to the Australian fields by Nov. 5th steamer. It consists of lassoing cowboys, bucking horses and riders, chariots and steeds, a company of Indian warriors with their squaws and pappooses, a troupe of Arabs and a goodly array of specialty people. The Arabs, Indians and the specialty people will put in a week or so at the Orpheum, commencing on the 21st.

George H. Wood has been engaged to appear in his popular specialties with the Orpheum specialty Company at that theatre this week.

When Fred Innes, the trombone soloist and band leader, was recently presented on the stage with a gold medal and a testimonial speech from the directors of the Industrial Fair at Minneapolis he did not say a word, but seizing his trombone he awoke the echoes of the pavilion with its doleful notes, playing "How Can I Leave Thee." He won't get any more gold medals in Minneapolis.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

SALVINI AS SAMSON.

Salvini, the present Forrest of the stage, appeared in his new tragedy of "Samson" Thursday at Palmer's Theatre, New York. The wires tell us he was greeted with warm applause in the first act when he came down the rugged path which led to the little plateau, where the Hebrews were assembled. His description of the fight with the lion provoked a storm of applause, and when the curtain fell at the conclusion of the first act Salvini was twice called to the footlights.

In the tableau of the second act Samson was represented as about to begin the terrible slaughter of the Philistines, armed only with the rude weapon caught up from a pile of bones, yet the tremendous energy of his rush upon his enemies conveyed the idea of the power of the onslaught.

The scene with Delilah in the third act was an interesting study, illustrating the surrender of a giant to the wiles of a woman he loved. In the next act, when Samson, awakening, found himself bereft of strength and at the mercy of his enemies there was a powerful bit of acting, which reminded one of Othello's scene with Desdemona. The last act, when Samson, blinded, was led out to amuse the Philistines and became conscious of a renewal of his strength, was a wonderful change from pathos to tragedy. Salvini was enthusiastically recalled at the end of every act.

The night of the 14th will be an interesting one for New York theatre-goers, with Booth and Modjeska opening in "Richelieu" at the Broadway Theatre, the Joseph Jefferson-Florence Comedy Company at the Star Theatre in "The Rivals," and the Boston Athenæum Specialty Company opening at the Bijou Theatre.

Chicago will see the first production of Lawrence Barrett's new romantic tragedy of "Ganelon," with its rich appointments and its 200 people on the stage, at the

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Rumor has it that Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, vocally, will consist entirely of duets, trios and concerted music, with a splendid chorus force. There will not be a single solo number in it.

Leander Richardson, the well known New York journalist, novelist and dramatist, has become sole owner of the New York Dramatic News, that ranks as one of the best theatrical papers in the Union.

James Carson, son of the Chicago millionaire, was to have married that clever New York actress, Maud Harrison, ten days ago. But as Maud insisted upon being married in accordance with her faith, by service of the Episcopal church, and as it is against the tenent of that church to marry a divorced man—as they only learned on application to be married—the performance was necessarily postponed on the day appointed for the wedding. Mr. Carson fell ill under the disappointment at his hotel in New York. He is quite dangerously so now. His father, who owns the theatre he is ostensible manager of in Chicago, is in New York and has forbid the marriage.

The wires say that the elder Carson absolutely holds the purse-strings; that young Carson has at various times dissipated the large sums of money given him, and is now absolutely dependent upon parental bounty. This is to be withdrawn, it is said, if young Carson does not immediately return to Chicago upon his recovery. Mr. Morton, manager of the theatre which young Carson is supposed to control in Chicago, was rushed on to New York on Saturday to also urge the young man to return, and now young Carson is considering on one side wealth and Chicago, and on the other side Maud Harrison and New York, but no wealth.

It is only fair to say of the actress who has been the cause of all this ado in the Carson household, that she has seldom left the bedside of her fiance. Of course she retired when the father came, but resumed her vigil as soon as the irate parent left the son's room. The question of the day in New York is: Will the stern parent relent? Will the young lover relent? Will the pretty actress relent her church-blockading demands; or will the church relent? The climax is in doubt.

George H. Jessop, the former California journalist, is, after Bronson Howard, the successful American playwright. He has five plays running now, two more ready for the purchasers, and is working with Brander Matthews on one for the Lyceum Theatre. In addition Mr. Jessop is also writing a book, "Gerald French's Friends." George must be working harder than he did when he was in San Francisco.

The body of Geo. Y. Stevens, one of the members of the Fanny Davenport company, who died suddenly in San Diego, is en route to this city. The Elks have taken charge of the funeral rites.

The Grand Opera House will be opened on Saturday night, October 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann and a strong company in the cast.

The New York Mercury says: "The Indian (?) actress, Mrs. Go-Wan Go, failed to appear at Jacobs' Hoboken Theatre on Monday night in 'The Indian Mail Carrier' because her husband, Go-Wan-Go, a genuine Indian, had just arrived in that city and had threatened to shoot her if she came on the stage. He claims that he met and married his wife in Mexico, and that after living with him for some time she eloped with Charles Charles, a cowboy, with whom she now travels as Mrs. Charles Charles. The actress claims that the Indian treated her brutally and that she then obtained a divorce and married Mr. Charles." We fear Mrs. Go-Wan Go's ambitious attempt to lift herself into stardom will fail. Her little inharmonious domestic difficulties are not of the calibre of a Langtry or a Potter, though she may be a better actress.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Trousville, Pa.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, is in town, getting ready for the opening of his season on Saturday evening, Oct. 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fabchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive this week.

"Bootles' Baby" will have two companies, one in New York and one on the road. It is a big success.

P. T. Barnum sailed for England Saturday.

A Parisian has invented a new kind of stage snow which disappears as soon as it falls. It is used in the midnight mass scene of 'Roger La Honte' at the Ambigu Theatre.

It is gossiped that Perrugini, the tenor, will shortly wed Emma Abbott. Miss Abbott is a widow with $300 000 to begin housekeeping with, so that hand organ "Jack" is in luck.

Kate Wilson recently obtained an absolute divorce from James E. Wilson, the well-known leading man.

The news from Portland via way of Los Angeles, where the report originated, that the vinegary Bettina Paddleford had attacked W. F. Rochester with a switch about some operatic difficulty is without the least foundation. Nothing of the kind occurred, except in the brain of a Los Angeles reporter hunting up another sensation for his sheet. The report does Mr. Rochester great injustice.

Wm. A. Williams has been placed in charge of the ushering department of the California Theatre. Mr. Williams has a sad smile, but he is polite and efficient, and fills the bill nicely.

Ruth Esmonde, a clever young actress, wife of Albert F. Darcy, comedian, died lately at South Fitchburg, Mass.

Nellie McIntyre, of the original Lydia Thompson Burlesque Company, and wife of Walter E. Ryder, also of that organization, died lately at New Brunswick, N.J.

Douglas White is keeping the ball a rolling about Gilmore's great Peace Jubilee that is to come off at the Pavilion next month. Excursion trains will be run from the valley towns north and south of us.

Dispatches credit May Brookyn, the Duluth of Salvini's 'Samson,' with a strong displayed dramatic power when the result of her hair-cutting treachery became apparent in the tragedy that made her a suitable companion artiste for Salvini.

As a general rule we are willing to admit the charge that actors are improvident—the old ones—but we have hopes that the young members of the profession will gainsay the proverb after reading this. A very pretty young lady, who has lately made an excellent impression in New York by a charming piece of natural acting, went into an agent's office a few days ago, and asked him to see about an engagement for her for next season! She was looking only a year ahead!

At the recent opening of the Metropolitan Opera House, Denver, Col., with 'King Cole, II.' Gus Bruno was arrested for retaining the gold watch of W. S. Mesmer, an alleged Philadelphia dude, who was the "backer" of the show, but Bruno was released the next day, although his "taking off" in the middle of the inaugural performance killed the show. Following this the receipts were attached for $350 and the members of the company garnisheed the box office for unpaid salaries. Mesmer, it is reported, devoted his time to impressing the chorus girls with the splendor of his presence. Mesmer became mesmerized, but the company was equal to the occasion. They bunted up a new backer, and, by St. Paul, "King Cole" went bravely on to new fields in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," this week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

"The Burglar" will be the bill, positively, for this week only.

"The Burglar" is a charming play, sparkling with light comedy flashes and full of nature. It is stamped as a genuine success everywhere. Both Mr. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies have strong parts, and the fitness of its situations for exciting interest and retaining the attention of its audiences continues from beginning to end. The child's part in naturalness and sympathy has no equal, and the light comedy acting of Harry Davenport is admirable.

We have written fully of the merits of play and cast on its last production.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar this week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up for the benefit of the Little Cannibals

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in oven the best class of such light and amusing pieces.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa opens this week in her new piece, "Margery Daw," and will renew acquaintance with us in a comedy-drama she purchased and made a success in England, in which she shows her taking soubrette qualities as a "light-as-air" heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is an all-around bright soubrette.

Burt Haverly comes back to us as one of the company.

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, is in town, and commences his season on Saturday evening, October 26th, with with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

The theatre will be kept open the year round. The New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum Specialty Company will cater for the amusement of its patrons this week It consists of Liston, the musical wonder; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos; Geo. H. Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Vanola, the Mexican marvel; Miss Tillie Morrissey, the operatic vocalist; Freddie Stockmeyer, the vocal soubrette; the Polks, Tyrolean Warblers; Harry Moore, vocalist; John Morrissey, comedian, and Prof. Martin and his troupe of trained dogs, "The Little Lord Fauntleroys." A goodly array of talent.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances week of 28th, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors. Fred Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentation in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre this week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces and entirely different in plot and incidents from a play produced here under the same title some time ago.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; Irene Lee, the song bird; Gilbert & Goldie, the "Kalifornia Kranky Koons;" the Tudors, those clever sketch artists; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

The Coyne Bros., marvelous deginers in paper; Dupont, the most pliable-bodied man living; the lady specialists, Lillie Mason, Kitty Goodwin, Edith Morrison, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists; Bayannetta, the aerial queen, and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, The Lawn Tennis Brigade, is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Louis Dupont, the closest back-bender living; Franks & Marion; Offy Goofty, the odd; Senor Delmonio, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances, and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

Franks & Marion, "the neatest," put on their comedy of "The Veteran's Birthday," with all the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Surprise Party," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G. Beasley, the musical king; Miss Maria Moreno, balladist, and Miss Dolly Paxton serio-comic, appear here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

The PLAINT OF THE SUPERNUMERARY.

I wants to be an actor in a razzle-dazzle troupe,
And not a starvio' super, what's always in de soup

One week I be's a Roman and mutters wid de mob,
De next week I'm a cut-throat what's lookin' for a job.

I've been a Greek, a Spaniard, a Roshen and a Turk,
De stage hain't got no country where I ain't been to work.

Last night I was a Scotchman in a piece dey calls "Macbeth;"
To-night I shouts in "Richard," meself all out o breath.

It's fifty cents dey pays me, no matter what I do.
It's time in dis perfession I rz a peg or two!

It rained nearly steadily for two weeks the latter part of last month in the East, and many traveling companies hurried back to New York to get under the awnings and escape the deluge.

"Hands Across the Sea," Pettit's last English melodrama, is not drawing many hands across the box office window in New York. In fact they say it is not paying.

"Kajaka," the new spectacle, is credited with making a success in St. Louis. That settles it. If it succeed there its salvation is assured in Helena, or anywhere else.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies revive their "Burglar" this week. "The Burglar" is a success everywhere. They filled out their two weeks' time at the Bush with it a couple of months ago and turned people away at their last two nights. Cast the same.

Manager Maguire will open the Grand Opera House Saturday evening, October 26 h.

The Eddy's Squib says: "Miss Annie Pixley makes her first appearance in New York this season this week at the Windsor Theatre, where she will be seen in 'Zara.'" That looks mighty like zero.

This season "Fantasma" as presented by the Hanlons is "a dazzling display of scantily attired nymphs, mermaids and fairy queens." Send them out here.

Nellie McHenry, the bright and lively, opens at the Alcazar this week in her new comedy by Bronson Howard, "For Sweet Charity's Sake," supported by her own company. The sentiment is applied as a motto of an arranged society amateur performance of an Indian drama for the benefit of the little cannibals, and the fun comes in the complications that ensue during its preparation and production.

"Bootles' Baby," that is having such a big run at the Madison Square Theatre, will be the next New York success produced in this city. It will be brought out at a first-class theatre, and we shall

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Davison Brothers, the high rope walkers, who made the remarkable walk from the Cliff House to Seal Rock nearly two years ago, are in town after a successful tour through Oregon, the Northwest, including Montana, Utah and Colorado. They have no equals in their daring high walks and are big sensations.

Salvini is playing Samson in his piece of that name in New York, and makes a great show of simulated strength in a dramatic way; but they have Samson in might performing at the Royal Aquarium in London at present, where his feats of strength are certainly of an original and marvelous character. With a blow of his fist he breaks an iron chain that will bear a pressure of 3,000 pounds. With his two hands grasping a short chain of 2500 pounds ascertained pressure, he makes a momentary effort and pulls the iron chain to bits. We call the attention of our knock-out clubs to this Mr. Samson. What an "Unknown" he would make to pit against the Marine.

He smiles. There isn't a man allied to the variety business happier than Peter Hall to-day. It is a twelve-pounder and his first.

Francis Martinetti, while recently performing a double somersault at the Bijou, Lowell, Mass., fell and seriously injured his ankle and foot.

The Orpheum Specialty Co., culled from the best, will hold the stage of that theatre this week.

Allison, the Australian manager; J. B. Gaylord, who took out the Silbons and company and Hicks' Minstrels to Australia, and Mr. Solomon are the proprietors of a thoroughly organized Buffalo Bill kind of a Wild West show that they will take to the Australian fields by Nov. 8th steamer. It consists of lassoing cowboys, bucking horses and riders, chariots and steeds, a company of Indian warriors with their squaws and pappooses, a troupe of Arabs and a goodly array of specialty people. The Arabs, Indians and the specialty people will put in a week or so at the Orpheum, commencing on the 21st.

George H. Wood has been engaged to appear in his popular specialties with the Orpheum Specialty Company at that theatre this week.

When Fred Innes, the trombone soloist and band leader, was recently presented on the stage with a gold medal and a testimonial speech from the directors of the Industrial Fair at Minneapolis he did not say a word, but seizing his trombone he awoke the echoes of the pavilion with its doleful notes, playing "How Can I Leave Thee." He won't get any more gold medals in Minneapolis.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

The night of the 14th was an interesting one for New York theatre-goers, with Booth and Modjeska opening in "Richelieu" at the Broadway Theatre, the Joseph Jefferson-Florence Comedy Company at the Star Theatre in "The Rivals," and the Boston Academy Specialty Company opening at the Bijou Theatre.

Chicago will see the first production of Lawrence Barrett's new romantic tragedy of "Ganelon," with its rich appointments and its 200 people on the stage, at the Chicago Opera House this week.

Joseph K. Grismer and Phœbe Davies revive their "Burglar" this week. "The Burglar" is a success everywhere. They

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The soldier in opera, drama and comedy seems to have the call, as the saying is, at present. We have in the East just now operas, dramas and comedies running to large houses, in all of which the soldier is either the central figure or a prominent feature. "Clover," "Panola" and "The Drum Major" in opera; Bootle's Baby" in comedy; "Shenandoah," "Ferncliffe" and "Paul Kauvar" in drama, all have soldiers. And there's more to come. Verily the soldier is as great on the mimic stage in times of peace as he is in the field in times of war.

Alberta Damon, a talented and highly respectable member of the profession, died recently in Chicago. As a comedienne she had played important parts with Roland Reed, "The Little Tycoon," Gus Williams, Frederick Bryton, the McCaull Company and others, and has also starred to some extent. In her personal circle she was widely and deeply beloved. She was the wife of James E. Purnell, one of the best known and ablest lawyers in the West.

Carleton's Opera Company are giving "The Brigands" in grand style at the Grand Opera House, Brooklyn.

Rumor has it that Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, vocally, will consist entirely of duets, trios and concerted music, with a splendid chorus force. There will not be a single solo number in it.

Leander Richardson, the well known New York journalist, novelist and dramatist, has become sole owner of the New York Dramatic News, that ranks as one of the best theatrical papers in the Union.

George H. Jessop, the former California journalist, is, after Bronson Howard, the successful American playwright. He has five plays running now, two more ready for the purchasers, and is working with Brander Matthews on one for the Lyceum Theatre. In addition Mr. Jessop is also writing a book, "Gerald French's Friends." George must be working harder than he did when he was in San Francisco.

The Grand Opera House will be opened on Saturday night, October 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann and a strong company in the cast.

The New York Mercury says: "The Indian (?) actress, Mrs. Go-Wan-Go, failed to appear at Jacobs' Hoboken Theatre on Monday night in 'The Indian Mail Carrier" because her husband, Go-Wan-Go, a genuine Indian, had just arrived in that city and had threatened to shoot her if she came on the stage. He claims that he met and married his wife in Mexico, and that after living with him for some time she eloped with Charles Charles, a cowboy, with whom she now travels as Mrs. Charles Charles. The actress claims that the Indian treated her brutally and that she then obtained a divorce and married Mr. Charles." We fear Mrs. Go-Wan Go's ambitious attempt to lift herself into stardom will fail. Her little inharmonious domestic difficulties are not of the calibre of a Langtry or a Potter, though she may be a better actress.

Star's Novelty Company recently went to pieces at Titusville, Pa.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, is in town, getting ready for the opening of his season on Saturday evening, Oct. 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive this week.

"Bootles' Baby" will have two companies, one in New York and one on the road. It is a big success.

P. T. Barnum sailed for England Saturday.

It is gossiped that Perrugini, the tenor, will shortly wed Emma Abbott. Miss Abbott is a widow with $300,000 to begin housekeeping with, so that handsome "Jack" is in luck.

Kate Wilson recently obtained an absolute divorce from James E. Wilson, the well-known leading man.

Douglas White is keeping the ball a rolling about Gilmore's great Peace Jubilee that is to come off at the Pavilion next month. Excursion trains will be run from the valley towns north and south of us.

OUR NEW PRODUCTIONS.

New York no longer dominates the all as a theatrical center. Boston is asserting itself as a theatrical city for the production of successful plays in opposition to New York. One of its journals says: "Of all the new plays, except in the stock theatres, that are making successes this year, not one was produced in New York. 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' was first put on the stage in this country in Boston, and was an emphatic success, before it was ever heard of in New York. The same is true of Bronson Howard's 'Shenandoah.' Both of these plays were first brought out at the Boston Museum nearly a year ago." This season most of the new productions of magnitude have had their birth outside of New York. "Lands Across the Sea" began its career in this country in Philadelphia. Marie Wainwright's production of "Twelfth Night" began in Chicago. W. H. Crane produced his new play in the same city. Lawrence Barrett's spectacular production of "Ganelon" had birth this week in Chicago. "Kajanka," the new ballet spectacle, was

AUGUSTIN DALY'S LAST PLAY.

Augustin Daly's new play, "The Golden Widow," that he opened his New York theatre with last week, is founded on Sardou's latest and broadest play, "Marquise." The play in its original is too unsavory in treatment and action to place before an American audience unveiled. And that is saying a great deal when we think upon what kind of plays we have accepted from Sardou. Mr. Daly uses the plot with his own coloring, Americanizes it and makes it funny, of course. Though not such a success as many of his adaptations from the German, the best comedy company in the world will make it achieve a good run.

"The Golden Widow," considered without regard to 'Marquise,' had Ada Rehan as the widow of a California Crœsus. She had settled down on an estate in France and longed to marry a title. She was a spirited, unconventional American, with a self willed temper and a trait of coarseness. James Lewis was an impecunious old marquis, quaint and eccentric, who agreed to wed the widow and part from her instantly after the ceremony, being recompensed for the conferment of his title upon her by a liberal annuity. Mrs. Gilbert was his wife already and he thought she was dead, but she disclosed herself at the chateau on the evening of the wedding. John Drew was a lover of the widow and he, as usual, flits around complacently all through the comedy and gets her finally, after participating in the commotion. There were minor roles, some sprightly and some inane. Mrs. Yeamans had little to do as a Yankee tourist, but her comical face caused laughter. Kate Best, the California contingent, made her

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," this week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here, which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

"The Burglar" will be the bill, positively, for this week only.

"The Burglar" is a charming play, sparkling with light comedy flashes and full of nature. It is stamped as a genuine success everywhere Both Mr. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies have strong parts, and the fitness of its situations for exciting interest and retaining the attention of its audiences continues from beginning to end. The child's part in naturalness and sympathy has no equal, and the light comedy acting of Harry Davenport is admirable. Hugo Toland shows a marked improvement in reserved force and composure as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, and the other characters are all in good hands.

We have written fully of the merits of play and cast on its last production.

The charming comedy of "Bootle's Baby," with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be next week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootle's Baby" is now in its eleventh week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its success.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr. Frank H. Gassaway, and the play will have a careful and elaborate production.

Box office open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar this week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

W. H. Lytell is an excellent burlesque comedian. As the crushed tragedian he is irresistibly mirth inspiring. John Webster, the Reverend gentleman who takes a character in the production for the good it will do, is an excellent fool in his seriousness. Mr. Chas. Shackford and Mr. Louis Finninger augment their parts by fine vocal specialties. Miss Blanche Mortimer and Miss Francis Herbert give two clever female impersonations, and Felix Haney is very funny as Mrs. Morton.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the scenes looking in front of the house, and in secret with all that goes on on the stage during the production of the charity play.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa opens this week in her new piece, "Margery Daw," and will renew acquaintance with us in a comedy-drama she purchased and made a success in England, in which she shows her taking soubrette qualities as a "light as air" heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is an all-around bright soubrette. In one of her popular songs, in which she recounts how one of her promiscuous lovers serenaded her over the high brick wall, she shows great nimbleness and the grace of a fawn in her dancing movements. The song comes in for warm encores.

Burt Haverly comes back to us in a white-face character and "acts well his part." Miss Alice French, Miss Belle Stoddard, and the members of the company generally, acquitted themselves creditably.

The house was full, and the play well received.

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, is in town, and commences his season on Saturday evening, October 26th, with with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

The theatre will be kept open the year round. The New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum Specialty Company will cater for the amusement of its patrons this week It consists of Liston, the musical wonder; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos; Geo. H. Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Vanola, the Mexican marvel; Miss Tillie Morrissey, the operatic vocalist; Freddie Stockmeyer, the vocal soubrette; the Polks, Tyrolean Warblers; Harry Moore, vocalist; John Morrissey, comedian, and Prof. Martin and his troupe of trained dogs, "The Little Lord Fauntleroys." A goodly array of talent.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances week of 28th, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alms, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodrames at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentation in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre this week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces and entirely different in plot and incidents from a play produced here under the same title some time ago.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; Irene Lee, the song bird; Gilbert & Goldie, the "California Kranky Koons;" the Tudors, the clever sketch artists; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

The Coyne Bros., marvelous deginers in paper; Dupont, the most pliable-bodied man living; the lady specialists, Lillie Mason, Kitty Goodwin, Edith Morrison, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists; Rayannette, the aerial queen, and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, The Lawn Tennis Brigade, is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Louis Dupont, the closest back-bender living; Franks & Marion; Offy Goofty, the odd; Senor Delmonio, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances, and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

Franks & Marion, "the neatest," put on their comedy of "The Veteran's Birthday," with all the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler a clever and versatile team are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Surprise Party," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G. Beasley, the musical king; Miss Maria Moreno, balladist, and Miss Dolly Paxton, serio-comic, appear here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny "One Night in New York," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the act of "The Secret," which calls for all the company.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Rose Ellwood, Lola Vernon and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

Nellie McHenry, the bright and lively, opens at the Alcazar this week in her new comedy by Bronson Howard, "For Sweet Charity's Sake," supported by her own company. The sentiment is applied as a motto of an arranged society amateur performance of an Indian drama for the benefit of the little cannibals, and the fun comes in the complications that ensue during its preparation and production.

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Davison Brothers, the high rope walkers, who made the remarkable walk from the Cliff House to Seal Rock nearly two years ago, are in town after a successful tour through Oregon, the Northwest, including Montana, Utah and Colorado. They have no equals in their daring high walks, and are big sensations.

Salvini is playing Samson in his piece of that name in New York, and makes a great show of simulated strength in a dramatic way; but they have Samson in might performing at the Royal Aquarium in London at present, where his feats of strength are certainly of an original and marvelous character. With a blow of his fist he breaks an iron chain that will bear a pressure of 3 000 pounds. With his two hands grasping a short chain of 2500 pounds ascertained pressure, he makes a momentary effort and pulls the iron chain to bits. We call the attention of our knock-out clubs to this Mr. Samson. What an "Unknown" he would make to pit against the Marine.

The Orpheum Specialty Co., culled from the best, will hold the stage of that theatre this week.

George H. Wood has been engaged to appear in his popular specialties with the Orpheum specialty Company at that theatre this week.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

OUR NEW PRODUCTIONS.

New York no longer dominates the all as a theatrical center. Boston is asserting itself as a theatrical city for the production of successful plays in opposition to New York. One of its journals says: "Of all the new plays, except in the stock theatres, that are making successes this year, not one was produced in New York. 'Little Lord Fauntleroy' was first put on the stage in this country in Boston, and was an emphatic success, before it was brought to New York. The same is true of Bronson Howard's 'Shenandoah.' Both of these plays were first brought out at the Boston Museum nearly a year ago." This season most of the new productions of magnitude have had their birth outside of New York. "Lands Across the Sea" began its career in this country in Philadelphia. Marie Wainwright's production of "Twelfth Night" began in Chicago. W. H. Crane produced his new play in the same city. Lawrence Barrett's spectacular production of "Ganelon" had birth this week in Chicago. "Kajuka," the new half-spectacle, was produced three weeks ago in Louisville, and Leavitt's spectacular pantomime, "The Sister and the Fly," did not have its first production in New York.

Chicago will see the first production of Lawrence Barrett's new romantic tragedy of "Ganelon," with its rich appointments and its 200 people on the stage, at the Chicago Opera House this week.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies revive their "Burglar" this week. "The Burglar" is a success everywhere. They filled out their two-weeks time at the Bush with it a couple of months ago and turned people away at their last two nights. Cast the same.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, is in town, getting ready for the opening of his season on Saturday evening, Oct. 26th, with a

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Mr. C. F. Fleming, advance representative for Rosina Vokes, the Baldwin's attraction for next week, is in town. Mr. Fleming is a brother of Mayberry Fleming, the well known dramatic critic so long on the New York Mail and Express.

"Bootle's Baby" has been eleven months on the London stage, almost long enough to have its eye teeth cut. Its New York run up to the present time is eleven weeks, with several months yet to be heard from. Mr. Grismer has bought the copyright of this lively comedy for the Pacific Coast and will give it its first production outside of New York at the Bush on Monday night.

Eddy's Squib says: "The New York company in 'Shenandoah' goes to London next May with all the principal people now employed in its interpretation, and that arrangements are now being quietly made to that effect with its manager and half owner, Mr. Al Hayman." We congratulate the manager of the Baldwin and California Theatres on his good turn in the wheel of fortune.

Mr. Samuel S. Cox, advance manager of Frank Daniels' "Little Puck" Company, that opens at the Bush on the 28th inst., is in town to post the people of its coming.

Augustin Daly is preparing for his grand production of "As You Like It," with Ada Rehan and fifty-three people in the cast. He will take his company to Europe again next year. They will fill engagements in London, Paris and Berlin.

Patti Rosa is a very deft banjoist.

The B. P. O. Elks has already issued invitations for its Annual Carnival on Thanksgiving eve., November 27th, at the Mechanics' Pavilion. It will be participated in by most of the members of the theatrical companies and will be the carnival of the season. The invitation souvenir represents a view of the Golden Gate at sunset, handsomely got up by C. W. Nevin & Co. The charity fund needs reviving and the carnival will contribute a goodly sum thereto.

The New York papers already begin to class "The Golden Widow" as a failure at Daly's, and declare that "Paola" is not a monumental success at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Tony Pastor returns to his New York theatre on October 21st with a strong vaudeville troupe.

Eddy's Squib says: "'Brice-a-Brac' will be taken to California in the near future."

Eddy's Squib says: "M. B. Curtis returns to the stage this season, opening in New York in December in a new play. He will be managed by Mr. W. L. Lykens." Has M. B. tired of booming Berkeley?

Gounod's words in regard to singing should be remembered by every singer. He said to a young girl who meant to go on the stage and who, while gifted with natural abilities, as well as careful training and intelligence, spoiled them with an indistinct utterance. "The musical voice is better and better the more nearly it approaches to spoken words. A purely vocal note, however beautiful, must be varied and made distinct by words, which alone supply expression, dramatic sentiment, warmth and life. A pure, clear and distinct utterance is the first law of the art of singing."

Effie Shaynon has joined the Lyceum Company playing Louise Dillon's part in "The Wife."

The soldier in opera, drama and comedy seems to have the call, as the saying is, at present. We have in the East just now operas, dramas and comedies running to large houses, in all of which the soldier is either the central figure or a prominent feature. "Clover," "Panola" and "The Drum Major" in opera; Bootle's Baby" in comedy; "Shenandoah," "Ferncliffe" and "Paul Kauvar" in drama, all have soldiers. And there's more to come. Verily the soldier is as great on the mimic stage in times of peace as he is in the field in times of war.

Alberta Damon, a talented and highly respectable member of the profession, died recently in Chicago. As a comedienne she had played important parts with Roland Reed, "The Little Tycoon," Gus Williams, Frederick Bryton, the McCaull Company and others, and has also starred to some extent. In her personal circle she was widely and deeply beloved. She was the wife of James E. Purnell, one of the best known and ablest lawyers in the West.

Carleton's Opera Company are giving "The Brigands" in grand style at the Grand Opera House, Brooklyn.

Rumor has it that Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera, vocally, will consist entirely of duets, trios and concerted music, with a splendid chorus force. There will not be a single solo number in it.

George H. Jessop, the former California journalist, is, after Bronson Howard, the successful American playwright. He has five plays running now, two more ready for the purchasers, and is working with Brander Matthews on one for the Lyceum Theatre. In addition Mr. Jessop is also writing a book, "Gerald French's Friends." George must be working harder than he did when he was in San Francisco.

The Grand Opera House will be opened on Saturday night, October 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann and a strong company in the cast.

AUGUSTIN DALY'S LAST PLAY.

Augustin Daly's new play, "The Golden Widow," that he opened his New York theatre with last week, is founded on Sardou's latest and broadest play, "Marquise." The play in its original is too unsavory in treatment and action to place before an American audience unveiled. And that is saying a great deal when we think upon what kind of plays we have accepted from Sardou. Mr. Daly uses the plot with his own coloring, Americanizes it and makes it funny, of course. Though not such a success as many of his adaptations from the German, the best comedy company in the world will make it achieve a good run.

"The Golden Widow," considered without regard to "Marquise," had Ada Rehan as the widow of a California Croesus. She had settled down on an estate in France and longed to marry a title. She was a spirited, unconventional American, with a self willed temper and a trait of coarseness. James Lewis was an impecunious old marquis, quaint and eccentric, who agreed to wed the widow and part from her instantly after the ceremony, being recompensed for the conferment of his title upon her by a liberal annuity. Mrs. Gilbert was his wife already and he thought she was dead, but she disclosed herself at the chateau on the evening of the wedding. John Drew was a lover of the widow and he, as usual, flits around complacently all through the comedy and gets her finally, after participating in the commotion. There were minor roles, some sprightly and some insane. Mrs. Yeamans had little to do as a Yankee tourist, but her comical face caused laughter. Kate Bert, the California contingent, made her

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," this week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here, which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

The Burglar" will be the bill, positively, for this week only.

"The Burglar" is a charming play, sparkling with light comedy flashes and full of nature. It is stamped as a genuine success everywhere. Both Mr Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies have strong parts, and the fitness of its situations for exciting interest and retaining the attention of its audiences continues from beginning to end. The child's part in naturalness and sympathy has no equal, and the light comedy acting of Harry Davenport is admirable. Hugo Toland shows a marked improvement in reserved force and composure as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, and the other characters are all in good hands.

We have written fully of the merits of play and cast on its last production.

The charming comedy of "Bootle's Baby," with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be next week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootle's Baby" is now in its eleventh week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its success.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr Frank H. Gassaway, and the play will have a careful and elaborate production.

Box office open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar this week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals"

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

W H Lytell is an excellent burlesque comedian As the crushed tragedian he is irresistibly mirth inspiring. John Webster, the Reverend gentleman who takes a character in the production for the good it will do, is an excellent fool in his seriousness. Mr. Chas. Shackford and Mr. Louis Finninger augment their parts by fine vocal specialties. Miss Blanche Mortimer and Miss Francis Herbert give two clever female impersonations, and Felix Haney is very funny as Mr. Morton.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the scenes looking in front of the house, and in secret with all that goes on the stage during the production of the charity play.

New California Theatre

Patti Rosa opens this week in her new piece, "Margery Daw," and will renew acquaintance with us in a comedy-drama she purchased and made a success in England, in which she shows her taking soubrette qualities as a "night-air" heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is an all-around bright soubrette. In one of her popular songs, in which she recounts how one of her promiscuous lovers serenaded her over the high brick wall, she shows great nimbleness and the grace of a fawn in her dancing movements. The song comes in for warm encores.

Burt Haverly comes back to us in a white-face character and "acts well his part" Miss Alice French, Miss Belle Stoddard, and the members of the company generally, acquitted themselves creditably.

The house was full, and the play well received.

Patti Rosa announces "Bob," the late Fred

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, is in town and commences his season on Saturday evening, October 26th, with with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

The theatre will be kept open the year round. The New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was pricely secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum Specialty Company will cater for the amusement of its patrons this week It consists of Liston, the musical wonder; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos; Geo. H. Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Vanola, the Mexican marvel; Miss Tillie Morrissey, the operatic vocalist; Freddie Stockmeyer, the vocal soubrette; the Polks, Tyrolean Warblers; Harry Moore, vocalist; John Morrissey, comedian, and Prof. Martin and his troupe of trained dogs, "The Little Lord Fauntleroys." A goodly array of talent.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances week of 28th, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentation in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre this week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces and entirely different in plot and incidents from a play produced here under the same title some time ago.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; Irene Lee, the song bird; Gilbert & Goldie, the "California Kranky Koons;" the Tudors, those clever sketch artists; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

The Coyne Bros., marvelous degiuers in paper; Dupont, the most pliable-bodied man living; the lady specialists, Lillie Mason, Kitty Goodwin, Edith Morrison, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists; Rayannette, the aerial queen, and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, The Lawn Tennis Brigade, is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Louis Dupont, the closest back-bender living; Franks & Marion; Olly Goofy, the odd; Senor Delmonio, "El Rey del Fenga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Heneley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances, and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

Franks & Marion, "the neatest," put on their comedy of "The Veteran's Birthday," with all the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Surprise Party," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G. Beasley, the musical king; Miss Maria Moreno, balladist, and Miss Dolly Paxton serio-comic, appear here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny "One Night in New York," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the act of "The Secret," which calls for all the company.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Rose Ellwood, Lola Vernon and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

AMERICAN PLAYS.

Dramatic literature in America is doing well enough, considering the little time since the first beginning were made. It is quite up to the level of the co-related arts in the matter of development, and now that the invasion flood of the old and dull English plays has been broken and imitation has given way to invention, there is hope for a very decided advance. "Held by the Enemy," "The Wife," "The Henriettas," "Paul Kauvar," "Shenandoah" (which is already negotiating to go before London audiences). "The Burglar," "The Great Metropolis" and other plays are in proof that the period of effective construction has fully set in. Indeed, the American drama has asserted itself in such a superior manner when compared with the recently "brought-over" plays that our managers are now ready to produce American pieces

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Quite a host of stage artizans are at work at the Grand Opera House preparing for Manager Maguire's spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for the opening attraction on Saturday, the 26th. Every scene will be new, and the romantic drama will have expensive settings and appointments.

Julia Marlowe, who is put forward as Mary Anderson's successor, is still winning good opinions. She is playing at the Grand Opera House in Baltimore. The papers commend her acting. One journal says, 'Miss Marlowe's performance of Rosalind captivated her auditors completely, and she won a recall at the end of each act." Eben Plympton was the Orlando, Milnes Levick Jacques and Miss Shaw Celia. She is a token of as being 'winning and womanly" in Viola. "Miss Marlowe" is pronounced 'charming as Julia (in 'The Hunchback'), and her portrayal was marked by much tenderness and deep feeling. She was very strong in the interview with Master Walter, in the fourth act, and at the close the curtain was raised three times." The papers have given her good notices, and she must have made a most favorable impression. Business improved as the week advanced. Florence Roberts is in her company.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phoebe Davies revive their "Burglar" this week. "The Burglar" is a success everywhere. They filled out their two weeks time at the Bush with it a couple of months ago and turned people away at their last two nights. Cast the same.

This week Frederick Warde is filling an engagement in New York at the Grand Opera House, as Belphegor in a special and handsome production of "The Mountebank," given with entirely new scenery, costumes and accessories, and a strong supporting cast.

Manager Augustus Pitou, who managed Rose Coughlan out here in the Summer, is making extensive preparations for a spectacular production of 'The Corsican Brothers' at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, with Robert Mantell in the dual role of Louis and Fabian dei Franchi. We will put the Grand Opera House production against his, and Bandmann as Del Franchi against Mantell any night.

John A. Stevens, the irrepressible, looks as exultant in troubious as in joyous times. Mr. Stevens always has new plans to divulge. He has been in his time a painter, glazier, photographer, actor, playwright and manager. He was on the top wave once with his big New York East side theatre, and is actually making a little money at present with something on the road.

The soldier in opera, drama and comedy seems to have the call, as the saying is, at present. We have in the East just now operas, dramas and comedies running to large houses, in all of which the soldier is either the central figure or a prominent feature. "Clover," "Panola" and "The Drum Major" in opera; Booth's Baby' in comedy; 'Shenandoah," "Fernandez" and "Paul Kauvar" in drama, all have soldiers. And there's more to come. Verily the soldier is a guest on the music stage in times of peace as he is in the field in times of war.

Roberta Damon, a talented and highly respected member of the profession, died recently in Chicago. As a comedienne she had played important parts with Richard Bird, 'The Little Trooper,' Gus Williams, Frederick Bryton, the McCaull Company and others, and has also starred to some extent. In her personal circle she was widely and deeply beloved. She was the wife of James E. Pursell, one of the best known and oldest managers in the English people have ceased to talk of Mrs. Langtry's veal cutlets, and they are now inquiring about her exact relations with Freddy Gebhardt.

"The Royal Oak," the English historical drama, is a sort of poke. It depicts events in the time of Charles II, and was produced at the Drury Lane, London. The plot is described as being somewhat on the lines of "Lord Clancarty," only more so. The hero is, of course, Charles II, and Mr. Henry Neville made a splendid merry monarch. The play is far too long and tedious, and requires brightening up all around. It lacks the sensation and big effects usually supplied by Mr. Harris of the Drury. There is no railway accident, no torture chambers, no battle in Zululand, no panorama of the Spanish Armada. There is only a paltry execution on Tower Hill. The authors are advised to put their heads together and work "The Royal Oak" up to the good old Drury Lane standard.

The mammoth staged "Old Homestead" is packing the New York Academy just the same as it did last season.

'A Country Fair" follows Clara Morris at the Union Square Theatre, New York, November 11th. It is expected to run all winter.

Miss Clara Poole, the prima donna contralto of the Campanini Concert Co., is receiving great praise from the Western critics.

An exchange says that Katheryn Price, who plays the leading female part in "The Bells of Haslemere" this season, is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a handsome young woman. [If Miss Price comes from Brooklyn she breaks the record in the handsome line.]

Mr. C. F. Fleming, advance representative for Rosina Vokes, the Baldwin's attraction for next week, is in town. Mr. Fleming is a brother of Mayberry Fleming, the well known dramatic critic so long on the New York Mail and Express.

"Bootles' Baby" has been eleven months on the London stage, almost long enough to have its eye teeth cut. Its New York run up to the present time is eleven weeks, with several months yet to be heard from. Mr. Grismer has bought the copyright of this lively comedy for the Pacific Coast and will give it its first production outside of New York at the Bush on Monday night.

Eddy's Squib says: "The New York company in 'Shenandoah' goes to London next May with all the principal people now employed in its interpretation, and that arrangements are now being quietly made to that effect with its manager and half owner, Mr. Al Hayman." We congratulate the manager of the Baldwin and California Theatres on his good turn in the wheel of fortune.

Mr. Samuel S. Cox, advance manager of Frank Daniels' "Little Puck" Company, that opens at the Bush on the 28th inst., is in town to post the people of its coming.

Augustin Daly is preparing for his grand production of "As You Like It," with Ada Rehan and fifty-three people in the cast. He will take his company to Europe again next year. They will fill engagements in London, Paris and Berlin.

The B. P. O. Elks has already issued invitations for its Annual Carnival on Thanksgiving eve., November 27th, at the Mechanics' Pavilion. It will be participated in by most of the members of the theatrical companies and will be the carnival of the season. The invitation souvenir represents a view of the Golden Gate at sunset, handsomely got up by C. W. Nevin & Co. The charity fund needs reviving and the carnival will contribute a goodly sum thereto.

The New York papers already begin to class "The Golden Widow" as a failure at Daly's, and declare that "Paola" is not a monumental success at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

Tony Pastor returns to his New York theatre on October 21st with a strong vaudeville troupe.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, is in town, getting ready for the opening of his season on Saturday evening, Oct. 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive this week.

Eddy's Squib says: "'Bric-a-Brac' will be taken to California in the near future."

Eddy's Squib says: "M. B. Curtis returns to the stage this season, opening in New York in December in a new play. He will be managed by Mr. W. L. Lykens." Has M. B. tired of blooming Berkeley?

Gounod's words in regard to singing should be remembered by every singer. He said to a young girl who meant to go on the stage and who, while gifted with natural abilities, as well as careful training and intelligence, spoiled them with indistinct utterance. "The musical voice is better and better the more nearly it approaches to spoken words. A purely vocal tone, however beautiful, must be varied and made distinct by words, which alone supply expression, dramatic sentiment, warmth and life. A pure, clear and distinct utterance is the first law of the art of singing."

W. S. Cleveland's minstrels are drawing full houses at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, with their spectacular Dodge of Venice first part, with Willis P. Sweetnam (Billy) and Billy Rice on the ends and their strong array of minstrel, vocal and specialty talent. This is the company that comes to the Bush later on.

Salvini is playing Samson in his piece of that name in New York, and makes a great show of simulated strength in a dramatic way; but they have Samson in might performing at the Royal Aquarium in London at present, where his feats of strength are certainly of an original and marvelous character. With a blow of his fist he breaks an iron chain that will bear a pressure of 3,000 pounds. With his two hands grasping a short chain of 2500 pounds a certain pressure, he makes a momentary effort and pulls the iron chain to bits. We call the attention of our knock-out club to this Mr. Samson. What can "Unknown" be would make to put against the Marine.

The Orpheum Specialty Co., culled from the best, will hold the stage of that theatre this week.

Little Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, are particular favorites with the Rochesters, Jim Boyle Meyer's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," this week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here, which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

"The Burglar" will be the bill, positively, for this week only.

"The Burglar" is a charming play, sparkling with light comedy flashes and full of nature. It is stamped as a genuine success everywhere. Both Mr. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies have strong parts, and the fitness of its situations for exciting interest and retaining the attention of its audiences continues from beginning to end. The child's part in naturalness and sympathy has no equal, and the light comedy acting of Harry Davenport is admirable. Hugo Toland shows a marked improvement in reserved force and composure as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, and the other characters are all in good hands.

We have written fully of the merits of play and cast on its last production.

The charming comedy of "Bootles' Baby," with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be next week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootles' Baby" is now in its eleventh week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its success.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr. Frank H. Gassaway, and the play will have a careful and elaborate production.

Box office open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar this week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in oven the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

W. H. Lytell is an excellent burlesque comedian. As the crushed tragedian he is irresistibly mirth-inspiring. John Webster, the Reverend gentleman who takes a character in the production for the good it will do, is an excellent foil in his seriousness. Mr. Chas. Shackford and Mr. Louis Finninger augment their parts by fine vocal specialties. Miss Blanche Mortimer and Miss Francis Herbert give two clever female impersonations, and Felix Haney is very funny as Mrs. Morton.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the scenes looking in front of the house, and in secret with all that goes on on the stage during the production of the charity play.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa opens this week in her new piece, "Margery Daw," and will renew acquaintance with us in a comedy-drama she purchased and made a success in England, in which she shows her taking soubrette qualities as a "light-as-air" heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is an all-around bright soubrette. In one of her popular songs, in which she recounts how one of her promiscuous lovers serenaded her over the high brick wall, she shows great nimbleness and the grace of a fawn in her dancing movements. The song comes in for warm encores. Burt Haverly comes back to us in a white-face character and "acts well his part." Miss Alice French, Miss Belle Stoddard, and the members of the company generally, acquitted themselves creditably.

Patti Rosa announces "Bob," the late Fred

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, is in town and commences his season on Saturday evening, October 26th, with with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as del Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

The theatre will be kept open the year round. The New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Maguire's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum Specialty Company will cater for the amusement of its patrons this week It consists of Liston, the musical wonder; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos; Geo. H. Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Vanola, the Mexican marvel; Miss Tillie Morrissey, the operatic vocalist; Freddie Stockmeyer, the vocal soubrette; the Polks, Tyrolean Warblers; Harry Moore, vocalist; John Morrissey, comedian, and Prof. Martin and his troupe of trained dogs, "The Little Lord Fauntleroys." A goodly array of talent.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances week of 28th, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodrames at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentetion in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre this week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces and entirely different in plot and incidents from a play produced here under the same title some time ago.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; Irene Lee, the song bird; Gilbert & Goldie, the "Kalifornia Kranky Koons;" the Tudors, those clever sketch artists; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

The Coyne Bros., marvelous deginers in paper; Dupont, the most pliable-bodied man living; the lady specialists, Lillie Mason, Kitty Goodwin, Edith Morrison, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lottie Le Vyne, vocalists; Bayannette, the aerial queen, and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, The Lawn Tennis Brigade, is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Louis Dupont, the closest back-bender living; Franks & Marion; Offy Goofty, the odd; Senor Delmonio, "El Rey del Feuga," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances, and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nesteil and others give a fine programme.

Franks & Marion, "the neatest," put on their comedy of "The Veteran's Birthday," with all the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nesteil.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Surprise Party," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G Beasley, the musical king; Miss Maria Moreno, balladist, and Miss Dolly Paxton, serio-comic, appear here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny "One Night in New York," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the act of "The Secret," which calls for all the company.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Rose Ellwood, Lola Vernon and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

AMERICAN PLAYS.

Dramatic literature in America is doing well enough, considering the little time since the first beginning were made. It is quite up to the level of the co-related arts in the matter of development, and now that the invasion flood of the old and dull English plays has been broken and imitation has given way to invention, there is hope for a very decided advance. "Held by the Enemy." "The Wife," "The Henrietta," "Paul Kauvar," "Shenandoah" (which is already negotiating to go before London audiences). "The Burglar," "The Great Metropolis" and other plays are in proof that the period of effective construction has fully set in. Indeed, the American drama has asserted itself in such a superior manner when compared with the recently "brought-over" plays that our managers

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

THE SEVEN AGES.

The Henry E. Dixey production of William Gill's new burlesque under the above title is one of the current theatrical sensations of New York. The papers generally pronounce it a success, and predict for it an "Adonis" run. We compile from our exchanges a condensed account of its features and impersonation.

"The Seven Ages" is Shakespeare's theme developed in a Knickerbocker atmosphere, and environed with all the burlesque elements of pretty women, shapely figures, catching airs, ringing choruses and richness of costumes, with gleams of fun, fancy and grotesqueness thrown in wherever they can find application.

The scene opens with Dixey at home as Bertie Van Loo, a Columbia College graduate, in an evening dress, who falls asleep while waiting for his sisters to get ready for the circus. In his dream he has a conversation with the statue of Shakespeare, which conveniently comes to life, and tells him he must impersonate his Seven Ages.

The dream story extends over a period of ninety years, beginning in 1740 and ending in 1830. In the first scene Dixey appears as the infant rolling around in a perambulator in the Battery Park, as the Battery Park is supposed to have looked in New York 150 years ago. This is followed by a transcript from his schoolboy experience of 1750, played out on the playground of the Van Knicker Academy. In 1765 he has developed into the lover and disports himself in the ballroom and conservatory of the Van Loo mansion, and ten years later is a soldier of the Revolution, participating in the exciting scenes at Bowling Green, which culminated in the pulling down of the statue of George III. The Van Stuyvesant Police Court of 1800 discloses the soldier replaced by the Justice, while in 1830 the Van Loo library shows Grandfather Van Loo at the age of ninety, and ready for translation to other worlds than ours.

Dixey's abundant versatility sustained him through all changes. One of his noted bits was made in the fifth tableau, when, as the judge, he gives imitations of Comedians Hopper and Wilson that invoke thunders of applause. Another was in the last scene, in which he portrayed old age; pronounced by the Herald to be "by long odds the redeeming feature of his undertaking — absolutely true to life, picturesque in conception, and flavored with a keen ring of post-colonial days recalled."

Most of the "Adonis" Company are in the cast and are credited with doing good work. Manager Rice is to be congratulated upon the success of his expensive production.

Augustin Daly is preparing for his grand production of "As You Like It," with Ada Rehan and fifty-three people in the cast. He will take his company to Europe again next year. They will fill engagements in London, Paris and Berlin.

Julia Marlowe, who is put forward as Mary Anderson's successor, is still winning good opinions. She is playing at the Grand Opera House in Baltimore. The papers commend her acting. One journal says: "Miss Marlowe's performance of Rosalind captivated her auditors completely, and she won a recall at the end of each act." Eben Plymoton was the Orlando, Milnes Levick Jacques and May Shaw Celia. She is spoken of as being "winning and womanly" in Viola. "Miss Marlowe" is pronounced "charming as Julia (in 'The Hunchback'), and her portrayal was marked by much tenderness and deep feeling. She was very strong in the interview with Master Walter in the fourth act, and at the close the curtain was raised three times." The papers gave her good notices, and she must have made a most favorable impression. Business is improved as the week

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

James Love will be the press-man for the Grand Opera House. No better selection could have been made.

Mr. Samuel S. Cox, advance manager of Frank Daniels' "Little Puck" Company, that opens at the Bush on the 28th inst., is in town to post the people of its coming. Mr. Cox comes here in a disabled condition; still suffering from his broken arm, that gives him much pain. He says his "show is not crippled," however he may be.

Mme. Janauschek was thrown from a carriage on the 17th, at Jamestown (N. Y.), while being driven to the theatre and badly bruised.

Maggie Mitchell, the actress, and her leading man, Charles Abbott, were married in Boston on the 20th inst. It is well known that this popular emotional actress had not lived in harmony with her husband, Mr. Paddock, and that she had obtained a divorce from him. Although the greatest of Fanchons is some years the elder of Mr. Abbott, the marriage is prompted by feelings of mutual affection, and promises to lead to the happiest results.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, is in town, getting ready for the opening of his season on Saturday evening, Oct. 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Franchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive this week.

English people have ceased to talk of Mrs. Langtry's veal cutlets, and they are now inquiring about her exact relations with Freddy Gebbardt.

"The Royal Oak," the English historical drama, is a sort of poke. It depicts events in the time of Charles II, and was produced at the Drury Lane, London. The plot is described as being somewhat on the lines of "Lord Clancarty," only more so. The hero is, of course, Charles II, and Mr. Henry Neville made a splendid merry monarch. The play is far too long and tedious, and requires brightening up all around. It lacks the sensation and big effects usually supplied by Mr. Harris of the Drury. There is no railway accident, no torture chambers, no battle in Zululand, no panorama of the Spanish Armada. There is only a paltry execution on Tower Hill. The authors are advised to put their heads together and work "The Royal Oak" up to the good old Drury Lane standard.

The mammoth staged "Old Homestead" is packing the New York Academy just the same as it did last season.

"A Country Fair" follows Clara Morris at the Union Square Theatre, New York, November 11th. It is expected to run all winter.

Miss Clara Poole, the prima donna contralto of the Campanini Concert Co., is receiving great praise from the Western critics.

An exchange says that Katheryn Price, who plays the leading female part in "The Bells of Haslemere" this season, is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a handsome young woman. [If Miss Price comes from Brooklyn she breaks the record in the handsome line.]

Mr. C. F. Fleming, advance representative for Rosina Vokes, the Baldwin's attraction for next week, is in town. Mr. Fleming is a brother of Mayberry Fleming, the well known dramatic critic so long on the New York Mail and Express.

"Bootles' Baby" has been eleven months on the London stage, almost long enough to have its eye teeth cut. Its New York run up to the present time is eleven weeks, with several months yet to be heard from. Mr. Grismer has bought the copyright of this lively comedy for the Pacific Coast and will give it its first production outside of New York at the Bush on Monday night.

Quite a host of stage artizans are at work at the Grand Opera House preparing for Manager Maguire's spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for the opening attraction on Saturday, the 26th. Every scene will be new, and the romantic drama will have expensive settings and appointments.

"Bootles' Baby" will have two companies, one in New York and one on the road. It is a big success.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies withdraw "The Burglar" after this week.

This week Frederick Warde is filling an engagement in New York at the Grand Opera House, as Belphegor in a special and handsome production of "The Mountebank," given with entirely new scenery, costumes and accesories, and a strong supporting cast.

Manager Augustus Pitton, who managed Rose Coughlan out here in the Summer, is making extensive preparations for a spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, with Robert Mantell in the dual role of Louis and Fabian die Franchi. We will pit the Grand Opera House production against his, and Bandmann as Del Franchi against Mantell any night.

John A. Stevens, the irrepressible, looks as exultant in troublous as in joyous times. Mr. Stevens always has new plans to divulge. He has been in his time a painter, glazier, photographer, actor, playwright and manager. He was on the top wave once with his big New York East side theatre, and is actually

Manager Foster has added to the cafe of the Bella Union Theatre a dozen handsome oil paintings, several of them about six by ten feet in size, representing views of Mt. Shasta, the famous redwoods and other noted California scenery. They form a veritable art gallery, and are a valuable collection

W. S. Cleveland's minstrels are drawing full houses at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, with their spectacular Dodge of Venice first part, with Willis P. Sweetnam (Billy) and Billy Rice on the ends and their strong array of minstrel, vocal and specialty talent. This is the company that comes to the Bush later on.

The Orpheum Specialty Co., culled from the best, will hold the stage of that theatre this week.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

The Grand Opera House will be opened on Saturday night, October 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann and a strong company in the cast.

Patti Rosa is a very deft bar joist.

The New York papers already begin to class "The Golden Widow" as a failure at Daly's, and declare that "Paola" is not a monumental success at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

FRIDAY.....OCTOBER 18, 188

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Mr. Grismer revives that pronounced success, "The Burglar," this week with the same cast that it had at the Bush on its first production here which was declared by the critics to be nearly perfect in all its characterizations.

"The Burglar" will be the bill, positively, for this week only.

"The Burglar" is a charming play, sparkling with light comedy flashes and full of nature. It is stamped as a genuine success everywhere. Both Mr. Grismer and Miss Phœbe Davies have strong parts, and the fitness of its situations for exciting interest and retaining the attention of its audiences continues from beginning to end. The child's part in naturalness and sympathy has no equal, and the light comedy acting of Harry Davenport is admirable. Hugo Toland shows a marked improvement in reserved force and composure as the retired merchant, John Hamilton, and the other characters are all in good hands.

We have written fully of the merits of play and cast on its last production.

The charming comedy of "Bootles' Baby," with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be next week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootles' Baby" is now in its eleventh week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its success.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr. Frank H. Gassaway, and the play will have a careful and elaborate production.

Box office open on Thursday.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar this week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in high and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

W. H. Lytell is an excellent burlesque comedian. As the crushed tragedian he is irresistibly mirth-inspiring. John Webster, the Reverend gentleman who takes a character in the production for the good it will do, is an excellent foil in his seriousness. Mr. Chas. Shackford and Mr Louis Finsinger augment their parts by fine vocal specialities. Miss Blanche Mortimer and Miss Francis Herbert give two clever female impersonations, and Felix Haney is very funny as Mrs. Morton.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the scenes looking in front of the house, and in secret with all that goes on on the stage during the production of the charity play.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa opens this week in her new piece, "Margery Daw," and will renew acquaintance with us in a comedy-drama she purchased and made a success in England, in which she shows her taking soubrette qualities as a "light-as-air" heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is an all-around bright soubrette. In one of her popular songs, in which she recounts how one of her promiscuous lovers serenaded her over the high brick wall, she shows great nimbleness and the grace of a fawn in her dancing movements. The song comes in for warm encores.

Burt Haverly comes back to us in a white-face character and "acts well his part." Miss Alice French, Miss Belle Stoddard, and the members of the company generally, acquitted themselves creditably.

Patti Rosa announces "Bob," the late Fred

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, is in town and commences his season on Saturday evening, October 26th, with with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as dei Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

The theatre will be kept open the year round. The New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum Specialty Company will cater for the amusement of its patrons this week It consists of Liston, the musical wonder; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos; Geo. H. Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Vanola, the Mexican marvel; Miss Tillie Morrissey, the operatic vocalist; Freddie Stockmeyer, the vocal soubrette; the Polks, Tyrolean Warblers; Harry Moore, vocalist; John Morrissey, comedian, and Prof. Martin and his troupe of trained dogs, "The Little Lord Fauntleroys." A goodly array of talent.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances week of 28th, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentation in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre this week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces and entirely different in plot and incidents from a play produced here under the same title some time ago.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; Irene Lee, the song bird; Gilbert & Goldie, the "California Kranky Koons;" the Tudors, those clever sketch artists; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Bursell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

The Coyne Bros., marvelous degiers in paper; Dupont, the most pliable-bodied man living; the lady specialists, Lillie Mason, Kitty Goodwin, Edith Morrison, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists; Rayannetta, the aerial queen, and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, The Lawn Tennis Brigade, is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Louie Dupont, the closest back-bender living; Franks & Marion; Offty Goofty, the odd; Senor Delmonio, "El Rey del Feuge," who appears to have powers analogous to his Satanic Majesty of theology, and Miss Lillie Hensley, song and dance artiste, put in new appearances, and those that are retained, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others give a fine programme.

Franks & Marion, "the neatest," put on their comedy of "The Veteran's Birthday," with all the company in the cast.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Surprise Party," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burne, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G Beasley, the musical king; Miss Maria Moreno, balladist, and Miss Dolly Paxton, serio-comic, appear here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny "One Night in New York," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the act of "The Secret," which calls for all the company.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Rose Ellwood, Lola Vernon and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company this week:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Attractive new features next week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Manager Maguire will open the Grand

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Frank Frost left on the steamer for Australia to-day, to manage the elevated business of the Van Tassell Brothers, who will introduce, for the first time in that country, balloon ascensions accompanied by parachute descensions.

G. H. Dermer, advance representative of Chiarini's Circus, returned from Honolulu by the last steamer, and is getting things ready for the Circus King's opening, at Central Park, corner of Market and Eighth streets, on November 4th.

Charley Day writes us from Baltimore, on the 11th inst., that W. S. Cleveland's Minstrels have done "immense" so far. "All well, except a half dozen of our vocalists, who have got hoarse brawling to so many, and now they come to Bal-to-more."

Manager Foster has added to the cafe of the Bella Union Theatre a dozen handsome oil paintings, several of them about six by ten feet in size, representing views of Mt. Shasta, the famous redwoods and other noted California scenery. They form a veritable art gallery, and are a valuable collection

W. S. Cleveland's minstrels are drawing full houses at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, with their spectacular Dodge of Venice first part, with Willis P. Sweatnam (Billy) and Billy Rice on the ends and their strong array of minstrel, vocal and specialty talent. This is the company that comes to the Bush later on.

Lottie Ellis and Pete Smith, two talented and popular performers, and particular favorites with the North-siders, join Bottle Meier's Theatre this week. His business is booming under Fox's management.

The Grand Opera House will be opened on Saturday night, October 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann and a strong company in the cast.

J. C. Duff has decided to devote the New York Standard Theatre entirely to burlesque.

John W. Thomp—Yes, the Dion Boucicault Blacksmith School of Acting is still turning them out in New York.

Mr. T. H. Glenney will shortly take the road East with a first class company, in a repertoire consisting of "The Murder in a Hansom Cab, Love and Gold, and Storm Bound." There has been quite a number of storm beaten companies returned from the road, but this will be successful for it travels with a Hansom cab and love and gold in hand.

The Henry E. Dixey production of William Gill's new burlesque, "The Seven Ages," is one of the current theatrical sensations of New York. The papers generally pronounce it a success, and predict for it an "Adonis" run.

"The Seven Ages" is Shakespeare's theme developed in a Knickerbocker atmosphere, and environed with all the burlesque elements of pretty women, shapely figures, catching airs, ringing choruses and richness of costumes, with gleams of fun, fancy and grotesqueness thrown in wherever they can find application

It represents Dixey in a dream passing through the seven ages of life of his ancestors, commencing with his babyhood in 1740.

Augustin Daly is preparing for his grand production of "As You Like It," with Ada Rehan and fifty-three people in the cast. He will take his company to Europe again next year. They will fill engagements in London, Paris and Berlin.

Tony Pastor returns to his New York theatre on October 21st with a strong vaudeville troupe.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

See casts of "Little Puck," coming to the Bush Street Theatre, and Rosina Vokes' comedies, at the Baldwin, next week, in our columns.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska began an extended engagement at the Broadway Theatre this week, opening in a handsome production of "Richelieu," with Mr. Booth as the Cardinal, and Modjeska as Julie de Mortimer. "Richelieu" will be given every night. Matinees on Saturday only, when "Much Ado About Nothing" will be presented, with Mr. Booth as Benedick and Modjeska as Beatrice. The advance sale for their engagement was enormous.

James Love will be the press-man for the Grand Opera House. No better selection could have been made.

Mr. Samuel S. Cox, advance manager of Frank Daniels' "Little Puck" Company, that opens at the Bush on the 28th inst., is in town to post the people of its coming. Mr. Cox comes here in a disabled condition; still suffering from his broken arm, that gives him much pain. He says his "show is not crippled," however he may be.

Mme. Janauschek was thrown from a carriage on the 17th, at Jamestown (N. Y.), while being driven to the theatre and badly bruised.

Maggie Mitchell, the actress, and her leading man, Charles Abbott, were married in Boston on the 20th inst. It is well known that this popular emotional actress had not lived in harmony with her husband, Mr. Paddock, and that she had obtained a divorce from him. Although the greatest of Fanchons is some years the elder of Mr. Abbott, the marriage is prompted by feelings of mutual affection, and promises to lead to the happiest results.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, is in town, getting ready for the opening of his season on Saturday evening, Oct. 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive this week.

"The Royal Oak," the English historical drama, is a sort of poke. It depicts events in the time of Charles II, and was produced at the Drury Lane, London. The plot is described as being somewhat on the lines of "Lord Clancarty," only more so. The hero is, of course, Charles II, and Mr. Henry Neville made a splendid merry monarch. The play is far too long and tedious, and requires brightening up all around. It lacks the sensation and big effects usually supplied by Mr. Harris of the Drury. There is no railway accident, no torture chambers, no battle in Zululand, no panorama of the Spanish Armada. There is only a paltry execution on Tower Hill. The authors are advised to put their heads together and work "The Royal Oak" up to the good old Drury Lane standard.

The mammoth staged "Old Homestead" is packing the New York Academy just the same as it did last season.

"A Country Fair" follows Clara Morris at the Union Square Theatre, New York, November 11th. It is expected to run all winter.

Miss Clara Poole, the prima donna contralto of the Campanini Concert Co., is receiving great praise from the Western critics.

An exchange says that Katheryn Price, who plays the leading female part in "The Belle of Haslemere" this season, is a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a handsome young woman. [If Miss Price comes from Brooklyn she breaks the record in the handsome line.]

Mr. C. F. Fleming, advance representative for Rosina Vokes, the Baldwin's attraction for next week, is in town. Mr. Fleming is a brother of Maybury Fleming, the well known dramatic critic so long on the New York Mail and Express.

"Bootles' Baby" has been eleven months on the London stage, almost long enough to have its eye teeth cut. Its New York run up to the present time is eleven weeks, with several months yet to be heard from. Mr. Grismer has bought the copyright of this lively comedy for the Pacific Coast and will give it its first production outside of New York at the Bush on Monday night.

Quite a host of stage artizans are at work at the Grand Opera House preparing for Manager Maguire's spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for the opening attraction on Saturday, the 26th. Every scene will be new, and the romantic drama will have expensive settings and appointments.

"Bootles' Baby" will have two companies, one in New York and one on the road. It is a big success.

Joseph R. Grismer and Phœbe Davies withdraw "The Burglar" after this week.

Manager Augustus Pitou, who managed Rose Coughlan out here in the Summer, is making extensive preparations for a spectacular production of 'The Corsican Brothers" at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, with Robert Mantell in the dual role of Louis and Fabian die Franchi. We will put the Grand Opera House production against his, and Bandmann as Del Franchi against Mantell any night.

Patti Rosa is a very deft banjoist.

AN ARRANT KNAVE.

Chicago papers say that Stuart Robson's new play, "An Arrant Knave," written and re-adapted for him by Steele Mackaye, is way off. They "cannot congratulate him on his first venture." "If it is to be kept in Mr. Robson's repertoire even for the present season, it will require considerable trimming and re-writing. A comedy in blank-verse is something of a daring venture even for this ever audacious author, and it is to be regretted that bitter success did not crown his efforts. In the first act the characters are simply introduced; the second is somewhat amusing and dramatic; the third is hopelessly dull; as for the fourth, one is inclined to wonder why it was written. Mr. Robson's character, Captain Caiqui, is a subordinate one, yet he is kept in the center of the stage until his very presence becomes tedious. Not one of the support made a positive impression." The critic classifies the

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

"The Burglar" will be withdrawn after this week. To-night and Sunday night will be the last chances to see this excellent play.

The charming comedy of "Bootles' Baby," with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be next week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootles' Baby" is now in its eleventh week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its success.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr. Frank H. Gassaway, and the play will have a careful and elaborate production.

—o—

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, October 28th. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Conor, William White and others.

For cast and further particulars see extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," commences her season at the Alcazar this week in her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals"

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

W. H. Lytell is an excellent burlesque comedian. As the crushed tragedian he is irresistibly mirth-inspiring. John Webster, the Reverend gentleman who takes a character in the production for the good it will do, is an excellent foil in his seriousness. Mr. Chas. Shackford and Mr. Louis Finninger augment their parts by fine vocal specialties. Miss Blanche Mortimer and Miss Francis Herbert give two clever female impersonations, and Felix Haney is very funny as Mrs. Morton.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the scenes looking in front of the house, and in secret with all that goes on on the stage during the production of the charity play.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa opens this week in her new piece, "Margery Daw," and renewed acquaintance with us in a comedy-drama she purchased and made a success in England, in which she shows her taking soubrette qualities as a "light-as-air" heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is an all-around bright soubrette. In one of her popular songs, in which she recounts how one of her promiscuous lovers serenaded her over the high brick wall, she shows great nimbleness and the grace of a fawn in her dancing movements. The song comes in for warm encores.

Burt Haverly comes back to us in a white-face character and "acts well his part" Miss Alice French, Miss Belle Stoddard, and the members of the company generally, acquitted themselves creditably.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, a gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, commences her engagement at the Baldwin next week in a triple bill that will put even her versatility to the test. The performance commences with an old one-act comedy of "A Game of Cards," followed by the comedietta of "A Milliner's Bill," and concludes with the standard comedy of "The Rough Diamond." There is an unusual quantity of amusing material in this bill.

Miss Vokes is supported by Felix Morris, a very clever comedian, and her own company in support.

The sale is large.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, is in town and commences his season on Saturday evening, October 26th, with with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as dei Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

The theatre will be kept open the year round. The New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account. He brings a company with him headed by J. H. Gilmour, a very talented and popular leading man.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum Specialty Company will cater for the amusement of its patrons this week It consists of Liston, the musical wonder; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos; Geo. H. Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Vanola, the Mexican marvel; Miss Tillie Morrissey, the operatic vocalist; Freddie Stockmeyer, the vocal soubrette; the Polks, Tyrolean Warblers; Harry Moore, vocalist; John Morrissey, comedian, and Prof. Martin and his troupe of trained dogs, "The Little Lord Fauntleroys." A goodly array of talent.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances on the 22nd, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne have engaged Mr. Sid C. France to produce a series of his melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and makes the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

"Dead to the World," a thrilling drama of Southern life, written for Mr. France by Frank Dumont, has its first presentation in San Francisco at Morosco's Theatre this week. In this play Mr. France plays a dual role and makes rapid changes. It is one of his strong pieces and entirely different in plot and incidents from a play produced here under the same title some time ago.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

"Jealousy," a sensational comedy-drama, will be the bill next week.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; Irene Lee, the song bird; Gilbert & Goldie, the "Kalifornia Kranky Koons;" the Tudors, those clever sketch artists; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters; Maggie Burnell, the winger of wingers in dancing; the Quigley Brothers, song and dance artists; and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

The Coyne Bros., marvelous degiers in paper; Dupont, the most pliable-bodied man living; the lady specialists, Lillie Mason, Kitty Goodwin, Edith Morrison, and Kittie Lo Reine, change artists, are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Lettie Le Vyne, vocalists; Rayannetta, the aerial queen, and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, The Lawn Tennis Brigade, is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, are new this week.

The bill opens with a musical first-part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Surprise Party," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Belle Arnold, Ruby Grant, Josie Mayfield, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

New acts and new people next week.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

S. G. Beasley, the musical king; Miss Maria Moreno, balladist, and Miss Dolly Paxton, serio-comic, appear here this week in acts and specialties. Besides there are Pete Smith and Miss Lottie Ellis, two great favorites. No two performers could be more welcome in this locality. They are clever and versatile and Miss Ellis is a vocalist of unusual merit.

The bill opens with J. D. Fox's funny "One Night in New York," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Smith & Ellis' new vocal medley, Beasley's fine musical act, and the act of "The Secret," which calls for all the company.

The olio brings to the front in musical turns and specialties Marie Morino, Lottie Ellis, Rose Ellwood, Lola Vernon and company generally.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman

STAGE CHESTNUTS.

If there is a modern drama in existence in which none of the following sentences are to be found, we would be glad to know its name:

Unhand me, villain.

Not another word.

I am lost!

Back to the old homestead.

To-morrow all the world will know that D'Arcy O'Brien is a bankrupt.

You have pronounced your own doom.

Fly, ere it is too late!

Curses on ye all!

Is it thus that we meet, after all these years?

No resource is left but death!

Mandeville Snooks, you are in my power!

Man, man, have you no pity?

Would you know my story? Listen.

Reginald! Reginald! Great heavens, he is gone!

Aha! you tremble!

This, then, is the end of all.

Would that I were dead.

Hector Reilly, you see before you a desperate man.

And this is the man I called my friend!

If you have no pity for me, at least consider her.

Can he suspect?

Villain, you have betrayed me!

Have you no mercy?

She must, she shall be mine!

So, so! all my schemes prosper.

The priceless heritage of an untarnished name.

You cast me off—so be it.

For years I have waited for this hour.

Wretch, would you strike a woman?

Who will save me?

Die! base wretch.

It is the long lost will.

Help! help! or I shall escape.

There is your money, now leave me.

Come, Blanche, sing me that song you used to sing in the old days. [P. S.—Blanche never refuses to sing it.]

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Frank Frost left on the steamer for Australia to-day, to manage the elevated business of the Van Tassell Brothers, who will introduce, for the first time in that country, balloon ascensions accompanied by parachute descensions.

J. H. Dermer, advance representative of Chiarini's Circus, returned from Honolulu by the last steamer, and is getting things ready for the Circus King's opening, at Central Park, corner of Market and Eighth streets, on November 4th.

Charley Day writes us from Baltimore, on the 11th inst., that W. S. Cleveland's Minstrels have done "immense" so far. "All well, except a half dozen of our vocalists, who have got hoarse brawling to so many, and now they come to Baltimore."

Manager Foster has added to the cafe of the Bella Union Theatre a dozen handsome oil paintings, several of them about six by ten feet in size, representing views of Mt. Shasta, the famous redwoods and other noted California scenery. They form a veritable art gallery, and are a valuable collection.

Tony Pastor returns to his New York theatre this week with a strong vaudeville troupe.

W. S. Cleveland's minstrels are drawing full houses at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, with their spectacular Dodge of Venice first part, with Willis P. Sweatnam (Billy) and Billy Rice on the ends and their strong array of minstrel, vocal and specialty talent. This is the company that comes to the Bush later on.

John W. Thomp—Yes, the Dion Boucicault Blacksmith School of Acting is still turning them out in New York.

Miss Clara Poole, the prima donna contralto of the Emma Abbott Opera Company, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Poole, of Oakland, Cal.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

See casts of "Little Puck," coming next week to the Bush, and Rosina Vokes' comedies, at the Baldwin, this week, in our columns.

"The Great Metropolis," at the conclusion of its New York run, will go direct to the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, and Ben Teal, who did not have energy enough to walk around a block when he lived in San Francisco, is in ecstacy over the prospect of working his heavy life-saving scene on the big stage of that theatre. Just think of his engineering a mortar to fire the life-line that can be set to throw its projectile 100 feet. That is what he wants the Walnut Street Theatre stage for.

James Love will be the press-man for the Grand Opera House. No better selection could have been made.

Mr. Samuel S. Cox, advance manager of Frank Daniels' "Little Puck" Company, that opens at the Bush on the 28th inst., is in town to post the people of its coming. Mr. Cox comes here in a disabled condition; still suffering from his broken arm, that gives him much pain. He says his "show is not crippled," however he may be.

Mme. Janauschek was thrown from a carriage on the 17th, at Jamestown (N. Y.), while being driven to the theatre and badly bruised.

Maggie Mitchell, the actress, and her leading man, Charles Abbott, were married in Boston on the 20th inst. It is well known that this popular emotional actress had not lived in harmony with her husband, Mr. Paddock, and that she had obtained a divorce from him. Although the greatest of Fanchons is some years the elder of Mr. Abbott, the marriage is prompted by feelings of mutual affection, and promises to lead to the happiest results.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, proposes to capture the town at the opening of his season on Saturday evening, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive tomorrow.

The mammoth staged "Old Homestead" is packing the New York Academy just the same as it did last season.

"A Country Fair" follows Clara Morris at the Union Square Theatre, New York, November 11th. It is expected to run all winter.

"Bootles' Baby" has been eleven months on the London stage, almost long enough to have its eye teeth cut. Its New York run up to the present time is twelve weeks, with several months yet to be heard from. Mr. Grismer has bought the copyright of this lively comedy for the Pacific Coast and is giving it its first American production outside of New York at the Bush this week.

Quite a host of stage artizans are at work at the Grand Opera House preparing for Manager Maguire's spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for the opening attraction on Saturday night. Every scene will be new, and the romantic drama will have expensive settings and appointments.

"Bootles' Baby" will have two companies, one in New York and one on the road East. It is a big success.

Manager Augustus Pitou, who managed Rose Coughlan out here in the Summer, is making extensive preparations for a spectacular production of 'The Corsican Brothers" at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, with Robert Mantell in the dual role of Louis and Fabian die Franchi. We will pit the Grand Opera House production against his, and Bandmann as Del Franchi against Mantell any night.

The Henry E. Dixey production of William Gill's new burlesque, "The Seven Ages," is one of the current theatrical sensations of New York. The papers generally pronounce it a success, and predict for it an "Adonis" run.

"The Seven Ages" is Shakespeare's theme developed in a Knickerbocker atmosphere, and environed with all the burlesque elements of pretty women, shapely figures, catching airs, ringing choruses and richness of costumes, with gleams of fun, fancy and grotesqueness thrown in wherever they can find application.

It represents Dixey in a dream passing through the seven ages of life of his ancestor, commencing with his babyhood in 1740.

Augustin Daly is preparing for his grand production of "As You Like It," with Ada Rehan and fifty-three people in the cast. He will take his company to Europe again next year. They will fill engagements in London, Paris and Berlin.

Mr. Kyrle Bellew, in a recent interview, stated: "I rather like America where I have always been on excellent terms with the respectable portion of the press and public." And this to come from Kyrle Bellew Potter.

The Grand Opera House will be opened on Saturday night, October 26th, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann and a strong company in the cast.

Mr. T. H. Glenney will shortly take the road East with a first-class company, in a repertoire consisting of "The Murder in a Hansom Cab, Love and Gold, and Storm Beaten." There has been quite a number

THE VARIETY BUSINESS.

A New York exchange says: Probably never has there been such a universal desire to see good variety shows as now. Abbey has caught on to this sentiment and is bringing over the London Gaiety Co. Herrmann has a big company of this character already in the field and doing splendidly. The Howard Athenæum Specialty Combination comes in as a heavy competitor, and M. B. Leavitt's spectacular pantomime burlesque, "The Spider and the Fly," partakes somewhat of the qualities of both. Too much melodrama, comedy, opera and tragedy gets tiresome, and the specialty troupe seems to be a relief which the people are demanding. But it must be spiced with novelty to keep it in tone and of the first quality to keep it popular. The man who tries it on this basis will make a fortune. The merely acrobatic and gymnastic exhibitions with the conventional grotesque comedians and Irish acts have been played to a surfeit, and are played out.

Dockstader's Minstrels this season in New York produce burlesques on popular

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

The charming comedy of "Bootles' Baby," with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be this week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootles' Baby" is now in its twelfth week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its success.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr. Frank H. Gassaway, and the play will have a careful and elaborate production.

—o—

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, next week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Gilson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Cheseneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

For cast and further particulars see extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," has carried into its second week at the Alcazar her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

W. H. Lytell is an excellent burlesque comedian. As the crushed tragedian he is irresistibly mirth-inspiring. John Webster, the Reverend gentleman who takes a character in the production for the good it will do, is an excellent fool in his sentiments. Mr. Chas. Shackford and Mr Louis Sturtzinger augment their parts by fine vocal specialties. Miss Blanche Mortimer and Miss Louise Herbert give two clever female impersonations, and Felix Haney is very funny as Mrs. Morton.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the scenes looking in front of the house, and in secret with all that goes on on the stage during the production of the charity play.

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar another of her favorite comedies, "The Humming Bird," on the 28th inst.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa produces "Bob," the late Fred Warsden's lively comedy, as this week's bill. This comedy is American in scene and subject, and is much better adapted than her opening piece to show her taking soubrette qualities as a modernized heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is a clever bright soubrette.

Burt Haverly appears in "Bob" in a white-face character and "acts well his part." Miss Alice French, Miss Belle Stoddard, and the members of the company generally, have also better opportunities to acquit themselves creditably.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, commences her engagement at the Baldwin this week in a triple bill that will put even her versatility to the test. The performance commences with Bill" and concludes with the standard comedy of "The Rough Diamond." There is an unusual quantity of amusing material in this bill.

Miss Vokes is supported by Felix Morris, a very clever comedian, and her own company in support.

The sale is large.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, opens it Saturday night with with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as dei Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Over one hundred people will appear in the hilarious carnival scene, which will be a bal masque in effect.

The theatre will be kept open the year round. The New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Orpheum Specialty Company appears to-night, Monday, for the last time.

It consists of Liston, the musical wonder; A. H. Knoll and Miss McNeill, the cornet virtuosos; Geo. H. Wood, the somewhat different comedian; Vanola, the Mexican marvel; Miss Tillie Morrissey, the operatic vocalist; Freddie Stockmeyer, the vocal soubrette; the Polks, Tyrolean Warblers; Harry Moore, vocalist; John Morrissey, comedian, and Prof. Martin and his troupe of trained dogs, "The Little Lord Fauntleroys." A goodly array of talent.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances Tuesday night, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne's last card, Mr. Sid C. France, has been very successful in his series of melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and made the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

Mr. France produces for this, his fourth and last week at Morosco's, his sensational comedy drama, entitled "Jealousy," introducing the wonderful race scene at Lexington, a great novelty, the burning of the Stanton mansion, a thrilling fire scene, and a number of other dramatic sensations.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conclits, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Wilhelm Westin, European glass euphonist, his first appearance in this country; Allen & Page, black-face song and dance team; Miss Emma Forrest, change artiste; Brown & Mayville, sensational gymnasts; Flora Hastings, balladist; J. W. Kelly, the philosopher; Pat Wallace, vocalist, and Chas. Rankin, besides Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre.

Mme Agnes Zanfretta's Female Minstrels, 20 in number, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week.

Besides, the Quigley Bros., Miss Judd London, Franks & Morrison, Gilbert & Goldie, the lady specialists, Lillie Mason, Kitty Goodwin, Edith Morrison, and Eva Mackay are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Kitty Edwards, Rosie Hart and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, "A Night in the Louvre," is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

Tde dansense, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, put in new appearances here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, do a fine olio sketch.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Hospital Nurse," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Rose Devere, Miss Kittie Rivers, John Merritt and Gus Franks put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Miss Lola Vernon, J. D. Fox, Henry Kutter and others.

The bill opens with Merritt's local comedy, "Squalls and Breakers," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Fox's funny one, "That Baby," and the specialty sketches, and Franks' "Hambicker Outdone," which calls for all the company.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Mr. Greeneville Leslie, an Eastern tenor, is

GILBERT & SULLIVAN'S NEW OPERA.

The first reading of Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera took place at the Savoy Theatre, London, on last Thursday afternoon. Though the greatest care was taken to keep everything secret in regard to it, and a big stage carpenter guarded the door of the theatre wherein only the principals of their opera company and themselves had been admitted, late press dispatches tell us of its theme, plot and music, and that the entire company was delighted with the new opera.

The scene is laid in Venice and on an island on the Italian coast. The motive of the play is the mixed identity of two gondoliers, one of whom is a prince in disguise. The two gondoliers are in love with two flower girls, and the plot is further complicated by a damsel of high degree, the daughter of a nobleman, who is aware that one of the gondoliers is a prince, and is endeavoring to discover which one it is with a view to capturing him. The father of the high born damsel is one of the leading characters, and any amount of fun is derived from the ludicrous situations in which love, vanity, pride, simplicity and ignorance are involved.

The music is of the lightest and catchiest description and the consensus of opinion of Gilbert & Sullivan's company is that the opera is as good as "Mikado."

Rehearsals began this week and the first performance will be given on Saturday, November 31. The opera has not yet been named.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Cincinnati has the honor of being the birthplace of the first giraffe ever born in America. The youngster is a healthy male baby five and one-half feet high, weighing about 150 pounds. It was born in the Zoological Garden, Sunday last, and with the exception of one born in London, in 1877, is the only giraffe on record born in captivity.

It is wired that most of Barnum's circus and menagerie sailed from New York for London on the 20th inst., on the steamer Furnessia, carrying the largest collection of animals ever seen on a vessel since Noah's ark carried his menagerie through the deluge.

Frank Frost left on the steamer for Australia Sunday, to manage the elevated business of the Van Tassell Brothers, who will introduce, for the first time in that country, balloon ascensions accompanied by parachute descensions. Van Tassell has a patent gas generator with which he can charge his balloon anywhere at an hour's notice, and Frank is always well supplied with gas. They contemplate an extended tour of the world, via Japan, Java and the East Indies. It is to be hoped that no other frost will strike them, or no sudden falling downs mar the prospects of their business.

J. H. Dermer, advance representative of Chiarini's Circus, returned from Honolulu by the last steamer, and is getting things ready for the Circus King's opening, at Central Park, corner of Market and Eighth streets, on November 4th.

Manager Foster has added to the cafe of the Bella Union Theatre a dozen handsome oil paintings, several of them about six by ten feet in size, representing views of Mt. Shasta, the famous redwoods and other noted California scenery. They form a veritable art gallery, and are a valuable collection.

Tony Pastor returns to his New York theatre this week with a strong vaudeville troupe.

W. S. Cleveland's minstrels are drawing full houses at the Academy of Music, Baltimore, with their spectacular Dodge of Venice first part, with Willie P. Sweatnam (Billy) and Billy Rice on the ends and their strong array of minstrel, vocal and specialty talent. This is the company that comes to the Bush later on.

Carroll Johnson has done very well [illegible] he jumped from black to green in

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Manager Gottlob, of the Bush, was installed a member of the Society of Elks on Sunday, and is now a "brother" of that flourishing professional order.

James E. Moore, advance representative of "Mr. Barnes of New York," came in Saturday night with the storm. He is much surprised. He had always heard that California was a dry country. He is now convinced that it is the people that are dry, and not the country.

Fanny La Tosca Davenport occupied a box at the Bush Sunday night and was evidently pleased with "The Burglar," and particularly so with the fine comedy acting of her brother, Harry Davenport.

"The Stowaway" Company's scenery was entirely consumed by fire while en route from Salt Lake to Denver. The loss is $6,000. It was thought at first that the company would have to lay off a fortnight until the new scenes are ready, but by using the Tabor Opera House scenery they filled their Denver dates.

The Fourth Invitation Ladies' Social of our local lodge of Elks, the Golden Gate Lodge, No. 6, will come off at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Miss Nellie McHenry, the popular comedienne, will preside. The event will be made a notable one by the contributed talent it will call forth from the professional members of the association, local, and strangers tarrying within our midst.

The recent English importations have not set the New York dramatic firmament into a blaze. They have only fermented unfavorable criticism. The Kendals are too buxomly passee. Good, fiished artists, but over stout to keep up the delusion of light comedy and romantic drama characterizations. They are merely accepted. The imported English company they bring with them is only passably good. Mr. William Terriss and Miss Jessie Millwood, at Niblo's, the London melodramatic favorites, are variously accused of "shouting inordinately;" of "declaiming too violently" by another journal; and of "being so boisterous as to gratify none but the most ardent admirers of melodramatic buncom" by still another. The N. Y. Mercury predicts a change in the tide of English actors to this country, and that it will flow back again.

See casts of "Little Puck," coming next week to the Bush, and Rosina Vokes' comedies, at the Baldwin, this week, in our columns.

"The Great Metropolis," at the conclusion of its New York run, will go direct to the Walnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, and Ben Teal, who did not have energy enough to walk around a block when he lived in San Francisco, is in ecstacy over the prospect of working his heavy life-saving scene on the big stage of that theatre. Just think of his engineering a mortar to fire the life-line that can be set to throw its projectile 100 feet. That is what he wants the Walnut Street Theatre stage for.

James Love will be the press-man for the Grand Opera House. No better selection could have been made.

Mr. Samuel S. Cox, advance manager of Frank Daniels' "Little Puck" Company, that opens at the Bush on the 28th inst., is in town to post the people of its coming. Mr. Cox comes here in a disabled condition; still suffering from his broken arm, that gives him much pain. He says his "show is not crippled," however he may be.

Mme. Janauschek was thrown from a carriage on the 17th, at Jamestown (N. Y.), while being driven to the theatre and badly bruised.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, proposes to capture the town at the opening of his season on Saturday evening, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanem. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive tomorrow.

The mammoth staged "Old Homestead" is packing the New York Academy just the same as it did last season.

"A Country Fair" follows Clara Morris at the Union Square Theatre, New York, November 11th. It is expected to run all winter.

"Bootles' Baby" has been eleven months on the London stage, almost long enough to have its eye teeth cut. Its New York run up to the present time is twelve weeks, with several months yet to be heard from. Mr. Grismer has bought the copyright of this lively comedy for the Pacific Coast and is giving it its first American production outside of New York at the Bush this week.

Quite a host of stage artizans are at work at the Grand Opera House preparing for Manager Maguire's spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for the opening attraction on Saturday night. Every scene will be new, and the romantic drama will have expensive settings and appointments.

"Bootles' Baby" will have two companies, one in New York and one on the road East. It is a big success.

Manager Augustus Piton, who managed Rose Coughlan out here in the Summer, is making extensive preparations for a spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, with Robert Mantell in the dual role of Louis and Fabian dis

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sauford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

'Bootles' Baby," a very pleasing comedy, with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be this week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootles' Baby" is now in its twelfth week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its merits.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr Frank H. Gassaway, a local journalist. It follows the book conscientiously, though much material has been added to the comedy to give it dramatic consistency. The work has been well done, and we congratulate Mr. Gassaway on the success of his play. He was persistently called for at the end of the third act, but not being present, Mr. Grismer stepped before the curtain and thanked the audience for the compliment implied in a very neatly turned little speech.

Mr. Grismer as Captain Ferrers, "Bootles," has a manly part to play with several effective scenes. The one at the close of the first act in which he adopts the little baby woke the audience to a recall, and his closing scene in the play in conjunction with Miss Davies is very effective. Messrs. Toland, Davenport, Belmour and Dudley are companion officers, happy in conversations and in society flirtations, but with no distinctive dramatic climaxes to work up. Weir has some strong aside-scenes as the secret husband of the heroine and a plotter in villainy, and Dudley sustains the "awe" of the regiment with good methods. George M. Hermance is clever as an eccentric Corporal.

The emotional strength of the play falls to Miss Phoebe Davies, the wronged mother, and she acts the part with a characteristic feeling and sympathy that carries her audience with her. Miss Isabel Archer looked charming as the "Heart-breaker" of the play, and sustained the role effectively—with the male part of the audience. Mrs. S. Stevens gives a good characterization of the dialect part of the good old English lady, known in the quarters as the "Mother of the Regiment."

"Bootles' Baby" is played by little Laura Crews in a charmingly natural manner, and with that spontaneity of feeling in the various scenes that is the inheritance of birth, not the result of teaching solely. She is gifted with a rare degree of intelligence for stage impersonations in one so young.

The comedy is very handsomely staged. The conservatory scene won its recognition of applause from the audience.

—o—

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, next week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Cheenean, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

For cast and further particulars see extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," has carried into its second week at the Alcazar her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake." This is one of Bronson Howard's comedies, whose last play, "Shenandoah," is a New York rage, and it tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces.

W. H. Lytell is an excellent burlesque comedian. As the crushed tragedian he is irresistibly mirth-inspiring. John Webster, the Reverend gentleman who takes a character in the production for the good it will do, is an excellent foil in his seriousness. Mr. Chas. Shackford and Mr. Louis Finninger augment their parts by fine vocal specialties. Miss Blanche Mortimer and Miss Francis Herbert give two clever female impersonations, and Felix Haney is very funny as Mrs. Morton.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the scenes looking in front of the house, and in secret with all that goes on on the stage during the production of the charity play.

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar another of her favorite comedies, "The Humming Bird," on the 28th inst.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa produces "Bob," the late Fred Marsden's lively comedy, as this week's bill. This comedy is American in scene and subject, and is much better adapted than her opening piece to show her taking soubrette qualities as a modernized heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is a clever bright soubrette.

"Bob" has got vim in it, and Patti Rosa plays the title role spiritedly and makes it a great go. The play has many mirth-provoking scenes that are heartily enjoyed.

Burt Haverly appears in "Bob" as a Professor Sharp, and creates lots of fun. Miss Alice Finch and her schoolgirls become objects of lively interest to the audience. Miss Belle Stoddard and the members of the company generally have also better opportunities to acquit themselves creditably.

Next week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, commences her engagement at the Baldwin this week in a triple bill. The performance opens with the French one-act comedy of "A Game of Cards," followed by the comedietta of "A Milliner's Bill," and concludes with the standard comedy of "The Rough Diamond." There is an unusual quantity of amusing material in this bill.

In the first piece Felix Morris, a finished actor and clever comedian, has the honors as an exacting old Marquis, admirably conceived and sustained.

In the "Milliner's Bill" Miss Vokes comes to the front with her piquancy, chic and flow of spirits. The two meet on more equal ground as Cousin Joe and Margery in "The Rough Diamond," that shines with a new and brighter luster under their treatment, with its roughness polished by art and brightened by intelligence. The spirit of the good old comedy is not lost, but heightened by the two characters being lifted above the condition of stupid clodhoppers that coarser interpreters make them.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, opens it Saturday night, and with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as del Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Over one hundred people will appear in the hilarious carnival scene, which will be a bal masque in effect.

The theatre will be kept open the year round. The New York Dramatic News says that Mr. Jay Rial is about to leave that city to assume the direct management of the Grand Opera House under Mr. Magure's lesseeship, and that he has booked "The Dark Secret," "The Great Metropolis" and about thirty other heavy and important productions, including the rights to a dozen already successful plays which he will produce on his own account.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Box office now open.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances to-night, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne's last card, Mr. Sid C. France, has been very successful in his series of melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and made the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

Mr. France produces for this, his fourth and last week at Morosco's, his sensational comedy drama, entitled "Jealousy," introducing the wonderful race scene at Lexington, a great novelty, the burning of the Stanton mansion, a thrilling fire scene, and a number of other dramatic sensations.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

WILD WEST SHOWS.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show captured London and Paris. The Wild America Show, a rival organization, did the same thing for Berlin, and is now the rage of Vienna. The Viennese have fairly gone crazy over the exhibition. As many as 25,000 persons have crowded in at a single performance, and the rush has been so great that the police have been forced to interfere and prevent the over sale of tickets. Even the newspapers have caught the infection and publish solemn editorials upon the true picture of life in America as shown by the realistic performance. The next to be heard from will be Australia. J. B. Gaylord, who took the Sibbons and the Stirk Family to that country, and who has been both on Barnum's and Forepaugh's staff, returned here last Summer to organize a Wild America show constituted of the same features as the other two, and will take it to Australia by the next steamer. The specialists of the company appear at the Orpheum the current week.

ANOTHER THEATRE.

Mr. J. K. Prior owns the Panorama lot and building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, and has declared his intention of converting it into a first-class theatre in the near future. He is about to receive a new panorama, which will occupy the building for a few months, and afterwards it will be reconstructed internally into a handsome theatre. The lot is 200 feet on Eddy by 150 feet on Mason. The building is octagonal in shape, 125 feet in diameter, and is one of the strongest in construction. This will be converted into an elegant auditorium, with a hallway extending all around it, like that of the Grand Opera House, giving entrance to every aisle. He has bought an additional lot in the rear to build the stage on, which can be made as large as needed. The location, nearly opposite the Tivoli and only a block from the Baldwin Theatre, is a very desirable one.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Cincinnati has the honor of being the birthplace of the first giraffe ever born in America. The youngster is a healthy male baby five and one-half feet high, weighing about 150 pounds. It was born in the Zoological Garden, Saturday last, and with the exception of one born in London, in 1877 is the only giraffe on record born in captivity.

It is said that most of Barnum's circus and menagerie sailed from New York for London on the 20th inst., on the steamer Furnessia carrying the largest collection of animals ever seen on a vessel since Noah's ark carried his menagerie through the deluge.

Tony Pastor returns to his New York theatre this week with a strong vaudeville troupe.

The recent English importations have not set the New York dramatic firmament into a blaze. They have only fermented unfavorable criticism. The Kendals are too buxomly passee. Good, finished artists, but over-stout to keep up the illusion of light comedy, and romantic grand characterizations. They are merely accepted. The imported English company they bring with them is only passably good. Mr. William Terriss and Miss Jessie Millwood, at Niblo', the London melodramatic favorites, are variously accused of "ish-ing unfinitely;" of "declaiming the vociferously" by another critic; and of being so boisterous as to gratify none but the most ardent admirers of melodramatic buncom" by still another. The N. Y. Mercury predicts a change in the tide of English actors to this country, and that it will flow back again.

See casts of "Little Puck," coming next week to the Bush, and Rosina Vokes' comedies, at the Baldwin, this week, in our columns.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Mr. Jay Rial arrived from New York to-day, and will immediately take charge of the Grand Opera House as acting manager under the Maguire lease. Quite a host of stage artizans have been weeks at work at the Grand Opera House preparing for Manager Maguire's spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for the opening attraction, which will be produced on Monday night. Every scene will be new, and the romantic drama will have expensive settings and appointments that will rather dazzle the San Francisco theatre-goers.

A Boston dispatch says: "Richard Mansfield gave his much-heralded production of 'Richard III' at the Globe Theatre on the 21st. The grand and gloomy tragedy never received a more realistic setting, and never was the vindictive, blood-thirsty character which history assigns Richard III portrayed with such nicety of detail. There was a vast audience." As Mr. Mansfield has dates following for the production of his really spectacular "Richard III" at Philadelphia, New York is left out in the cold again and will have to wait for the third table for its Richard repast.

The shocking news is wired from Edinburgh that Florence St. John, the actress, has been robbed of jewels valued at £1526 The jewels were stolen from a cab. That has so much the flavor of an American chestnut. Excuse our doubts.

A London wire says that Mrs. Langtry has leased the St. James Theatre, recently vacated by the Kendals, for one year. So Lillie has settled down in London and ignored the Clear Lake ranch entirely. How is it with Freddie?

"Kajanka" is a success in the big cities so far visited.

Fred Solomon's burlesque, "Faust on Time," is a great go at Koster & Bial's, New York.

In a few days a theatre will be in operation in Johnstown, Pa.

Charlotte Toompson is not faring well on her Western tour; nor is Jane Coombs.

"Bootles' Baby" in New York has made its adapters rich.

"The Oolah" is on the road, with Francis Wilson and company, after a run of over one hundred and fifty nights in New York.

A Denver paper states that "the biggest audience since the opening of the Metropolitan Theatre was that which attended on Frank Daniels and 'Little Puck' on October 7th." Prepare to pucker. This funniest of all laugh-provoking pieces comes to the Bush next week.

Rose Coghlan had a plum of luck in her opening of the new Grand Opera House, Duluth, Minn., this week.

Long Branch storms cost Oliver Byron $15,000 loss.

"McKenna's Flirtation" has just passed its fiftieth performance at the New Park Theatre, New York.

Clara Morris goes to the Union Square Theatre, New York, with her new play, "Helene," next week.

Manager Gottlob, of the Bush, was installed a member of the Society of Elks on Sunday, and is now a "brother" of that flourishing professional order.

James E. Moore, advance representative of "Mr. Barnes of New York," came in Saturday night with the storm. He is much surprised. He had always heard that California was a dry country. He is now convinced that it is the people that are dry, and not the country.

"The Stowaway" Company's scenery was entirely consumed by fire while en route from Salt Lake to Denver. The loss is $6 000 It was thought at first that the company would have to lay off a fortnight until the new scenes are ready, but by using the Tabor Opera House scenery they filled their Denver dates

The Fourth Invitation Ladies' Social of our local lodge of Elks, the Golden Gate Lodge, No 6 will come off at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre on next sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Miss Nellie McHenry, the popular comedienne, will preside. The event will be made a notable one by the contributed talent it will call forth from the professional members of the association, local, and strangers tarrying within our midst.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, proposes to capture the town at the opening of his season on Monday evening, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Franchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, will arrive tomorrow.

"Bootles' Baby" has been eleven months on the London stage, almost long enough to have its eye teeth cut. Its New York run up to the present time is twelve weeks, with several months yet to be heard from. Mr. Grismer has bought the copyright of this lively comedy for the Pacific Coast and is giving it its first American production outside of New York at the Bush this week.

Manager Augustus Pitou, who managed Rose Coughlan out here in the Summer, is making extensive preparations for a spectacular production of 'The Corsican Brothers" at the Fourteenth Street Theatre, New York, with Robert Mantell in the dual role of Louis and Fabian die Franchi. We will pit the Grand Opera House production against his, and Bandmann as Del Franchi against Mantell any night.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akerman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akerman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Mr Greeneville Leslie, an Eastern tenor, is new this week.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

'Bootles' Baby," a very pleasing comedy, with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be this week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootles' Baby" is now in its twelfth week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its merits.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr. Frank H. Gassaway, a local journalist. It follows the book conscientiously, though much material has been added to the comedy to give it dramatic consistency. The work has been well done, and we congratulate Mr. Gassaway on the success of his play.

Mr. Grismer as Captain Ferrers, "Bootles," has a manly part to play with several effective scenes. The one at the close of the first act in which he adopts the little baby woke the audience to a recall, and his closing scene in the play in conjunction with Miss Davies is very effective. Messrs. Toland, Davenport, Belmour and Dudley are companion officers, happy in conversations and in society flirtations, but with no distinctive dramatic climaxes to work up. Weir has some strong aside-scenes as the secret husband of the heroine and a plotter in villainy, and Dudley sustains the "awe" of the regiment with good methods. George M. Hermance is clever as an eccentric Corporal.

The emotional strength of the play falls to Miss Phœbe Davies, the wronged mother, and she acts the part with a characteristic feeling and sympathy that carries her audience with her. Miss Isabel Archer looked charming as the "Heart-breaker" of the play, and sustained the role effectively—with the male part of the audience. Mrs. S. Stevens gives a good characterization of the dialect part of the good old English lady, known in the quarters as the "Mother of the Regiment."

'Bootles' Baby" is played by little Laura Crews in a charmingly natural manner, and with that spontaneity of feeling in the various scenes that is the inheritance of birth, not the result of teaching solely. She is gifted with a rare degree of intelligence for stage impersonations in one so young.

The comedy is very handsomely staged. The conservatory scene wins recognition of applause from the audience.

—o—

Fanny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, next week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette Miss Bessie Sansen, the well known comedienne Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

For cast and further particulars see extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Creole Queen," [illegible] its second week at the Alcazar her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake;" a comedy that tells us very [illegible] of the trials and comicalities encountered by a party of society adventurers [illegible] very [illegible] and [illegible] drama got up for the benefit of the little Creole."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the piece, supported by John Webster, W. B. Lytell and her own well selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position secret with all that goes on the stage during the production of the charity play.

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar another of her favorite comedies, "The Humming Bird," on the 28th inst.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa produces "Bob," the late Fred Marsden's lively comedy, as this week's bill. This comedy is American in scene and subject, and is much better adapted than her opening piece to show her taking soubrette qualities as a modernized heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is a clever bright soubrette.

"Bob" has got vim in it, and Patti Rosa plays the title role spiritedly and makes it a great go. The play has many mirth-provoking scenes that are heartily enjoyed.

Burt Haverly appears in "Bob" as a Professor Sharp, and creates lots of fun. Miss Alice Finch and her schoolgirls become objects of lively interest to the audience. Miss Belle Stoddard and the members of the company generally have also better opportunities to acquit themselves creditably.

Next week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, commences her engagement at the Baldwin this week in a triple bill. The performance opens with the French one-act comedy of "A Game of Cards," followed by the comedietta of "A Milliner's Bill," and concludes with the standard comedy of "The Rough Diamond." There is an unusual quantity of amusing material in this bill.

In the first piece Felix Morris, a finished actor and clever comedian, has the honors as an exacting old Marquis, admirably conceived and sustained.

In the "Milliner's Bill" Miss Vokes comes to the front with her piquancy, chic and flow of spirits. The two meet on more equal ground as Cousin Joe and Margery in "The Rough Diamond," that shines with a new and brighter luster under their treatment, with its roughness polished by art and brightened by intelligence. The spirit of the good old comedy is not lost, but heightened by the two characters being lifted above the condition of stupid clodhoppers that coarser interpreters make them.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, opens it on Monday night, and with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as del Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Jay Rial, the popular manager, here as everywhere, arrived from New York to-day to take the resident acting management of the Grand Opera House under the Maguire lease.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for weeks past, and yet it could not be got ready for Saturday night. The opening has been postponed until Monday night, when everything will be good and ready.

Every scene will be new, and this romantic drama will have such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen this side of an European stage before.

The Hillarious Carnival Scene will show one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes, and all its effects will be produced in a grand style.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Box office now open.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridle Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne's last card, Mr. Sol C. France, has been very successful in his series of melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and made the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

Mr. France produces for this, his fourth and last week at Morosco's, his sensational comedy drama, entitled "Jealousy," introducing the wonderful race scene at Lexington, a great novelty, the burning of the Stanton mansion, a thrilling fire scene, and a number of other dramatic sensations.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holland, Adrian, Franklin, Miss Kay Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Bella Union Theatre

Mme. Aggie Zaluta's Female Minstrels. 20 in number, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week.

Besides, the Quigley Bros., Miss Judd London, Franks & Morrison, Gilbert & Goldie, the lady specialists, Lillie Mason, Kitty Goodwin, Edith Morrison, and Eva Mackay are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Kitty Edwards, Rosie Hart and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, "A Night in the Louvre," is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. L. Celle, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabille," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, put in new appearances here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Hospital Nurse," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatre in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mabel Santley's Big Burlesque Company and Lida Gardner's Female Minstrels on its patrons next week.

John Merritt, Gus Franks, Rose Devere and Kitty Rivers are now at Bottle Meier's.

Miss Alice Dale, Miss Julia Grant and Miss Ella Latcher add their specialties to the Comique's bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Cincinnati has the honor of being the birthplace of the first giraffe ever born in America. The youngster is a healthy male baby five and one-half feet high, weighing about 150 pounds. It was born in the Zoological Garden, Sunday last, and with the exception of one born in London, in 1877, is the only giraffe on record born in captivity.

It is wired that most of Barnum's circus and menagerie sailed from New York for London on the 20th inst., on the steamer Furnessia carrying the largest collection of animals ever seen on a vessel since Noah's ark carried his menagerie through the deluge.

Tony Pastor returns to his New York theatre this week with a strong vaudeville troupe.

WILD WEST SHOWS.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show captured London and Paris. The Wild America Show, a rival organization, did the same thing for Berlin, and is now the rage of Vienna. The Viennese have fairly gone crazy over the exhibition. As many as 25,000 persons have crowded in at a single performance, and the rush has been so great that the police have been forced to interfere and prevent the over sale of tickets. Even the newspapers have caught the infection and publish solemn editorials upon the true picture of life in America as shown by the realistic performance. The next to be heard from will be Australia. J. B. Gaylord, who took the Silbons and the Stirk Family to that country, and who has been both on Barnum's and Forepaugh's staff, returned here last Summer to organize a Wild America show constituted of the same features as the other two, and will take it to Australia by the next steamer. The specialists of the company appear at the Orpheum the current week.

ANOTHER THEATRE.

Mr. J. K. Prior owns the Panorama lot and building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, and has declared his intention of converting it into a first-class theatre in the near future. He is about to receive a new panorama, which will occupy the building for a few months, and afterwards it will be reconstructed internally into a handsome theatre. The lot is 200 feet on Eddy by 150 feet on Mason. The building is octagonal in shape, 125 feet in diameter, and is one of the strongest in construction. This will be converted into an elegant auditorium, with a hallway extending all around it, like that of the Grand Opera House, giving entrance to every aisle. He has bought an additional lot in the rear to build the stage on, which can be made as large as needed. The location, nearly opposite the Tivoli and only a block from the Baldwin Theatre, is a very desirable one.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, proposes to capture the town at the opening of his season on Monday evening, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, arrived Wednesday.

A London wire says that Mrs. Langtry has leased the St. James Theatre, recently vacated by the Kendals, for one year. So Lillie has settled down in London and invested the Clear Lake ranch entirely

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

A dispatch from Helena to Manager Maguire states that Milton Nobles is playing there this week to good business, notwithstanding the rain—the storm has taken in Helena also. He goes to Butte City next week, will play the Maguire circuit through Montana, Washington and Oregon, and opens in this city at the Grand Opera House on November 14 b.

The subscription list for season tickets and boxes for the great Gilmore Musical Jubilee opens at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s, Kearny and Sutter streets, on Monday.

N. C. Goodwin is in the middle of three weeks' rushing business at Hooley's Theatre, Chicago.

Charles Bowser is pushing Marsden's Marsden's comedy, "Cheek," before the public with considerable of its own pertinacy.

The Dramatic News says: "Augustus Piton is making great preparations for the production of 'The Corsican Brothers' in New York." So is John Maguire for his production at the Grand Opera House on Monday night. We will pit it against Piton's.

Four nights a week are all Salvini can be induced to perform. While it is expected that his season will be a very successful one, it is badly handicapped for the sharing manager on account of his refusal to play more than four nights.

W. S. Cleveland, the mascot minstrel king, will bring his two big minstrel companies together for the Grand Opera House engagement at New York City. There will be one hundred and twenty-five minstrels and twenty-five Japs—one hundred and fifty strong. This beats Haverly's "one hundred strong—count 'em."

Young Manager—"You are making a great deal of talk about the legitimate drama. Now, I'd like to know what you mean by the legitimate, anyway?' Old Manager—"The legitimate drama, dear boy, is made up of those plays whose authors are dead and on which managers need pay no royalty."

The bal masque ballet in the "Corsican Brothers" is got up under the supervision of Prof. Rufus H. Love. The dimly-lighted stage of the Grand has been at rehearsal time during the last two weeks like some haunted dell by moonlight, filled with tripping, dancing fairies inspired by Love.

Mr. Jay Rial arrived from New York Wednesday, and immediately took charge of the Grand Opera House as acting manager under the Maguire lease. Quite a host of stage artizans have been weeks at work at the Grand Opera House preparing for Manager Maguire's spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for the opening attraction, which will be produced on Monday night. Every scene will be new, and the romantic drama will have expensive settings and appointments that will rather dazzle the San Francisco theatre-goers.

A Boston dispatch says: "Richard Mansfield gave his much-heralded production of 'Richard III' at the Globe Theatre on the 21st. The grand and gloomy tragedy never received a more realistic setting, and never was the vindictive, blood-thirsty character which history assigns Richard III portrayed with such nicety of detail. There was a vast audience." As Mr. Mansfield has dates following for the production of his really spectacular "Richard III" at Philadelphia, New York is left out in the cold again and will have to wait for the third table for its Richard repast.

The shocking news is wired from Edinburgh that Florence St. John, the actress, has been robbed of jewels valued at £1526 The jewels were stolen from a cab. That has so much the flavor of an American chestnut. Excuse our doubts.

"Kajanka" is a success in the big cities so far visited.

Fred Solomon's burlesque, "Faust on Time," is a great go at Koster & Bial's, New York

"Bootles' Baby" in New York has made its adapters rich.

A Denver paper states that "the biggest audience since the opening of the Metropolitan Theatre was that which attended on Frank Daniels and 'Little Puck' on October 7th." Prepare to pucker. This funniest of all laugh-provoking pieces comes to the Bush next week.

Rose Coghlan had a plum of luck in her opening of the new Grand Opera House, Duluth, Minn., this week.

Long Branch storms cost Oliver Byron $15,000 loss.

The recent English importations have not set the New York dramatic firmament into a blaze. They have only fermented unfavorable criticism. The Kendals are too buxomly passee. Good, finished artists, but over stout to keep up the delusion of light comedy and romantic drama characteri ations. They are merely accepted. The imported English company they bring with them is only passably good. Mr. William Terriss and Miss Jessie Millwood, at Niblo's, the London melodramatic favorites, are variously accused of "shouting inordinately;" of "declaiming too violently" by another journal; and of "being so boisterous as to gratify none but the most ardent admirers of melodramatic buncom" by still another. The N. Y. Mercury predicts a change in the tide of English actors to this country, and that it will flow back

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

"Bootles' Baby," a very pleasing comedy, with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be this week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootles' Baby" is now in its twelfth week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its merits.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr. Frank H. Gassaway, a local journalist. It follows the book conscientiously, though much material has been added to the comedy to give it dramatic consistency. The work has been well done, and we congratulate Mr. Gassaway on the success of his play.

Mr. Grismer as Captain Ferrers, "Bootles," has a manly part to play with several effective scenes. The one at the close of the first act in which he adopts the little baby woke the audience to a recall, and his closing scene in the play in conjunction with Miss Davies is very effective. Messrs. Toland, Davenport, Belmour and Dudley are companion officers, happy in conversations and in society flirtations, but with no distinctive dramatic climaxes to work up. Weir has some strong aside-scenes as the secret husband of the heroine and a plotter in villainy, and Dudley sustains the "awe" of the regiment with good methods. George M. Hermance is clever as an eccentric Corporal.

The emotional strength of the play falls to Miss Phœbe Davies, the wronged mother, and she acts the part with a characteristic feeling and sympathy that carries her audience with her. Miss Isabel Archer looked charming as the "Heart-breaker" of the play, and sustained the role effectively—with the male part of the audience. Mrs. S. Stevens gives a good characterization of the dialect part of the good old English lady, known in the quarters as the "Mother of the Regiment."

"Bootles' Baby" is played by little Laura Crews in a charmingly natural manner, and with that spontaneity of feeling in the various scenes that is the inheritance of birth, not the result of teaching solely. She is gifted with a rare degree of intelligence for stage impersonations in one so young.

The comedy is very handsomely staged. The conservatory scene wins recognition of applause from the audience.

—o—

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, next week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

For cast and further particulars see extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," has carried into its second week at the Alcazar her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake;" a comedy that tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals"

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar another of her favorite comedies, "The Humming Bird," on the 28th inst.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa produces "Bob," the late Fred Marsden's lively comedy, as this week's bill. This comedy is American in scene and subject, and is much better adapted than her opening piece to show her taking soubrette qualities as a modernized heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is a clever bright soubrette.

"Bob" has got vim in it, and Patti Rosa plays the title role spiritedly and makes it a great go. The play has many mirth-provoking scenes that are heartily enjoyed.

Burt Haverly appears in "Bob" as a Professor Sharp, and creates lots of fun. Miss Alice Finch and her schoolgirls become objects of lively interest to the audience. Miss Belle Stoddard and the members of the company generally have also better opportunities to acquit themselves creditably.

Next week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, commences her engagement at the Baldwin this week in a triple bill. The performance opens with the French one-act comedy of "A Game of Cards," followed by the comedietta of "A Milliner's Bill," and concludes with the standard comedy of "The Rough Diamond." There is an unusual quantity of amusing material in this bill.

In the first piece Felix Morris, a finished actor and clever comedian, has the honors as an exacting old Marquis, admirably conceived and sustained.

In the "Milliner's Bill" Miss Vokes comes to the front with her piquancy, chic and flow of spirits. The two meet on more equal ground as Cousin Joe and Margery in "The Rough Diamond," that shines with a new and brighter luster under their treatment, with its roughness polished by art and brightened by intelligence. The spirit of the good old comedy is not lost, but heightened by the two characters being lifted above the condition of stupid clodhoppers that coarser interpreters make them.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Next week: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal." Seats now ready.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, opens it on Monday night, and with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as dei Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Jay Rial, the popular manager, here as everywhere, has arrived from New York to take the resident acting management of the Grand Opera House under the Maguire lease.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for weeks past, and yet it could not be got ready for Saturday night. The opening has been postponed until Monday night, when everything will be good and ready.

Every scene will be new, and this romantic drama will have such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen this side of an European stage before.

The Hillarious Carnival Scene will show one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes, and all its effects will be produced in a grand style.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Box office now open.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridle Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne's last card, Mr. Sid C. France, has been very successful in his series of melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and made the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

Mr. France produces for this, his fourth and last week at Morosco's, his sensational comedy drama, entitled "Jealousy," introducing the wonderful race scene at Lexington, a great novelty, the burning of the Stanton mansion, a thrilling fire scene, and a number of other dramatic sensations.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mabel Santley's Big Burlesque Company and Lida Gardner's Female Minstrels on its patrons next week.

John Merritt, Gus Franks, Rose Devere and Kitty Rivers are now at Bottle Meier's.

Miss Alice Dale, Miss Julia Grant and Miss Ella Lercher add their specialties to the Comique's bill this week.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Cincinnati has the honor of being the birthplace of the first giraffe ever born in America. The youngster is a healthy male baby five and one-half feet high, weighing about 150 pounds. It was born in the Zoological Garden, Sunday last, and with the exception of one born in London, in 1877, is the only giraffe on record born in captivity.

It is wired that most of Barnum's circus and menagerie sailed from New York for London on the 20th inst., on the steamer Furnessia carrying the largest collection of animals ever seen on a vessel since Noah's ark carried his menagerie through the deluge.

Tony Pastor returns to his New York theatre this week with a strong vaudeville troupe.

WILD WEST SHOWS.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show captured London and Paris. The Wild America Show, a rival organization, did the same thing for Berlin, and is now the rage of Vienna. The Viennese have fairly gone crazy over the exhibition. As many as 25,000 persons have crowded in at a single performance, and the rush has been so great that the police have been forced to interfere and prevent the over sale of tickets. Even the newspapers have caught the infection and publish solemn editorials upon the true picture of life in America as shown by the realistic performance. The next to be heard from will be Australia. J. B. Gaylord, who took the Silbons and the Stirk Family to that country, and who has been both on Barnum's and Forepaugh's staff, returned here last Summer to organize a Wild America show constituted of the same features as the other two, and will take it to Australia by the next steamer. The specialists of the company appear at the Orpheum the current week.

ANOTHER THEATRE.

Mr. J. K. Prior owns the Panorama lot and building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, and has declared his intention of converting it into a first-class theatre in the near future. He is about to receive a new panorama, which will occupy the building for a few months, and afterwards it will be reconstructed internally into a handsome theatre. The lot is 200 feet on Eddy by 150 feet on Mason. The building is octagonal in shape, 125 feet in diameter, and is one of the strongest in construction. This will be converted into an elegant auditorium, with a hallway extending all around it, like that of the Grand Opera House, giving entrance to every aisle. He has bought an additional lot in the rear to build the stage on, which can be made as large as needed. The location, nearly opposite the Tivoli and only a block from the Baldwin Theatre, is a very desirable one.

Manager John Maguire, the lessee of the Grand Opera House, proposes to capture the town at the opening of his season on Monday evening, with a grand production of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as Del Fanchi. Jay Rial, his local and acting manager, arrived Wednesday.

A London wire says that Mrs. Langtry has leased the St. James Theatre, recently vacated by the Kendals, for one year. So Lillie has settled down in London and

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

A dispatch from Helena to Manager Maguire states that Milton Nobles is playing there this week to good business, notwithstanding the rain—the storm has taken in Helena also. He goes to Butte City next week, will play the Maguire circuit through Montana, Washington and Oregon, and opens in this city at the Grand Opera House on November 14th.

The subscription list for season tickets and boxes for the great Gilmore Musical Jubilee opens at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s, Kearny and Sutter streets, on Monday.

N. C. Goodwin is in the middle of three weeks' running business at Hooley's Theatre, Chicago.

Charle Bowser is pushing Marsden's Marsden's comedy, "Cheek," before the public with considerable of its own pertinacy

The Dramatic News says: "Augustus Pitou is making great preparations for the production of 'The Corsican Brothers' in New York." So is John Maguire for his production at the Grand Opera House on Monday night. We will put it against Pitou's.

Four nights a week are all Salvini can be induced to perform. While it is expected that his season will be a very successful one, it is badly handicapped for the sharing manager on account of his refusal to play more than four nights.

W. S. Cleveland, the mascot minstrel king, will bring his two big minstrel companies together for the Grand Opera House engagement at New York City. There will be one hundred and twenty-five minstrels and twenty-five Japs—one hundred and fifty strong. This beats Haverly's "one hundred strong—count 'em."

Young Manager—"You are making a great deal of talk about the legitimate drama. Now, I'd like to know what you mean by the legitimate, anyway?' Old Manager—"The legitimate drama, dear boy, is made up of those plays whose authors are dead and on which managers need pay no royalty."

The bal masque ballet in the "Corsican Brothers" is got up under the supervision of Prof. Rufus H. Love. The dimly-lighted stage of the Grand has been at rehearsal time during the last two weeks like some haunted dell by moonlight, filled with tripping, dancing fairies inspired by Love.

Mr. Jay Rial arrived from New York Wednesday, and immediately took charge of the Grand Opera House as acting manager under the Maguire lease. Quite a host of stage artizans have been weeks at work at the Grand Opera House preparing for Manager Maguire's spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for the opening attraction, which will be produced on Monday night. Every scene will be new, and the romantic drama will have expensive settings and appointments that will rather dazzle the San Francisco theatre-goers.

A Boston dispatch says: "Richard Mansfield gave his much-heralded production of 'Richard III' at the Globe Theatre on the 21st. The grand and gloomy tragedy never received a more realistic setting, and never was the vindictive, blood-thirsty character which history assigns Richard III portrayed with such nicety of detail. There was a vast audience." As Mr. Mansfield has dates following for the production of his really spectacular "Richard III" at Philadelphia, New York is left out in the cold again and will have to wait for the third table for its Richard repast.

The shocking news is wired from Edinburgh that Florence St. John, the actress, has been robbed of jewels valued at £1526. The jewels were stolen from a cab. That has so much the flavor of an American chestnut. Excuse our doubts.

"Kajanka" is a success in the big cities so far visited.

Fred Solomon's burlesque, "Faust on Time," is a great go at Koster & Bial's, New York.

"Bottles' Baby" in New York has made its adapters rich.

A Denver paper states that "the biggest audience since the opening of the Metropolitan Theatre was that which attended on Frank Daniels and 'Little Puck' on October 7th." Prepare to pucker. This funniest of all laugh-provoking pieces comes to the Bush next week.

Rose Coghlan had a plum of luck in her opening of the new Grand Opera House, Duluth, Minn., this week.

Long Branch storms cost Oliver Byron $15,000 loss.

The recent English importations have not set the New York dramatic firmament into a blaze. They have only fermented unfavorable criticism. The Kendals are too buxomly passee. Good, finished artists, but over stout to keep up the delusion of light comedy and romantic drama characterizations. They are merely accepted. The imported English company they bring with them is only passably good. Mr. William Terriss and Miss Jessie Millwood, at Niblo's, the London melodramatic favorites, are variously accused of "shouting inordinately;" of "declaiming too violently" by another journal; and of "being so boisterous as to gratify none but the most ardent admirers of melodramatic buncom" by still another. The N. Y. Mercury predicts a change in the tide of English actors to

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

"Bootles' Baby," a very pleasing comedy, with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, will be this week's attraction at the Bush, with Mr. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. "Bootles' Baby" is now in its twelfth week's run in New York and in its eleven month's run in London. That tells the story of its merits.

The dramatization of Winter's story is by Mr. Frank H. Gassaway, a local journalist. It follows the book conscientiously, though much material has been added to the comedy to give it dramatic consistency. The work has been well done, and we congratulate Mr. Gassaway on the success of his play.

Mr. Grismer as Captain Ferrers, "Bootles," has a manly part to play with several effective scenes. The one at the close of the first act in which he adopts the little baby woke the audience to a recall, and his closing scene in the play in conjunction with Miss Davies is very effective. Messrs. Toland, Davenport, Belmour and Dudley are companion officers, happy in conversations and in society flirtations, but with no distinctive dramatic climaxes to work up. Weir has some strong aside-scenes as the secret husband of the heroine and a plotter in villainy, and Dudley sustains the "awe" of the regiment with good methods. George M. Hermance is clever as an eccentric Corporal.

The emotional strength of the play falls to Miss Phoebe Davies, the wronged mother, and she acts the part with a characteristic feeling and sympathy that carries her audience with her. Miss Isabel Archer looked charming as the "Heart-breaker" of the play, and sustained the role effectively—with the male part of the audience. Mrs. S. Stevens gives a good characterization of the dialect part of the good old English lady, known in the quarters as the "Mother of the Regiment."

"Bootles' Baby" is played by little Laura Crews in a charmingly natural manner, and with that spontaneity of feeling in the various scenes that is the inheritance of birth, not the result of teaching solely. She is gifted with a rare degree of intelligence for stage impersonations in one so young.

The comedy is very handsomely staged. The conservatory scene wins recognition of applause from the audience.

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, next week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Cheseneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

For cast and further particulars see extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," has carried into its second week at the Alcazar her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake;" a comedy that tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lyteil and her own well-selected comedy company. There is more fun to the square inch in Howard's comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar another of her favorite comedies, "The Humming Bird," on the 28th inst.

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa produces "Bob," the late Fred Marsden's lively comedy, as this week's bill. This comedy is American in scene and subject, and is much better adapted than her opening piece to show her taking soubrette qualities as a modernized heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is a clever bright soubrette.

"Bob" has got vim in it, and Patti Rosa plays the title role spiritedly and makes it a great go. The play has many mirth-provoking scenes that are heartily enjoyed.

Burt Haverly appears in "Bob" as a Professor Sharp, and creates lots of fun. Miss Alice Finch and her schoolgirls become objects of lively interest to the audience. Miss Belle Stoddard and the members of the company generally have also better opportunities to acquit themselves creditably.

Next week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, commences her engagement at the Baldwin this week in a triple bill. The performance opens with the French one-act comedy of "A Game of Cards," followed by the comedietta of "A Milliner's Bill," and concludes with the standard comedy of "The Rough Diamond." There is an unusual quantity of amusing material in this bill.

In the first piece Felix Morris, a finished actor and clever comedian, has the honors as an exacting old Marquis, admirably conceived and sustained.

In the "Milliner's Bill" Miss Vokes comes to the front with her piquancy, chic and flow of spirits. The two meet on more equal ground as Cousin Joe and Margery in "The Rough Diamond," that shines with a new and brighter luster under their treatment, with its roughness polished by art and brightened by intelligence. The spirit of the good old comedy is not lost, but heightened by the two characters being lifted above the condition of stupid clodhoppers that coarser interpreters make them.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Next week: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal." Seats now ready.

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, opens it on Monday night, and with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as del Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Jay Rial, the popular manager, here as everywhere, has arrived from New York to take the resident acting management of the Grand Opera House under the Maguire lease.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for weeks past, and yet it could not be got ready for Saturday night. The opening has been postponed until Monday night, when everything will be good and ready.

Every scene will be new, and this romantic drama will have such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen this side of an European stage before.

The Hilarious Carnival Scene will show one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes, and all its effects will be produced in a grand style.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Box office now open.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridle Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne's last card, Mr. Sid C. France, has been very successful in his series of melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and made the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

Mr. France produces for this, his fourth and last week at Morosco's, his sensational comedy drama, entitled "Jealousy," introducing the wonderful race scene at Lexington, a great novelty, the burning of the Stanton mansion, a thrilling fire scene, and a number of other dramatic sensations.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results

NEW YORK THEATRICALS.

Never have the New York theatres presented so many good attractions as during the week of October 14th, and seldom have the good people of Gotham supported the playhouses better. Mr. Jefferson in "The Rivals" at the Star Theatre aroused a good deal of interest, and his fun was irresistable as usual. Mrs. John Drew was of course the lady of the twisted tongue, and as usual made an excellent Mrs. Malaprop. Much attention was given to Mr. Wm. Florence, who was seen for the first time in Mr. Jefferson's company as Sir Lucius O'Trigger. He gave a rather too gentlemanly an Irish fire-eater, well drawn and endowed with a rich and satisfying brogue, but it was lacking somewhat in spirit and humor. He will work it up as he falls into the part with practice. He got a tremendous reception at his first entry.

Booth and Modjeska appeared as joint stars at the Broadway Theatre in "Richelieu," Mr. Booth of course as the Cardinal and Mme. Modjeska as Julie de Mortimer. Very much was expected, but the performance was something of a disappointment. Mr. Booth, great as is his repertoire and popularity, is failing in results. Mme. Modjeska neither looked Julie, nor did she act the part with zest. As a whole the cast was not an excellent one, if Mr. Otis Skinner be excepted. As De Mauprat he was manly and excellent.

Salvini at Palmer's drew splendid audiences in "Samson" during the first and "Othello" during the latter part of the week. For barbaric splendor and living pathos, he is without a peer as the jealous Moor.

The Kendals are doing fairly well in "The Ironmaster," which furnishes stronger contrasting characters for both of them. But they labor under the difficulties of reviving played-ou plays.

Augustin Daly withdrew his "Golden Widow" on the 21st and substituted "The Great Unknown," with Wilton Lackaye added to his company. "The Golden" one is set down as a rarity -a Daly failure.

M. B. Leavitt's spectacular burlesque pantomime, "The Spider and the Fly," has drawn big houses at the Windsor. The piece is much better than the general run of such efforts, and some very good work is done in it.

Mr. Terriss and Miss Millward have done fairly in "Roger La Honte" at Niblo's, but it is the American actor, Wilton Lackaye, that really carried off the honors, and he joins Daly's company in "The Great Unknown."

Dixey's admirers have packed the Standard Theatre every evening since he produced "The Seven Ages," which will be a greater money winner than "Adonis," some journals claim.

The Herrmann Transatlantic Vaudevilles at the Union Square, and the Howard Athenæum Star Specialty, are both playing to full houses.

And thus New York fairly seethes in a sea of theatrical excitement, such as it never experienced before, caused by the magnitude and variety of attractions. Europe has been drained of much of its best talent for the New York market, and our American stars are doubling up, as it were, to face the new competition. Booth and Modjeska are joined in a stellar team, and Jefferson, Florence and Mrs. John Drew have formed a triple alliance to augment their strength to breast the invaders.

Pinero's latest play, "The Profligate," has failed in the British provincial theatres.

Wagner's first opera, "The Fates," lately given at Bayreuth, did not succeed.

Marcus R. Mayer, the champion traveler, will shortly start for Mexico and South America to arrange for the appearance of Patti and Bernhardt.

Gustave Hinrich, of the American Opera, has become conductor at Amberg's Theatre, N. Y.

Geraldine Ulmar, the prima donna of Gilbert & Sullivan's forthcoming opera, is shortly to become Mrs. Gordon Kellogg.

Manager Greenwall, of the Grand Opera House, New Orleans, lately refused to pay W. A. Brady, of the "After Dark" Co., the percentage of receipts which he claimed, for the alleged reason that Mr. Brady had provided money for the purchase of tickets whereby the receipts of the week would exceed $3,500, which according to contract would have entitled

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand Opera House will be the Boucicault version, the one made famous by the London productions of Charles Keane and Gustav V. Brooke.

Gilmore's Great Musical Jubilee opens at Mechanics' Pavilion November 11th. The sale of season seats commences at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s music store on Monday. Gilmore bring his entire band, instrumental soloists and vocal artists, his anvils and corps, and his artillery battery to be fired at the right time by electricity. The Handel-Haydn Society and its great vocal chorus, augmented to 500 voices, will participate in the Jubilee, and the whole will form the greatest musical event that ever came off in San Francisco.

Frank Daniels opens at the Bush next week in "Little Puck." He needs no introduction. We all know him as the greatest humoristic comedian on the stage.

The stage carrying the Morris Sullivan Dramatic Company went over the grade at the unseemly hour of 2 A. M., while crossing the mountains between Weaverville and Shasta, on Friday morning. Nobody hurt.

It is wired from Portland that Marquam's Grand Opera House, now in course of construction in that city, has been leased to Al Hayman, who will open it when finished in January with Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah."

The sale of seats at the Bush for Frank Daniels and "Little Puck" indicates a rush.

Manager Maguire announces the following as some of the bookings made by Acting Manager Rial and himself for the Grand Opera House in this city: Miss Sophie Eyre in her marvelous creation of the Witch; Milton Nobles and company in a new repertoire; the latest New York success, "The Great Metropolis;" Henry E. Abbey's Grand Italian Opera Company, with Patti and Signor Tamagno at its head; Augustin Daly's comedies, "Arabian Nights" and "A Night Off;" another New York success, from Niblo's, "The Fugitive," and John A. Stevens in a new repertoire. We have heard of others from outside sources, but as the management withhold them we will not put them on the list. As it now stands it presents a series of attractions of an enviable order for the Grand.

The Fourth Invitation Ladies' Social of our local lodge of Elks will come off at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at 2 o'clock. Miss Nellie McHenry, the popular comedienne, will preside. The event will call forth a very full and attractive programme.

The Grismer-Davies dates: Santa Rosa 28-29, Oakland 30-31, Chico Nov. 1, Red Bluff, 2, Portland week of Nov. 4.

Manager John Maguire and Acting Manager Jay Rial will be assisted by the following business staff at the Grand Opera House: Mr. James Love, business manager; Mr. George Field, treasurer; Mr. John Jack, stage manager; Mr. Louis Jacobson, musical director; Mr. J. R. Wilkins, scenic artist; Mr. Thos. Andrews, stage machinist.

W. C. Dudley, D. D. E. G. R. Cal., goes to Portland next week to institute Portland Lodge of B. P. O. Elks, No. 142.

It is well for the peace of Bush street that Grismer's dog leaves town before Frank Daniels' dog arrives at the Bush Street Theatre. He has only been there three weeks, but in that short time he has got an idea in his head that he owns the building; in which he is unscrupulously encouraged by Eddie Kilday.

The management of the Alcazar and Miss McHenry have set aside Monday night for the benefit of Steven Gullever, one of our pioneer stage carpenters, now incapacitated from work by illness. A worthy act.

Geo. W. Lederer has been notably successful in his engagements. He went to England to organize for Herrmann his Transatlantic Novelty Company, and boasted, on their appearance in New York, that his "every engagement was a success"—which was true. But his last engagement, to a wealthy lawyer's daughter, was his Waterloo. One of the pretty members of the company he brought over claims a prior right to be called his wife, and has cast Lederer in jail under the charge of bigamy. He is now in a quandery, with both his matrimonial engagements off and no stars in sight from his dungeon cell.

The new scale of prices at the Grand will be: First circle, reserved seats, 50 and 75 cents; second circle, reserved, 35 and 50 cents; third circle, 25 cents; fourth circle, 15 cents.

Harry Courtaine comes back to us in "Little Puck."

Emily Rigl is said to have a very strong part as Marina Paoli in "Barnes of New York."

The rain is getting to be a regular nuisance.

Boys! Paddy Ryan, the ex-champion heavyweight, has been engaged as special officer for the Grand Opera House.

Rosina Vokes gives three more little bright-light comedies at the Baldwin next week: "The Old Musician," "A Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Notwithstanding the rain the Grismers had a good house for the last matinee of their three weeks' engagement at the Bush to-day.

Robert Hilliard appears in a half-dozen suits of clothes in "Barnes," and none of them misfits.

The London Gaiety Company will open at the Broadway, New York, on December 9th.

Pete Mack, of the original Ferguson & Mack team, died recently in New York. The team were the originators of acrobatic burlesque, and the best one in the field for years. Even after poor Mack had broken himself all up by drink Barney Ferguson's inimitable humor carried the team along in popular favor. They divided in this city over a year ago, and John Marr took Mack's place.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons next week.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill next week.

Miss Alice Dale, Miss Julia Grant and Miss Ella Letcher add their specialties to the Comique's bill.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

EVENING EDITION

SATURDAY.....OCTOBER 26, 1889

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phoebe Davies close their three-weeks' season here on Sunday night, having given us two new successful plays at the Bush, handsomely mounted, costumed and staged, during their season: "The Tigress" and "Bootles' Baby." They will proceed inland with an entire fresh programme with the above-named plays, and "The Burglar," making a very strong repertory of attractions.

"Bootles' Baby," a very pleasing comedy, with its dramatic pictures of semi-military and society life, given Sunday night for the last time; with Mr. Jos. R. Grismer, Phœbe Davies and their company in the cast. We have written fully in the fore part of the week of the good work that the company do in this comedy, and insure our readers a pleasant evening in seeing it.

—o—

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, next week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Cheseneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

For cast and further particulars see extra programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Nellie McHenry, formerly the star of "The Troubadours," has carried into its second week at the Alcazar her new play, "For Sweet Charity's Sake;" a comedy that tells us very amusingly of the trials and comicalities engendered by a party of society amateurs rehearsing and endeavoring to perform an Indian drama got up "for the benefit of the Little Cannibals"

There is more fun to the square inch in this comedy than is generally found in even the best class of such light and amusing pieces, and there is a good amount of supporting talent to bring it out.

The last act is quite a revelation of stage business, and places the audience in a position where they are supposed to be behind the scenes looking in front of the house, and in secret with all that goes on on the stage during the production of the charity play.

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar her popular farcical comedy of "The Humming Bird." The scene is laid in New York, and this popular actress just revels in burlesque as the stage-struck lady's maid. It is in her second act that she gives her famed burlesque of Ophelia in the mad scene in "Hamlet."

New California Theatre.

Patti Rosa produces "Bob," the late Fred Marsden's lively comedy, as this week's bill. This comedy is American in scene and subject, and is much better adapted than her opening piece to show her taking soubrette qualities as a modernized heroine, introducing her songs, dances, banjo solos, etc. Patti Rosa has a merry spirit, a fine figure and pretty ways, and is a clever bright soubrette.

"Bob" has got vim in it, and Patti Rosa plays the title role spiritedly and makes it a great go. The play has many mirth-provoking scenes that are heartily enjoyed.

Burt Haverly appears in "Bob" as a Professor Sharp, and creates lots of fun. Miss Alice Finch and her schoolgirls become objects of lively interest to the audience. Miss Belle Stoddard and the members of the company generally have also better opportunities to acquit themselves creditably.

Next week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, commences her engagement at the Baldwin this week in a triple bill. The performance opens with the French one-act comedy of "A Game of Cards," followed by the comedietta of "A Milliner's Bill," and concludes with the standard comedy of "The Rough Diamond." There is an unusual quantity of amusing material in this bill.

In the first piece Felix Morris, a finished actor and clever comedian, has the honors as an exacting old Marquis, admirably conceived and sustained.

In the "Milliner's Bill" Miss Vokes comes to the front with her piquancy, chic and flow of spirits. The two meet on more equal ground as Cousin Joe and Margery in "The Rough Diamond," that shines with a new and brighter luster under their treatment, with its roughness polished by art and brightened by intelligence. The spirit of the good old comedy is not lost, but heightened by the two characters being lifted above the condition of stupid clodhoppers that coarser interpreters make them.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

Next week: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal." Seats now ready.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, opens it on Monday night, and with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as dei Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Jay Rial, the popular manager, here as everywhere, has arrived from New York to take the resident acting management of the Grand Opera House under the Maguire lease.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for weeks past, and yet it could not be got ready for Saturday night. The opening has been postponed until Monday night, when everything will be good and ready.

Every scene will be new, and this romantic drama will have such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen this side of an European stage before.

The Hillarious Carnival Scene will show one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes, and all its effects will be produced in a grand style.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

Box office now open.

Orpheum Theatre.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company, entire new faces, put in appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridle Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrne's last card, Mr. Sid C. France, has been very successful in his series of melodramas at their theatre. Mr. France is a well known Eastern melodramatic star, and made the trip to this coast especially to fill this engagement at Morosco's.

Mr. France produces for this, his fourth and last week at Morosco's, his sensational comedy drama, entitled "Jealousy," introducing the wonderful race scene at Lexington, a great novelty, the burning of the Stanton mansion, a thrilling fire scene, and a number of other dramatic sensations.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Adrian, Franklin, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Wilhelm Westin, European glass euphonist, his first appearance in this country; Allen & Page, black-face song and dance team; Miss Emma Forrest, change artiste; Brown & Mayville, sensational gymnasts; Flora Hastings, balladist; J. W. Kelly, the philosopher; Pat Wallace, vocalist, and Chas. Rankin, besides Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Mme. Aggie Zaluta's Female Minstrels, 20 in number, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week.

Edith Morrison, and Eva Mackay are new comers this week.

George Drew, comedian; Ned Thatcher, ditto; the Ford Brothers; Miss May Deacon, Miss Pauline Knowlton, Kitty Edwards, Rosie Hart and others are also in the bill.

Thatcher and Drew's comedy burletta, "A Night in the Louvre," is the fun dispenser this week.

Tuesday and Friday nights, amateur nights, are interesting evenings of the week. The management offer every assistance to budding talent, and every novice is assured of fair treatment; no guying is permitted.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Celle, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, put in new appearances here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, do a fine olio sketch.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "The Hospital Nurse," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Miss Lola Vernon, J. D. Fox, Henry Kutter and others.

The bill opens with Merritt's local comedy, "Squalls and Breakers," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Fox's funny one, "That Baby," and the specialty sketches, and Carl Reiter's great illusion act.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell,

The first part is made of songs rendered by the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, songs and dances and m have been introduced, m than ever.

FULL PROGRAMMES of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco can be found in FIGARO—the only paper that has them.

NEW YORK THEATRICALS.

Never have the New York theatres presented so many good attractions as during the week of October 14th, and seldom have the good people of Gotham supported the playhouses better. Mr. Jefferson in "The Rivals" at the Star Theatre aroused a good deal of interest, and his fun was irresistable as usual. Mrs. John Drew was of course the lady of the twisted tongue, and as usual made an excellent Mrs. Malaprop. Much attention was given to Mr. Wm. Florence, who was seen for the first time in Mr. Jefferson's company as Sir Lucius O'Trigger. He gave a rather too gentlemanly an Irish fire-eater, well drawn and endowed with a rich and satisfying brogue, but it was lacking somewhat in spirit and humor. He will work it up as he falls into the part with practice. He got a tremendous reception at his first entry.

Booth and Modjeska appeared as joint stars at the Broadway Theatre in "Richelieu," Mr. Booth of course as the Cardinal and Mme. Modjeska as Julie de Mortimer. Very much was expected, but the performance was something of a disappointment. Mr. Booth, great as is his repertoire and popularity, is failing in results. Mme. Modjeska neither looked Julie, nor did she act the part with zest. As a whole the cast was not an excellent one, if Mr. Otis Skinner be excepted. As De Mauprat he was manly and excellent.

Salvini at Palmer's drew splendid audiences in "Samson" during the first and "Othello" during the latter part of the week. For barbaric splendor and living pathos, he is without a peer as the jealous Moor.

The Kendals are doing fairly well in "The Ironmaster," which furnishes stronger contrasting characters for both of them. But they labor under the difficulties of reviving played-out plays.

Augustin Daly withdrew his "Golden Widow" on the 21st and substituted "The Great Unknown," with Wilton Lackaye added to his company. "The Golden" one is set down as a rarity—a Daly failure.

M. B. Leavitt's spectacular burlesque pantomime, "The Spider and the Fly," has drawn big houses at the Windsor. The piece is much better than the general run of such efforts, and some very good work is done in it.

Mr. Terriss and Miss Millward have done fairly in "Roger La Honte" at Niblo's, but it is the American actor, Wilton Lackaye, that really carried off the honors, and he joins Daly's company in "The Great Unknown."

Dixey's admirers have packed the Standard Theatre every evening since he produced "The Seven Ages," which will be a greater money winner than "Adonis," some journals claim.

The Herrmann Transatlantic Vaudevilles at the Union Square, and the Howard Athenæum Star Specialty, are both playing to full houses.

And thus New York fairly seethes in a sea of theatrical excitement, such as it never experienced before, caused by the magnitude and variety of attractions. Europe has been drained of much of its best talent for the New York market, and our American stars are doubling up, as it were, to face the new competition. Booth and Modjeska are joined in a stellar team, and Jefferson, Florence and Mrs. John Drew have formed a triple alliance to augment their strength to breast the invaders.

Pinero's latest play, "The Profligate," has failed in the British provincial theatres.

Mr. William Morris, a popular actor, will make his San Francisco debut as leading man at the Grand this, Monday night.

Wagner's first opera, "The Fates," lately given at Bayreuth, did not succeed.

The London Gaiety Company will open at the Broadway, New York, on December 9th.

Gustave Hinrich, of the American Opera, has become conductor at Amberg's Theatre, N. Y.

Manager Greenwall, of the Grand Opera House, New Orleans, lately refused to pay W. A. Brady, of the "After Dark" Co., the percentage of receipts which he claimed, for the alleged reason that Mr. Brady had provided money for the purchase of tickets whereby the receipts of the week would exceed $3,500, which according to contract would have entitled Mr. Brady to fifty-five instead of fifty per cent of the sales. After explanations had been made to the audience, the matter was settled.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

FIGARO furnishes the programme for the Grand Opera House.

Manager Gustav Walter, of the Orpheum, will manage Woodward's Gardens. Opening in the near future.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand Opera House is the Boucicault version, the one made famous by the London productions of Charles Keane and Gustav V. Brooke.

Gilmore's Great Musical Jubilee opens at Mechanics' Pavilion November 11th. The sale of season seats commences at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s music store on Monday. Gilmore bring his entire band, instrumental soloists and vocal artists, his anvils and corps, and his artillery battery to be fired at the right time by electricity. The Handel-Haydn Society and its great vocal chorus, augmented to 500 voices, will participate in the Jubilee, and the whole will form the greatest musical event that ever came off in San Francisco.

Frank Daniels opens at the Bush this week in "Little Puck." He needs no introduction. We all know him as the greatest humoristic comedian on the stage.

The stage carrying the Morris Sullivan Dramatic Company went over the grade at the unseemly hour of 2 A. M., while crossing the mountains between Weaverville and Shasta, on Friday morning. Nobody hurt.

It is wired from Portland that Marquam's Grand Opera House, now in course of construction in that city, has been leased to Al Hayman, who will open it when finished in January with Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah."

The sale of seats at the Bush for Frank Daniels and "Little Puck" indicates a rush.

Manager Maguire announces the following as some of the bookings made by Acting Manager Rial and himself for the Grand Opera House in this city: Miss Sophie Eyre in her marvelous creation of the Witch; Milton Nobles and company in a new repertoire; the latest New York success, "The Great Metropolis;" Henry E. Abbey's Grand Italian Opera Company, with Patti and Signor Tamagno at its head; Augustin Daly's comedies, "Arabian Nights" and "A Night Off;" another New York success, from Niblo's, "The Fugitive," and John A. Stevens in a new repertoire. We have heard of others from outside sources, but as the management withhold them we will not put them on the list. As it now stands it presents a series of attractions of an enviable order for the Grand.

The Fourth Invitation Ladies' Social of our local lodge of Elks will come off at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre to-morrow (Sunday) afternoon at 2 o'clock. Miss Nellie McHenry, the popular comedienne, will preside. The event will call forth a very full and attractive programme.

The Grismer-Davies dates: Santa Rosa 28-29, Oakland 30-31, Chico Nov. 1, Red Bluff, 2, Portland week of Nov. 4.

Manager John Maguire and Acting Manager Jay Rial will be assisted by the following business staff at the Grand Opera House: Mr. James Love, business manager; Mr. George Field, treasurer; Mr. John Jack, stage manager; Mr. Louis Jacobson, musical director; Mr. J. R. Wilkins, scenic artist; Mr. Thos. Andrews, stage machinist.

W. C. Dudley, D. D. E. G. R. Cal., goes to Portland next week to institute Portland Lodge of B. P. O. Elks, No. 142.

It is well for the peace of Bush street that Grismer's dog left town before Frank Daniels' dog arrived at the Bush Street Theatre. He has only been there three weeks, but in that short time he got an idea into his head that he owned the building; in which he was unscrupulously encouraged by Eddie Kilday.

The management of the Alcazar and Miss McHenry have set aside this evening for the benefit of Steven Gullever, one of our pioneer stage carpenters, now incapacitated from work by illness. A worthy act.

Geo. W. Lederer has been notably successful in his engagements. He went to England to organize for Herrmann his Transatlantic Novelty Company, and boasted, on their appearance in New York, that his "every engagement was a success"—which was true. But his last engagement, to a wealthy lawyer's daughter, was his Waterloo. One of the pretty members of the company he brought over claims a prior right to be called his wife, and has cast Lederer in jail under the charge of bigamy. He is now in a quandery, with both his matrimonial engagements off and no stars in sight from his dungeon cell.

The new scale of prices at the Grand are: First circle, reserved seats, 50 and 75 cents; second circle, reserved, 35 and 50 cents; third circle, 25 cents; fourth circle, 15 cents.

Harry Courtaine comes back to us in "Little Puck."

Emily Rigl is said to have a very strong part as Marina Paoli in "Barnes of New York."

Boys! Paddy Ryan, the ex-champion heavyweight, has been engaged as special officer for the Grand Opera House.

Rosina Vokes gives three more little bright-light comedies at the Baldwin this week: "The Old Musician." "A Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Notwithstanding the rain the Grismers had a good house for the last matinee of their three weeks' engagement at the Bush on Saturday.

Robert Hilliard appears in a half-dozen suits of clothes in "Barnes," and none of them misfits.

Marcus R. Mayer, the champion traveler, will shortly start for Mexico and

Pete Mack, of the original Ferguson & Mack team, died recently in New York. The team were the originators of acrobatic burlesque, and the best one in the field for years. Even after poor Mack had broken himself all up by drink Barney Ferguson's inimitable humor carried the team along in popular favor. They divided in this city over a year ago, and John Marr took Mack's place.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

EVENING EDITION

MONDAY..... OCTOBER 28, 1889

Notice to Stage Managers.

We cannot make changes in Programmes after two (2) P. M. All changes handed in after that hour will have to lay over until next day.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their full programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, this week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Conor, William White and others.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

—o—

Joseph R. Grismer and Miss Phoebe Davies closed their three-weeks' season here Sunday night, having given us two new successful plays at the Bush, handsomely mounted, costumed and staged, during their season: "The Tigress" and "Bootles' Baby." They will proceed inland with an entire fresh programme with the above-named plays, and "The Burglar," making a very strong repertory of attractions.

"Bootles Baby," drew a fine house Sunday night.

Alcazar Theatre.

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar her popular farcical comedy of "The Humming Bird." The scene is laid in New York, and this popular actress just revels in burlesque as the stage-struck lady's maid. It is in her second act that she gives her famed burlesque of Ophelia in the mad scene in "Hamlet."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company.

Grand Opera House.

Manager John Maguire, who has taken a five-years' lease of the Grand, opens it this, Monday night, and with a splendid spectacular production of the romantic drama of "The Corsican Brothers," with Bandmann as del Franchi, and a strong company in the cast. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Jay Rial, the popular manager, here as everywhere, was brought from New York to take the resident acting management of the Grand Opera House under the Maguire lease.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for weeks past, and the public will see the good result of their labors to-night.

Every scene will be new, and this romantic drama will have such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen in this play this side of an European stage before.

The Hilarious Carnival Scene will show one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes and all its effects will be produced in a grand style.

The Grand was priorly secured by Abbey for the Patti season, and some big attractions are booked; which bookings have been accepted by Manager Maguire in his lease.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme for the Grand Opera House.

See cast and synopsis in adjacent column.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

The bill for this week is another triple one; three mirth-inspiring little comedies: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO

Orpheum Theatre.

A double bill this week. The Jinglers Jubilee Singers, six in number, new, are a company in themselves, besides the addition of the Brothers Caine, premier gymnasts, and others.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company put in their farewell appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridie Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenny, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenny opens in his own sensational play, "The Murder in a Hansom Cab," in which he takes the part of Horatio McGuffin Crowley, an actor out of luck.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

An entire new company puts in appearance this week, consisting of Wilhelm Westin, European glass euphonist, his first appearance in this country; Allen & Page, black-face song and dance team; Miss Emma Forrest, change artiste; Brown & Mayville, sensational gymnasts; Flora Hastings, balladist; J. W. Kelly, the philosopher; Pat Wallace, vocalist, and Chas. Rankin, besides Prof. James Borland and his circus of six educated goats; the 3 song and dance Oatley Sisters, and the oldest favorite, Thomas C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Mabie Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Dandini," which closes the bill. Factious fractions of the company — four serio-comics—put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, are late additions here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, do a fine change sketch.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "I Expect Them," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Minnie Drossell, Leonard & Leopoldt, Gus and Edward, musical and general performers, put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Miss Lola Vernon, J. D. Fox, Rose Devere and others.

The bill opens with Fox's local comedy, "The Fishing Party," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Leonard's "Foiled Mashers," the specialty sketches, and Leonard & Leopoldt's novel musical act, in which a monkey plays a solo on a cornet.

The olio also brings to the front all the ladies in musical turns and specialties.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

Mr. Greeneville Leslie, an Eastern tenor, has won popularity here.

The Eureka gives a matinee every Sunday.

Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show captured London and Paris. The Wild America Show, a rival organization, did the same thing for Berlin, and is now the rage of Vienna. The Viennese have fairly gone crazy over the exhibition. As many as 25,000 persons have crowded in at a single performance, and the rush has been so great that the police have been forced to interfere and prevent the oversale of tickets. Even the newspapers have caught the infection and publish columns editorials upon the true picture of life in America as shown by the realistic performance. The next to be heard from will be Australia. J. B. Gaylord, who took the Sibbons and the Stirk Family to that country, and who has been both on Barnum's and Forepaugh's staff returned here last Summer to organize a Wild America show constituted of the same features as the other two, and will take it to Australia by the next steamer. The specialists of the company appear at the Orpheum the current week.

A Denver paper states that "the biggest audience since the opening of the Metropolitan Theatre was that which attended on Frank Daniels and 'Little Puck' on October 7th." Prepare to pucker. This funniest of all laugh-provoking pieces comes to the Bush this week.

Mr. J. K. Prior owns the Panorama lot and building, corner of Eddy and Mason streets, and has declared his intention of converting it into a first-class theatre in the near future. He is about to receive a new panorama, which will occupy the building for a few months, and afterwards it will be reconstructed internally into a handsome theatre. The lot is 200 feet on Eddy by 150 feet on Mason. The building is octagonal in shape, 125 feet in diameter, and is one of the strongest in construction. This will be converted into an elegant auditorium, with a hallway extending all around it, like that of the Grand Opera House, giving entrance to every aisle. He has bought an additional lot in the rear to build the stage on, which can be made as large as needed. The location, nearly opposite the Tivoli and only a block from the Baldwin Theatre, is a very desirable one.

A GOOD BENEFIT.

It is gratifying to all the friends of the dead comedian, Charles B. Bishop, that the benefit for his widow which came off at the Star Theatre, N. Y., recently, was a marked success in every paeticular. It netted nearly $4,500, of which the following sums were contributed by people in the profession: Edwin Booth headed the list with $500; Daniel Frohman, in addition to arranging and managing the benefit, gave, with his company, $200; Wm. M. Connor, $120; Edward H. Sothern, $100; Rich & Harris, $100; Chas. Frohman and Al. Hayman, $75; R. M. Hooley, $50; David Belasco and H. C. DeMille, $30; Wilson Barrett, $25; J. L. Brooks, $20; Frank King, $25; Mrs. Le Moyne, $25; T. H. French, $50; "The Wife" Co., $50; Bronson Howard, $25, and Joseph Jefferson, $100.

The bill was a delightful one, Mr. and Mrs. Kendal appearing in "My Uncle's Will;" Miss Millward and Mr. Terriss in "Tears, Idle Tears;" Mr. Jefferson, Mr. Florence, Mrs. Drew and Miss Viola Allen in scenes from "The Rivals," and Mr. Sothern and sweet Elsie Leslie in "Editha's Burglar."

It had been the original purpose of Mr. Frohman to give the benefit in the Lyceum Theatre, but the response to the call of charity was so quick, so hearty and so generous, that he at once recognized the necessity of taking a larger theatre.

Surely there is no body of people so open handed, so nobly charitable in giving assistance to the needy, as actors and actresses. One may pick at their faults and laugh at their mistakes, but when it comes to their charity he must uncover in reverence and respect.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Pete Mack, of the original Ferguson & Mack team, died recently in New York. The team were the originators of acrobatic burlesque, and the best one in the field for years. Even after poor Mack had broken himself all up by drink Barney Ferguson's inimitable humor carried the team along in popular favor. They divided in this city over a year ago, and John Marr took Mack's place.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Miss Alice Dale, Miss Julia Grant and Miss Ella Letcher add their specialties to the Comique's bill.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Cellie, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Walterstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

It is reported that in many of the small towns of New York and in New England the receipts of traveling companies have fallen below $20 a night.

Pinero's latest play, "The Profligate," has failed in the British provincial theatres.

The London Gaiety Company will open at the Broadway, New York, on December 9th.

Gustave Hinrich, of the American Opera, has become conductor at Amberg's Theatre, N. Y.

Manager Greenwall, of the Grand Opera House, New Orleans, lately refused to pay W. A. Brady, of the "After Dark" Co., the percentage of receipts which he claimed, for the alleged reason that Mr. Brady had provided money for the purchase of tickets whereby the receipts of the week would exceed $3,500, which according to contract would have entitled Mr. Brady to fifty-five instead of fifty per cent of the sales. After explanations had been made to the audience the matter was amicably arranged and Mr. Greenwall's course was vindicated.

Marcus R. Mayer, the champion traveler, will shortly start for Mexico and South America to arrange for the appearance of Patti and Bernhardt.

The Grismer-Davies dates: Santa Rosa 28-29, Oakland 30-31, Chico Nov. 1, Red Bluff, 2, Portland week of Nov. 4.

Manager John Maguire and Acting Manager Jay Rial are assisted by the following business staff at the Grand Opera House: Mr. James Love, business manager; Mr. George Field, treasurer; Mr. [illegible] Jack, stage manager; Mr.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

Geraldine Ulmar telegraphs all the way from London that she is under contract to sing in Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera and will do so. She says she is much annoyed at the report published that she had thrown up her opera engagement for a matrimonial one with Mr. Wm. G. Kellogg; and wishes it denied, absolutely. In regard to this, we acknowledge that we did publish a little item in Saturday's FIGARO that Miss Ulmar would "shortly become Mrs. Kellogg;" though how the lady could find it out so soon puzzles us. We hasten to make the correction.

Mrs. Langtry is doing the English provinces at present. The telegraph informs us that she has taken the Kendals' home theatre, the St. James Theatre, London, for a year from January, when she will open with "'Twixt Ax and Crown." Well, we think in this case it will be the old result: when ax and crown meet there will be a crash. We shall probablo have Langtry back on our hands in six or eight months, looking after affairs at that Clear Lake ranch.

The long talked of improvements and alteration in the Alcazar will be made early next Summer. A hole in the engagements will be left for that purpose.

Work is begun on a new opera house at Penn Yan, N. Y.

The Fourth Invitation Ladies' Social of our local lodge of Elks, given at Leavitt's Bush Street Theatre Sunday afternoon, was a most successful one. Miss Nellie McHenry, the popular comedienne, presided. The event called forth a very full and attractive programme, and the theatre was thronged with ladies and their escorts. These Lady Socials of the Elks are becoming very popular affairs. The committee, Geo. H. Wood, Mark Thall and L. A. Morgenstern, managed things admirably. There was much amusement created by the imposed fines. Manager Wallenrod had to pay a dollar because he did not laugh at a joke, and Manager Maguire was fined the same sum for laughing at it. Nellie McHenry fined herself, as presiding officer, $10 for making a poor address in response to a call, and paid it.

Sioux Falls, Dak., is looking wistfully toward a $250,000 opera house.

Rose Coghlan has added "London Assurance" and "A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing" to her repertoire. She has had the former squeezed into three acts.

Billy Kersands, the wide-mouth black, is now with Richards & Pringle's Georgia Minstrels, traveling South.

Speaking of George C. Staley, the San Francisco actor, in "A Royal Pass," the Nashville (Tenn.) American says: "Mr. Staley attracted attention to himself at the outset as a graceful actor with a fine stage presence, remarkable facial power, and an intelligent conception and treatment of an interesting role."

"Wife for Wife," John A. Stevens' latest success, opened in Washington on October 21st. Mr. Stevens' support includes Davenport Bebus, W. F. Doyle, Logan Paul, Raymond Holmes, Dan Kelly, Eva Mountford, Tessie Butler, Mary Grey and May Bird. The play is booked for a season of forty-five weeks, including Brooklyn, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, San Francisco, etc., and a return engagement in New York City.

Mr. William Winter, the distinguished New York dramatic critic, is once more in his customary place in the theatre. He is considerably grayer than when he went to Europe, but otherwise he is looking much better for his long sojourn abroad.

Manager Gustav Walter, of the Orpheum, will manage Woodward's Gardens, opening it on Sunday with a genuine Wild West Show—now en route for Australia—with genuine cowboys in feats of horsemanship, larieting, etc.

Mr. William Morris, a popular actor Eas . made his San Francisco debut as leading man at the Grand on Monday night, and scored a success.

FIGARO furnishes the programme for the Grand Opera House.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand Opera House is the Boucicault version, the one made famous by the London productions of Charles Keane and Gustav V. Brooke.

Gilmore's Great Musical Jubilee opens at Mechanics' Pavilion November 11th. The sale of season seats commenced at Sherman, Clay & Co.'s music store on Monday. Gilmore bring his entire band, instrumental soloists and vocal artists, his anvils and corps, and his artillery battery to be fired at the right time by electricity. The Handel-Haydn Society and its great vocal chorus, augmented to 500 voices, will participate in the Jubilee, and the whole will form the greatest musical event that ever came off in San Francisco.

It is wired from Portland that Marquam's Grand Opera House, now in course of construction in that city, has been leased to Al Hayman, who will open it when finished in January with Bronson Howard's "Shenandoah."

Manager Maguire announces the following as some of the bookings made by Acting Manager Rial and himself for the Grand Opera House in this city: Miss Sophie Eyre in her marvelous creation of the Witch; Milton Nobles and company in a new repertoire; the latest New York success, "The Great Metropolis;" Henry E. Abbey's Grand Italian Opera Company, with Patti and Signor Tamagno at its head; Augustin Daly's comedies, "Arabian Nights" and "A Night Off;" another New York success, from Niblo's, "The Fugitive," and John A. Stevens in a new repertoire. We have heard of others from outside sources, but as the management withhold them we will not put them on the list. As it now stands it presents a series of attractions of an [illegible] for the Grand

It is well for the peace of Bush street that Grismer's dog left town before Frank Daniels' dog arrived at the Bush Street Theatre. He has only been there three weeks, but in that short time he got an idea into his head that he owned the building; in which he was unscrupulously encouraged by Eddie Kilday.

The new scale of prices at the Grand are: First circle, reserved seats, 50 and 75 cents; second circle, reserved, 35 and 50 cents; third circle, 25 cents; fourth circle, 15 cents.

Harry Courtaine comes back to us in "Little Puck."

Emily Rigl has a very strong part as Marina Paoli in "Barnes of New York."

Boys! Paddy Ryan, the ex-champion heavyweight, has been engaged as special officer for the Grand Opera House.

Rosina Vokes gives three more little bright-light comedies at the Baldwin this week: "The Old Musician," "A Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

Robert Hilliard appears in a half-dozen suits of clothes in "Barnes," and none of them misfits.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, this week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable.

The theatre overflowed before 8 o'clock.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar her popular farcical comedy of "The Humming Bird." The scene is laid in New York, and this popular actress just revels in burlesque as the stage-struck lady's maid. It is in her second act that she gives her famed burlesque of Ophelia in the mad scene in "Hamlet."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. The comedy made its old mark, and the applause and laughter that greeted it showed it had wonted success. Miss McHenry and company really appear at their best in this play.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," will be produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company next week, with Amazon March, children's ballet and new features.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

We have only space left to say that Mr. Barnes has arrived and been made welcome. An overflowing house testified their warm approval of the play.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good

The bill for this week is another triple one; three mirth-inspiring little comedies: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

In the first comedy, adapted from the French by Mr. Felix Morris, that admirable character actor gives in his performance of "The Old Musician" one of his most finished impersonations.

In the "Circus Rider" Rosina Vokes is inimitable in her imitation of the Queen of the Arena riding a bare-back steed tip toe on the parlor sofa, and sets the house in a roar. Nor is she less funny in the amateur pantomime performance as a hopping robin going about

Grand Opera House.

The opening of the Grand and the production of that weirdly supernatural and sensational play, "The Corsican Brothers," is a perfect success. The play is staged in a better manner than ever produced here before, and every seat in the immense auditorium was occupied by a well pleased audience.

Mr. Bandmann is grand in the dual role of the Corsican twins, whose sympathetic natures were so acutely organized that vital harm to one was made manifest to the other, though hundreds of miles away. His acting is very quiet, but vivified by immense mental force. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Mr. Wm. Morris, the new leading man, scored a success, and the support is good all through. The company is strong and evenly balanced.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for weeks past, and the public will approve the good result of their labors every night.

Every scene is new, and this romantic drama has had such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen in this play this side of an European stage before.

The Hillarious Carnival Scene shows one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes, It is the best scene of the kind ever presented on a San Francisco stage.

Our space will not permit of further detailed notice. We can congratulate the management upon their production and the success of their opening.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme for the Grand Opera House.

See cast and synopsis in adjacent column.

Orpheum Theatre.

A double bill this week. The Jinglers Jubilee Singers, six in number, new, are a company in themselves, besides the addition of the Brothers Caine, premier gymnasts, and others.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company put in their farewell appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridle Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning experiness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and will open with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, Monday next.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; a trained elephant; Japanese acrobats; a band of Manila musicians, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

Box office open Thursday. See announcemen and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenny, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenny opens in his own sensational play, "The Murder in a Hansom Cab," in which he takes the part of Horatio McGuffin Crowley, an actor out of luck.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Many new artists put in appearance this week, consisting of M'lle Minnetta, of marvelous strength, and the acrobat Barretta, both from Orrin's Circus, Mexico; Prof. Peterson, European gymnast, and the great Ellwood. The remaining favorites are: Dryden & Mitchell, specialists; Wilhelm Westin, glass euphonist; Allen & Page, black-face song and dance team; Flora Hastings, balladist; J. W. Kelly, the philosopher, and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their full specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Mabie Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Dandini," which closes the bill. Factious fractions of the company — four serio-

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, are late additions here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, do a fine change sketch.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "I Expect Them," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Minnie Drossell, Leonard & Leopoldt, Gus and Edward, musical and general performers, put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Miss Lola Vernon, J. D. Fox, Rose Devere and others.

The bill opens with Fox's local comedy, "The Fishing Party," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Leonard's "Foiled Mashers," the specialty sketches, and Leonard & Leopoldt's novel musical act, in which a

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akerman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akerman make up the company.

The first-part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy set, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The most talked of event in the London musical world is the transfiguration Patti has made by transforming herself into a yellow-haired French blonde of the brightest hue. A London dispatch says: "Miss Adelina Patti surprised the public by appearing at the Albert Hall concert in what was taken to be a yellow wig. It has since been found that she had become weary of being a life-long brunette and had dyed her hair a brilliant straw color. It is causing much comment and some ridicule."

Mrs. A. M. Palmer was especially honored by the Sorosis Society with a breakfast at Delmonico's, New York, recently. Mrs. Palmer is considered a decided acquisition to Sorosis.

Henry E. Abbey and John B. Schoeffel's new and magnificent Tremont Theatre, Boston, was dedicated on the 14th inst. by Charles Wyndham's London company in "David Garrick" and a curtain raiser called "Why Women Weep" to an immense and very stylish audience. It is claimed that the Tremont is "the most tasteful and comfortable theatre in the country." Its opening was witnessed by a delegation of New York literateurs and fashionables, who became the guests of Messrs. Abbey and Schoeffel and their manager, Marcus R. Mayer. This house has a remarkably large foyer, in which promenade concerts are given prior to the beginning of the play, and it has also been provided with elegant boudoirs for the convenience of its lady patrons. Taken altogether the Tremont is, in the expressive language of Mr. De Wolf Hopper, a "corker."

Louise Balfe replaced Annie Mayor in "The Great Metropolis" in Philadelphia, and made a hit of large proportions. The great New York spectacular play captured Philadelphia, but prior dates ahead choked off its run to full houses. It returns to the Quaker City later on.

A London dispatch states that Harriet Ford, "the American actress," made her debut at the Globe Theatre on the 29th. She was well received, and exhibited dramatic talent, "but for serious parts she is considered too American in accent."

Geraldine Ulmar telegraphs all the way from London that she is under contract to sing in Gilbert & Sullivan's new opera and will do so. She says she is much annoyed at the report published that she had thrown up her opera engagement for a matrimonial one with Mr. Wm. G. Kellogg; and wishes it denied, absolutely. In regard to this, we acknowledge that we did publish a little item in Saturday's FIGARO that Miss Ulmar would "shortly become Mrs. Kellogg;" though how the lady could find it out so soon puzzles us. We hasten to make the correction.

Mrs. Langtry is doing the English provinces at present. The telegraph informs us that she has taken the Kendals' home theatre, the St. James Theatre, London, for a year from January, when she will open with "Twixt Ax and Crown." Well, we think in this case it will be the old result: when ax and crown meet there will be a crash. We shall probably have Langtry back on our hands in six or eight months, looking after affairs at that Clear Lake ranch.

Pinero's latest play, "The Profligate," has failed in the British provincial theatres.

The London Gaiety Company will open at the Broadway, New York, on December 9th.

Gustave Hinrich, of the American Opera, has become conductor at Amberg's Theatre, N. Y.

Marcus R. Mayer, the champion traveler, will shortly start for Mexico and South America to arrange for the appearance of Patti and Bernhardt.

Manager John Maguire and Acting Manager Jay Rial are assisted by the following business staff at the Grand Opera House: Mr. James Love, business manager; Mr. George Field, treasurer; Mr. John Jack, stage manager; Mr. Louis Jacobson, musical director; Mr. J. R. Wilkins, scenic artist; Mr. Thos. Andrews, stage machinist.

The new scale of prices at the Grand are: First circle, reserved seats, 50 and 75 cents; second circle, reserved, 35 and 50 cents; third circle, 25 cents; fourth circle, 15 cents.

The wires tell us that a London court has ordered Dion Boucicault to pay the sum of £30 monthly as alimony to his divorced wife, Agnes Robertson.

The following attractions were produced at the New York theatres last week: "Our Flat," a comedy, at the Lyceum; "The Great Unknown" at Daly's; Mr. Terriss and Miss Millward in "The Lady of Lyons" at Niblo's, and Signor Salvini as the Gladiator, Othello and Samson at Palmer's.

Charles Wyndham follows Salvini at Palmer's Theatre, N. Y., Nov. 4th.

Ullie Akerstrom, who follows Wilson Barrett at Niblo's where she will be seen in a new play, goes to California and Australia next season. Her mother was once a popular dancer in Paris.

Dockstader is doing well at his little theatre on upper Broadway, New York.

W. J. Scanlan drew $1,060 on his opening night in Memphis.

Pauline Markham has resigned from the "Spider and Fly" Company.

Tony Pastor is home again at his pretty little theatre on Fourteenth street, N. Y.

T. J. Herndon has gone to London to support Loie Fuller in "Caprice."

Louis James is making a tour of the South, where he is well known and popular.

Mr. A. C. Gunter, the well known and popular author of "Mr. Barnes of New York," says that it is not necessary for him to keep a route of the "Mr. Barnes of New York" company. That on Tuesday morning of each week he receives telegraphic orders from whatever city the company may be playing in for a large number of the novels, and that he receives a profit from both the company and the extra sale of the books. Mr. Sanger, the manager, seriously contemplates making claim for a larger percentage of the company's profits for advertising Mr. Gunter and his novels. Wonder if he has received his San Francisco order yet?

The most brilliant audience that ever assembled in Duluth greeted Rose Coghlan Oct. 21st. It was the dedication of the New Opera House. Miss Coghlan was called before the curtain no less than ten times and received sixteen elaborate stands of flowers. Manager Pitou contracted for the opening of the new house last Summer, receiving $2,000 for four performances.

Frank L. Goodwin has secured Georgie Parker and the American Four, who will shortly appear in a musical comedy entitled "A Lucky Penny."

A new English opera, "The Castle of Como," dealing with the story of "The Lady of Lyons," has just made a hit at the Opera Comique, London. If the opera achieves only a quantum of the success of Bulwer's play it will make fortunes for all concerned in it. "The Lady of Lyons" was produced nearly a half century ago, and so lasting is its popularity in England to the present day, that a recent London paper said there was not a week-day night in the year but what the good old play was performed in some part of the United Kingdom.

The long talked of improvements and alteration in the Alcazar will be made early next Summer. A hole in the engagements will be left for that purpose.

Work is begun on a new opera house at Penn Yan, N. Y.

Sioux Falls, Dak., is looking wistfully toward a $250,000 opera house.

Rose Coghlan has added "London Assurance" and "A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing" to her repertoire. She has had the former squeezed into three acts.

Billy Kersands, the wide-mouth black, is now with Richards & Pringle's Georgia Minstrels, traveling South.

Speaking of George C. Staley, the San Francisco actor, in "A Royal Pass," the Nashville (Tenn.) American says: "Mr. Staley attracted attention to himself at the outset as a graceful actor with a fine stage presence, remarkable facial power, and an intelligent conception and treatment of an interesting role."

"Wife for Wife," John A. Stevens' latest success, opened in Washington on October 21st. Mr. Stevens' support includes Davenport Bebus, W. F. Doyle, Logan Paul, Raymond Holmes, Dan Kelly, Eva Mountford, Tessie Butler, Mary Grey and May Bird. The play is booked for a season of forty-five weeks, including Brooklyn, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, San Francisco, etc., and a return engagement in New York City.

Manager Gustav Walter, of the Orpheum, will manage Woodward's Gardens, opening it on Sunday with a genuine Wild West Show—now en route for Australia—with genuine cowboys in feats of horsemanship, larieting, etc.

Mr. William Morris, a popular actor East, made his San Francisco debut as leading man at the Grand on Monday night, and scored a success.

FIGARO furnishes the programme for the Grand Opera House.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand Opera House is the Boucicault version, the one made famous by the London productions of Charles Keane and Gustav V. Brooke.

Manager Maguire announces the following as some of the bookings made by Acting Manager Rial and himself for the Grand Opera House in this city: Miss Sophie Eyre in her marvelous creation of the Witch; Milton Nobles and company in a new repertoire; the latest New York success, "The Great Metropolis;" Henry E. Abbey's Grand Italian Opera Company, with Patti and Signor Tamagno at its head; Augustin Daly's comedies, "Arabian Nights" and "A Night Off;" another New York success, from Niblo's, "The Fugitive," and John A. Stevens in a new repertoire. We have heard of others from outside sources, but as the

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Leavitt's New Bush Street Theatre.

Funny Frank Daniels returns with his "Little Puck" comedy to the Bush, this week. Daniels made his mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and clinched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Daniels is the greatest humorist-comedian on the stage, and a remarkable character builder. When he takes a character he builds it up and makes a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint acting.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Sanson, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesneau, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Conor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new songs and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a chestnut in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable.

The theatre overflowed before 8 o'clock.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Miss Nellie McHenry produces for her last week at the Alcazar her popular farcical comedy of "The Humming Bird." The scene is laid in New York, and this popular actress jus revels in burlesque as the stage-struck lady's maid. It is in her second act that she gives her famed burlesque of Ophelia in the mad scene in "Hamlet."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. H. Lytell and her own well-selected comedy company. The comedy made its old mark, and the applause and laughter that greeted it showed it had scored its wanted success. Miss McHenry and company really appear at their best in this play.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," will be produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company next week, with Amazon March: Children's ballet and new features.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

We have only space left to say that Mr. Barnes has arrived and been made welcome. An overflowing house testified their warm approval of the play

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good

The bill for this week is another triple one; three mirth-inspiring little comedies: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

In the first comedy, adapted from the French by Mr. Felix Morris, that admirable character actor gives in his performance of "The Old Musician" one of his most finished impersonations.

In the "Circus Rider" Rosina Vokes is inimitable in her imitation of the Queen of the Arena riding a bare-back steed tip toe on the parlor sofa, and sets the house in a roar. Nor is she less funny in the amateur pantomime performance as a hopping robin going about with a leaf in her mouth, and finding no chil-

Grand Opera House.

The opening of the Grand and the production of that weirdly supernatural and sensational play, "The Corsican Brothers," is a perfect success. The play is staged in a better manner than ever produced here before, and every seat in the immense auditorium was occupied by a well pleased audience.

Mr. Bandmann is grand in the dual role of the Corsican twins, whose sympathetic natures were so acutely organized that vital harm to one was made manifest to the other, though hundreds of miles away. His acting is very quiet, but vivified by immense mental force. In romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann, except Irving.

Mr. Wm. Morris, the new leading man, scored a success, and the support is good all through. The company is strong and evenly balanced.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for weeks past, and the public will approve the good result of their labors every night.

Every scene is new, and this romantic drama has had such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen in this play this side of an European stage before.

The Hillarious Carnival Scene shows one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes. It is the best scene of the kind ever presented on a San Francisco stage.

Our space will not permit of further detailed notice. We can congratulate the management upon their production and the success of their opening.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme for the Grand Opera House.

See cast and synopsis in adjacent column.

Orpheum Theatre.

A double bill this week. The Jinglers Jubilee Singers, six in number, new, are a company in themselves, besides the addition of the Brothers Caine, premier gymnasts, and others.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company put in their farewell appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridie Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariet throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and will open with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, Monday next.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Cores, Java, China, and Japan; a trained elephant; Japanese acrobats; a band of Manila musicians, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

Box office open Thursday. Seeannouncemen and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenny, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenny opens in his own sensational play, "The Murder in a Hansom Cab," in which he takes the part of Horatio McGuffin Crowley, an actor out of luck.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Mevers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Many new artists put in appearance this week, consisting of M'lle Minnetta, of marvelous strength, and the acrobat Barretta, both from Orrin's Circus, Mexico; Prof. Peterson, European gymnast, and the great Ellwood. The remaining favorites are: Dryden & Mitchell, specialists; Wilhelm Westin, glass euphonist; Allen & Page, black-face song and dance team; Flora Hastings, balladist; J. W. Kelly, the philosopher, and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their full specialty classifications.

The admission to the Wigwam is 10 cents; front reserved seats, 20 cents. No higher.

Bella Union Theatre

Mable Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, and the whole appear in the burlesque of "Prince Dandini," which closes the bill. Factious fractions of the company — four serio-comics—put in appearances in the olio. In

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The danseuse, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, are late additions here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, do a fine change sketch.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "I Expect Them," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Trayers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Minnie Drossell, Leonard & Leopoldt, Gus and Edward, musical and general performers, put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Miss Lola Vernon, J. D. Fox, Rose Devere and others.

The bill opens with Fox's local comedy, "The Fishing Party," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Leonard's "Foiled Mashers," the specialty sketches, and Leonard & Leopoldt's novel musical act, in which a monkey plays a solo on a cornet.

Eureka Music Hall.

This is one of the neatest and most popular of our minor theatres. Manager Walterstein runs a very strong company, and Billy Akarman provides the stage with a fresh bill every week.

Charley Morrell, the banjo king, and Bob McDonald, comedian, are added to the following company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Miss May Morrell, Lulu Martell, Mamie Sanford, Jessie Eldridge, Stella Walton, Mamie Woods and Billy Akarman make up the company.

The first part is made up of a fine selection of songs rendered by the different artists of the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "The Can-Can," new songs and dances and much original business have been introduced, making the bill stronger than ever.

PROFESSIONAL PICKINGS.

The Great Gilmore Peace Jubilee at the Mechanics' Pavilion draws near. The Handel and Haydn Society have secured their grand chorus of five hundred of the best voices in the city and perfected all their portion of the arrangements in which they are so much interested, as the Jubilee is given under their auspices. Gilmore, the musical king, will contribute his great band, his famous soloists, his renowned vocal artists, his steel anvils and corps, and his electric battery of artillery that will add their peals to the swelling of the mighty chorus in triumph of Peace.

It is wired that charming Maria Halton, the leading lady of the New York Casino, eloped yesterday per steamer to Europe in company with a very "good man" with his money, by the name of Joseph Lewis, who owns rich diamond mines in South Africa. Well, in this present age of barter and sale, when scurvy princes and titled libertines are bought and sold for their empty decorations to American heiresses, it is no wonder that the Casino's charmer was captured by a diamond king. She was merely following the example of the self-exalted richest society people. It was a barter, and she made a good trade.

The telegraph tells us that Miss Craddock, of Oakland, that dramatic conservatory across the bay, has achieved a noted success at the Madison Square Theatre, New York, in the leading comedy role of "A Man of the World."

Miss Marie Wainwright presents her new and handsome production of "Twelfth Night" at the Park Theatre in Boston this week for the first time. Miss Wainwright is due in New York at the Fifth Avenue Theatre in December.

"The Great Metropolis," which has just finished a fine run in Philadelphia, returned to New York at the Windsor Theatre, where it is given with all its mechanical effects, including the sensational shipwreck scene.

Robert Mantell appears this week at the Grand Opera House in Toronto; Rochester, November 4th; Oswego, 7th, and Syracuse, 8th, for three performances.

"The Old Homestead" is packing the big Academy, New York, and Denman Thompson has certainly renewed his success of last season. The demand for seats is so active that the management will probably be obliged to give extra matinees on Wednesday in order to satisfy the public.

Clara Morris produces her new play, "Helene," by Miss Morton, this week at the Union Square Theatre, in which she will be seen as the daughter of a Nihilist.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska in "The Merchant of Venice" are drawing some of the largest audiences ever seen in the Broadway Theatre, and their engagement promises to be a success in every way. They appear on November 4th in a magnificent production of "Hamlet."

Mr. William Morris, a popular actor East, made his San Francisco debut as leading man at the Grand on Monday night, and scored a success.

FIGARO furnishes the programme for the Grand Opera House.

"The Corsican Brothers" at the Grand Opera House is the Boucicault version, the one made famous by the London productions of Charles Keane and Gustave V. Brooke.

The most talked of event in the London musical world is the transfiguration Patti has made by transforming herself into a yellow-haired French blonde of the brightest hue. A London dispatch says: "Miss Adelina Patti surprised the public by appearing at the Albert Hall concert in what was taken to be a yellow wig. It has since been found that she had become weary of being a life-long brunette and had dyed her hair a brilliant straw color. It is causing much comment and some ridicule."

Louise Balfe replaced Annie Mayor in "The Great Metropolis" in Philadelphia, and made a hit of large proportions. The great New York spectacular play captured Philadelphia, but prior dates ahead choked off its run to full houses. It returns to the Quaker City later on.

A London dispatch states that Harriet Ford, "the American actress," made her

The engagement of the Hanlons' "Fantasma" company at the Haymarket Theatre in Chicago was a remarkable one. They opened to the largest house the Haymarket has had this season and the same business was the rule the entire week. The new additions to "Fantasma" have made it an almost entirely new piece and by far the best the Hanlons ever produced.

Lawrence Barrett has made a very great success in "Ganelon" at the Chicago Opera House, where many people are being turned away at every performance. Mr. Barrett will play in St. Louis Nov. 4th, Cincinnati Nov. 11th, Baltimore Nov. 18th and Washington Nov. 25th.

Mrs. D. P. Bowers has received an offer from Frederick Warde for a combination next year.

The Le Fre Trio in their clever and novel specialties have made a hit in "Fantasma" Co. A.

The life of Joseph Jefferson, written by himself, will be published in the Century Magazine next month.

The performance of Rose Forte as Fantasma in the Hanlons' Co. A is much commended by the press in the cities visited.

Gus Williams, the monologist of Herrmann's Transatlantique Vaudevilles, the funny end of the big show, is as amusing off the stage as on, he being a splendid story teller. One of his new ones is of an old Irish woman who lost her husband, and in making arrangements for the funeral at the undertaker's after a long talk finally decided upon a neat, plain casket. The undertaker, with the melancholy courtesy which usually marks his craft, jotted down her address and said, "What kind of trimmings would you like?" The old lady wiped her eyes and replied, "Trimmens! Oi don't want any more trimmens! That's what Moike died with!"

The wires tell us that a London court has ordered Dion Boucicault to pay the sum of £30 monthly as alimony to his divorced wife, Agnes Robertson.

The following attractions were produced at the New York theatres last week: "Our Flat," a comedy, at the Lyceum; "The Great Unknown" at Daly's; Mr. Terriss and Miss Millward in "The Lady of Lyons" at Niblo's, and Signor Salvini as the Gladiator, Othello and Samson at Palmer's.

Charles Wyndham follows Salvini at Palmer's Theatre, N. Y., Nov. 4th.

Ullie Akerstrom, who follows Wilson Barrett at Niblo's where she will be seen in a new play, goes to California and Australia next season. Her mother was once a popular dancer in Paris.

Dockstader is doing well at his little theatre on upper Broadway, New York.

W. J. Scanlan drew $1,060 on his opening night in Memphis.

Pauline Markham has resigned from the "Spider and Fly" Company.

Tony Pastor is here, and at his pretty little theatre on Fourteenth street, N. Y.

T. J. Herndon has gone to London to support Loie Fuller in "Caprice."

Louis James is making a tour of the South, where he is well known and popular.

Mr. A. C. Gunter, the well known and popular author of "Mr. Barnes of New York," says that it is not necessary for him to keep a route of the "Mr. Barnes of New York" company. That on Tuesday morning of each week he receives telegraphic orders from whatever city the company may be playing in for a large number of the novels, and that he receives a profit from both the company and the extra sale of the books. Mr. Sanger, the manager, seriously contemplates making claim for a larger percentage of the company's profits for advertising Mr. Gunter and his novels. Wonder if he has received his San Francisco order yet?

Frank L. Goodwin has secured Georgie Parker and the American Four, who will shortly appear in a musical comedy entitled "A Lucky Penny."

A new English opera, "The Castle of Como," dealing with the story of "The Lady of Lyons," has just made a hit at the Opera Comique, London. If the opera achieves only a quantum of the success of Bulwer's play it will make fortunes for all concerned in it. "The Lady of Lyons" was produced nearly a half century ago, and so lasting is its popularity in England to the present day, that a recent London paper said there was not a week-day night in the year but what the good old play was performed in some part of the United Kingdom.

The long talked of improvements and alteration in the Alcazar will be made early next Summer. A hole in the engagements will be left for that purpose.

Manager Gustav Walter, of the Orpheum, will manage Woodward's Gardens, opening on Sunday with a genuine Wild West Show—now en route for Australia—with genuine cowboys in feats of horsemanship, lariating, etc.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

We have received a letter from Pitrot, the best of facial artists, telling us of his departure for Europe on the 30th to fill engagements in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. He will return to this country in a year or two.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mattie Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

Bothe Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Miss Alice Dale, Miss Julia Grant and Miss Ella Letcher add their specialties to the Comique's bill.

EVENING EDITION

TUESDAY.....OCTOBER 31, 1889

Notice to Stage Managers.

Reporters will be in attendance after [illegible] P. M. and managers are requested to leave their work at that hour.

FIGARO is the Official Journal of all the Leading Theatres in San Francisco, and the only paper that publishes their true programmes.

AMUSEMENTS, ETC.

Lovett's New Bush Street Theatre.

Harry Evans, Dan Leno and Little Ethel" comedy to the Bush, this week. Dan Leno made the mark as the creator of "Old Sport," and enriched his popularity in his last new piece, which gives wider scope for the exercise of his natural humor.

Leno is the greatest humorist—comedian in the singular, and a remarkable character builder. With but little of a character to build it up and make a great part of it by his unctious humor and quaint action.

Mr. Daniels has surrounded himself with a first-class company, with whose assistance he brings out all the fun there is in one of the funniest comedies ever written. His company includes his principal support, the popular soubrette, Miss Bessie Saleeb, the well known comedienne, Miss Rose Chesman, and a bevy of bright and pretty girls; Harry Courtaine, Robert Evans, Arthur E. Moulton, Harry Connor, William White and others.

The company is much stronger than that of last year. Taking new scenes and chorus have been introduced in "Little Puck," and there is not a dissonant note in it. The whole performance is most enjoyable.

The theatre overflows every night.

For cast and further particulars see the programme announcement elsewhere in our columns.

Alcazar Theatre.

Miss Nellie McHenry presents for her last week at the Alcazar her popular farcical comedy of "The Humming Bird." The scene is laid in New York, and this popular actress just revels in burlesque as the stage-struck lady's maid. It is in her second act that she gives her famed burlesque of Ophelia in the mad scene in "Hamlet."

Miss Nellie McHenry, one of the most popular of soubrettes in light and lively range of characters, is the leading spirit in the fun, supported by John Webster, W. B. Latell and her own well-selected comedy company. The comedy made its old mark, and the applause and laughter that greeted it showed it had scored its wonted success. Miss McHenry and company really appear at their best in this play.

That play of varied scenes and rapid action, "Tour of the World in Eighty Days," will be produced in a spectacular form by the Alcazar Company next week, with Amazon March, Children's ballet and new specialty features. The scenery will be entirely new and very fine, and special care is taken to make the whole production a noted one.

Grand Opera House.

Manager Haig of the Grand and the production of that weirdly supernatural and sensational play, "The Corsican Brothers," is a perfect success. The play is staged in a better manner than ever produced here before, and nearly every seat in the immense auditorium has been occupied by a well pleased audience.

Mr. Bandmann is grand in the dual role of the Corsican twins, whose sympathetic natures were so actively organized that vital harm to one was made manifest to the other though hundreds of miles away. His acting is very great, but vivified by immense magnetic force and romantic, intense and fiery parts there is no actor on the stage more impressive than Bandmann except Irving.

Mr. Wm. Morris, the new leading man, scored a success, and the support is good all through. The company is strong and evenly balanced.

An army of artisans have been at work on the stage of the Grand on the grand spectacular production of "The Corsican Brothers" for weeks past, and the public will approve the good result of their labors every night.

Every scene is new, and this romantic drama has had such expensive and gorgeous settings and appointments as have never been seen in this play this side of an European stage before. The apparition scenes are absolutely startling.

The Hilarious Carnival Scene shows one hundred persons on the stage in elegant character and mythological bal masque costumes. It is the best scene of the kind ever presented on a San Francisco stage.

Our space will not permit of further detailed notice. We can congratulate the management of the Grand on the production of this play, and the public on the opportunity to see it.

FIGARO furnishes the house programme for the Grand Opera House.

See cast and synopsis in adjacent column.

That gifted actress, Miss Sophie Eyre, will be the next stellar attraction, in her thrilling play of "The Witch," opening Nov. 11th.

New California Theatre.

This week we are to have "Mr. Barnes of New York," Gunter's comedy adaptation from his own novel, a New York success, handsomely staged and well cast. The scene is in the South of Europe and Corsica, and the theme is love, murder and vendettaism.

The play comes to us with its own scenery, mountings, and some very fine mechanical stage effects. The cast is a very full one, as will be seen by referring to the programme on first page.

The play is sketchy and light, and dramatic and intense, at times, but picturesque and full of action always. Besides the principals, Mr. Robert Hilliard and Miss Emily Rigle, there are plenty of good people in the cast who carry the play along swimmingly.

The scenes and appointments are new and handsome, and immense houses testified their approval of the play.

Baldwin Theatre.

Rosina Vokes, the gifted and well schooled actress and a charming comedienne, who has a reputation on both continents, is the attraction at the Baldwin.

Miss Vokes travels with her own company and the support is in every way good.

The bill for this week is another triple one; three mirth-inspiring little comedies: "The Old Musician," "The Circus Rider" and "A Pantomime Rehearsal."

In the first comedy, adapted from the French by Mr. Felix Morris that admirable character actor gives in his performance of "The Old Musician" one of his most finished impersonations.

In the "Circus Rider" Rosina Vokes is inimitable in her imitation of the Queen of the Arena riding a bare-back steed tip toe on the parlor sofa, and sets the house in a roar. Nor is she less funny in the amateur pantomime performance as a hopping robin going about with a leaf in her mouth, and finding no children ready to cover with it.

See casts in programme elsewhere in FIGARO.

Miss Vokes' bill next week will present three more of the same kind: "Crocodile Tears" (new), "A Double Lesson," "My Lord in Livery" (new).

Seats now ready.

Chiarini's Royal Italian Circus.

This famous Circus manager and accomplished ring-master returns to us again from an extended tour in the Orient, and will open with one of the most completely equipped circus he has yet had, at Central Park, corner Market and Eighth streets, Monday next.

Chiarini's Circus has always been famed for the handsomest and best trained horses, and the most expert and graceful riders, to say nothing of his incomparable manage acts.

His present grand equestrian establishment is rich in novelties: Ring artists from European hippodromes; trained blood-horses culled from various parts of the world; ponies from Corea, Java, China, and Japan; a trained elephant; Japanese acrobats; a band of Manila musicians, and in fact most everything that is different from the usual circuses.

Box office open Thursday. See announcement and admission prices elsewhere in FIGARO.

Orpheum Theatre.

A double bill this week. The Jinglers Jubilee Singers, six in number, now, are a company in themselves, besides the addition of the Brothers Caine, premier gymnasts, and others.

The Great London Olympic Specialty Company put in their farewell appearances this week, on their way to Australia, sailing on next steamer. There is a troupe of Arab performers, a band of Indian warriors, Fred Watson's trained animals; Alma, the aerial artiste, and other celebrities.

The great novelties are the cowboy pastimes of Bridle Bill and Texas Jack, showing their proficiency in lariat throwing; Oneita's rifle shooting — across the stage — putting out a burning match held in the fingers and shooting off the end of a cigar held in the teeth; another cowboy's lightning expertness with a revolver, and the war-dance of the Sioux Indian troupe.

See announcement.

There will be an entire change of performance and company next week, with an elaborate production of Fritz Lafontaine's musical comedy, entitled "A Stew" with grand chorus, new songs, comic situations, etc.

General seats, 25 cents; reserved, 50 cents.

Morosco's Amphitheatre.

Managers Morosco & Byrnes have made a special engagement with Mr. T. H. Glenny, a cosmopolitan actor and author, for a dramatic season at the East side popular theatre.

Mr. Glenny opens in his own sensational play, "The Murder in a Hansom Cab," in which he takes the part of Horatio McGoffin Crowley, an actor out of luck. It is the first production of this play on this coast.

Mr. Glenny's piece is stirringly sensational and he plays his part very effectively. He is a competent all-around actor, and his new pieces will prove a great treat to Morosco's clientage.

The cast calls for Messrs. Vinton, Carden, Holden, Owens, Franklyn, Miss May Nannary, Miss Conchita, Miss Kitty Belmoure and the whole company.

See cast and synopsis in programme elsewhere in our columns.

Manager Morosco understands the tastes of his patrons. He presents attractive plays with a fully competent company, and the results are satisfactory to both manager and people.

Matinees Sundays, at 2 P. M. Admission, 10 cents. Front reserved seats 10 cents extra.

Bella Union Theatre.

Mabie Santly's Female Burlesque Company, a fine display of beauty, is the constellation attraction this week. Delegations of the company appear in the Female Minstrel first part, [illegible] tious fractions of the company — four serio-comics — put in appearances in the olio. In fact they pervade the programme pretty generally.

It is almost a double company here now, as most of the old favorites are retained.

Manager Ned Foster keeps up his record in giving a full and varied bill, including acts, specialties and comedies.

Hallinan's Cremorne Theatre.

The Salsenas, Mlle. La Cellie, and her assistant French Blondes are announced this week in conjunction with Gilbert & Goldie, Franks & Marion, Hayes & Marion, the popular favorites; Miss Claudie West, Maggie Gordon, Lillian Starr, Kittie King, Stella Clair and the versatile Nestell and others in a fine programme.

The three Les Encroyables in their novel specialties and the French "Can-Can; or, Scenes in La Jardin Mabile," are other features of the bill.

Friday nights are set apart for amateur talent. Any one wishing to appear, can do so by applying by letter, or in person, to Manager Nestell.

Ed. Homan keeps the Cremorne in the front rank of variety theatres, and Ned Nestell looks out sharper than ever for the stage department. Result, good business.

Original Theatre Comique.

Miss Ella Letcher, song and dance queen; Miss Alice Hall, serio-comic, and Miss Julia Grant, a soubrette, are late additions here.

The Comique presents an entire new bill this week, with songs and afterpiece. Numerous new novelties are produced by the various artists every evening and especial attention is paid to the first part.

West & Fowler, a clever and versatile team, do a fine change sketch.

The interlude act is the funny comedy of "I Expect Them," with the company in the cast.

The entertainment furnished for this week is very attractive, and various songs, specialties and comedies are rendered by Matt Travers, J. Burns, Ella Letcher, Ruby Grant, Alice Hall, John Gilmore, Jennie Fowler and Lottie Gardner and George West.

The Comique's company is a strong one in in musical features. Glees, duets and concerted pieces are rendered with zest and expression. It is a neat, compact minor theatre, and for many years has been a popular one.

Wigwam Theatre.

Manager Chas. Meyers' experience and energy has placed the Wigwam on the soundest business basis as a popular family vaudeville theatre. New bill and new people every week is his rule in business, and the Wigwam is in the swim of success.

Many new artists put in appearance this week, consisting of M'lle Minnetta, of marvelous strength, and the acrobat Barretta, both from Orrin's Circus, Mexico; Prof. Peterson, European gymnast, and the great Ellwood. The remaining favorites are: Dryden & Mitchell, specialists; Wilhelm Westin, glass euphonist; Allen & Page, black face song and dance team; Flora Hastings, balladist; J. W. Kelly, the philosopher, and the oldest favorite, Thos. C. Leary.

See programme, elsewhere for their full specialty classifications.

Bottle Meier's Theatre.

By referring to the programme of this old established house it will be seen that Bottle Meier presents a very good bill of attractions, got up weekly by that most enterprising of all variety theatre North-side stage managers, J. D. Fox, whose popularity has made that district of the city his home for years. The structure is a theatre with the main floor even with the street and a regular horseshoe gallery of larger houses.

Miss Minnie Drossell, Leonard & Leopoldt, Gus and Edward, musical and general performers, put in new appearances this week, the company being rounded out by Miss Dolly Paxton, Miss Lola Vernon, J. D. Fox, Rose Devere and others.

The bill opens with Fox's local comedy, "The Fishing Party," with all the company in the cast. The olio acts are Leonard's "Gilled Mashers," the specialty sketches, and Leonard & Leopoldt's novel musical act in which a [illegible]

Eureka Music

This is one of the neatest of our minor theatres. M runs a very strong company provides the stage with a week.

Charley Morrell, the ba McDonald, comedian, are a ing company recently:

Miss Laura Manning, Lulu Martell, Mamie Saufer Stella Walton, Mamie Woods make up the company.

The first-part is made up of songs rendered by the the Eureka company.

In the comedy act, "T songs and dances and musi have been introduced, mak than ever.

DALY'S LAST COMEDY.

Mr. Augustin Daly introduced his new comedy, "The Great Unknown," to a splendid first night's assemblage at his theatre in New York on the 22nd. The new work is based upon Schmitt and Kadelburg's German comedy "Die Bermuda Fran (A Celebrated Woman)," and elicited continuous mirth from a rather select collection of fashionables. Ada Rehan has been fitted with a part well suited to her talents as that of the sparkling and willful Etna. Her pert responses and playful vent llation of the slang vocabulary now potent among the "freshes" of upper and lower tendom is a clever and timely satire upon the verbal vulgarity which yet clings to "shoddy" made American aristocrats. It is evident that Mr. Daly has bent his energies to making "The Great Unknown" a purely enjoyable entertainment in which the reflective powers of the spectator are not necessarily exercised. Therefore the artistic merits of the comedy need not be discussed. As stated, Miss Rehan made a brilliant hit as the romping heroine, and next to her in general esteem came Mr. Wilton Lackaye, who played the role of a "pushy," yet reserved Irish lover. He is undoubtedly a great acquisition to Mr. Daly's company. James Lewis, as a matter of course, was the good-natured, flirting old father, and Mrs. Gilbert posed as the determined aunt of his unprotected daughters. John Drew had little to do, [illegible] the coy young maiden wooed by O'Donnel, and Mrs. Yeamans, as the Great Unknown, were good. The story concerns a mother who aspires to literary fame and who deserts her family in order to gratify that ambition. The comedy is in three acts and in one drawing-room set, which is a marvel of modern house decoration. "The Great Unknown" promises to achieve a run.

SPECIALTY SQUIBS.

Manager Gustav Walter, of the Orpheum, will manage Woodward's Gardens, opening it on Sunday with a genuine Wild West Show now en route for Australia—with genuine cowboys in feats of horsemanship, larieting, etc.

We have received a letter from Pitrot, the best of facial artists, telling us of his departure for Europe on the 30th to fill engagements in London, Paris, Berlin and Vienna. He will return to this country in a year or two.

The Bella Union Theatre will flash out Mable Santley's Female Burlesque Company on its patrons this week.

Bottle Meier comes to the front with a big bill this week.

Miss Alice Dale, Miss Julia Grant and Miss Ella Letcher add their specialties to the Comique's bill.

The Cremorne introduces the clever Eastern solo dancer, La Celeste, and corps de ballet as their latest attraction.

Manager Waldstein keeps the Eureka well to the front with good bills and good company.

Edwin Booth and Mme. Modjeska in "The Merchant of Venice" are drawing some of the largest audiences ever seen in the Broadway Theatre, and their engagement promises to be a success in every way. They appear on November 4th in a magnificent production of "Hamlet."

"Steward," he said feebly, in the small hours of the stormy night, trying to turn over in his berth. "Steward, what's that?" "The sailor on deck, sir." "Yes, but what are they just now?" "All well, sir." "My, what a liar!" And then he turned over and moaned a sea-sick moan.
